Davis Crockett marriage bond 12 Aug 1806 to Mary "Pally" Fudley.

~~Family~~ Davis' grandfather was David Crockett, whose estate was administered in Washington Co., Va. in 1778 by his two sons William & Robert. The real estate was given as in Carter's Valley (now Tennessee) & this land was finally located in the present Henning Co., Tenn., as the site of Rogersville. The grandparents were massacred there by the Indians in 1777.

From September 9, 1978, correspondence of Mr. Marshall L. McClanahan:

John Ramsey married Margaret, widow of John Crocket, and squandered the money belonging to her and son, Archibald.

Jan. 6, 1770, John Crockett and Margaret his wife deeded Wm. Moore (all of Mecklenburg Co., N. C.) land. This is couple mentioned above.

The wife of Elijah Crockett was Mary, nee Davey. ~~XXXXXX~~ Elijah appears in the 1790 census of Lancaster Co., S. C. .

JOHN SIMON FARLEY and Elizabeth Morson, plaintiffs,
and

THOMAS LEE SHIPPEN and Elizabeth
Carter, late Elizabeth Carter
Banister, his wife, Champe
Carter and Maria, late Maria
Farley, his wife, Mary Byrd Farley, and Rebecca Parke Farley; which two last named parties,
being infants, appear by John Dunbar, their guardian, defendants

FRANCIS FARLEY and Simon Farley, brothers, british subjects and fathers each of several children, in the year 1755, bought of William Byrd 26000 acres of land, called the Saura town, or the land of Eden, in Northcarolina, for 1000 pounds of sterling money. the conveyance was to Francis Farley, and Simon Farley and to their heirs. they bought also, together with one Francis Miller, several parcels of land, in the county of Norfolk, in Virginia, which were conveyed to the three purchasers and to their heirs:

Simon Farley paid one-half of the purchase-money for the land in Northcarolina, and one-third part of the purchase money for the land in Virginia. slaves belonging to both the brothers were employed in cultivating the Northcarolina land; and Francis Farley debited Simon with one-half of certain expenses incurred many years after the death of the latter on account of that estate.

The whole business of treating for the purchases, taking the conveyances, and managing the estates, was transacted by Francis Farley, who was several times in Virginia, his brother residing in Antigua, WEST INDIES

Simon Farley died about the year 1756 and by his testament, whereof he appointed his brother Francis one of the executors, his children, the plaintiffs, to whom the said Francis was appointed testamentary guardian, with others, claime what they now demand, which is one-half of the Northcarolina land, and one-third part of the Virginia land.

After his death, Francis Farley bought from Francis Miller his third part of the land in Virginia.

25 of january, 1757, Francis Farley wrote to Francis Miller a letter in these words: " i pray the favor of you to send me by the first opportunity a copy of the sale or conveyance to my brother and myself of the land bought from col. Byrd, which, after my brother is dead, i am as survivor intituled by law to the whole, so i want the sale that i may have a conveyance drawn for one half my brother's share: for god forbid i would ever take such an advantage as his death gives me; and, for this reason, i want copies of those other lands bought between you, him and myself * * * the sooner you send me these papers the better, and the more will you oblige me; for life is very uncertain and i want to get this business done for fear of accidents. "

In another letter, dated 14 of august, 1758, from Francis Farley to Francis Miller are these words: " i imagine some of my last letters to you have miscarried, as you take no notice in yours to me of some things i mentioned to you particularly the sending me copies of the conveyance made by col. Byrd to my brother and myself of the land we bought of him in Carolina, i have mentioned this two or three times, and must beg you will furnish me with it, by the very first opportunity: do not send the original deed but copies by two opportunities. i want it prodigiously that i may settle the matter, lest any accident should happen my life: and god forbid that I or mine should take the advantage the law gives by my surviving my poor brother; and i find you are of the same honest and honourable way of thinking. so you will be so kind to have this matter settled with you by a proper deed as to your survivorship, with regard to the lands we purchased in partnership in Virginia. charge me for all expenses that may attend your doing it, and sending copies of the deed from col. Byrd."

In a letter from Francis Farley to his son, James Parke Farley, dated the 31 of March, 1772, are these words: i believe Jack Farley will soon be obliged to go with the regiment to Ireland &c. that poor family will i feel be infallibly ruined, and obliged to sell their share of the land of Eden."

In a letter from Francis Farley to John Simon Farley, dated 11 of june 1777, are these words: i am very apprehensive, that, if the americans find out you are one of the kings officers they will confiscate your lands in America, in that case you will have nothing to depend upon but your commission and i shall lose above 3000 pounds."

In a letter from Francis Farley to John Simon Farley, dated 13 of July, 1778, are these words: "if you do not quit the army you will certainly lose your property in Northamerica, which i trust is worth more than a colonels commission and a regiment or two or three regiments * * * surely you cannot have the least doubt whether it will be best to preserve valuable property, in such a country, or to continue a slave in the army of a very declining almost ruined country * * * in my last i said, i should not again presume to advise you, but in a very short time things are so vastly altered i cannot help attempting it once more, i then thought that all of us who had property in North-america and were absent from that country, would forfeit it, but from the late accounts we have, we find the congress acts upon more liberal principles, and intend to give time to all absentees to return and clame their property, even those who deserted them in the day of distress, and bore arms against them; but, if they do not return in a certain limited time their property is to be confiscated and you may take for granted they will have no partiality towards an officer in the kings service. i therefore hope you will see this matter in the light i do and think it better to part with the commission you now have, and come over to be ready to go to America to clame your property, soon as matters are settled, than to lose considerable property in a very growing country.

If you have purchased a captains commission before you receive this, i must beg you will sell it &c then go to America to clame the land, if you should not like to remain in that country, you may sell the land, and live in a country you like better, you cannot afford to lose that land. "

The writing which, after the death of Francis Farley, was proved for his testament, and by which all his estate in Northcarolina and Virginia was devised (a) to the children of his son, James Parke Farley, the female defendants, without making any declaration in favor of the plaintiffs, was lodged in the hands of Thomas Warner, attorney general of Antigua, the council of that testator, with a paper on which were written by his direction the following words: my late brother Simon Farley was half concerned with me in the purchase of a tract of land from the honourable William Byrd esquire, and Elizabeth his wife, and known by the name of Saura town, or the land of Eden in the province or state of Northcarolina, he was also one third concerned with Mr. Francis Miller of Virginia merchant, and myself in the purchase of the following tracts of land, viz:

one tract purchased from Robert Ives and Keiza his wife, one tract purchased from Anne Ludgall widow, John Biggs and Bathia his wife, William Dale and Mary his wife, and Sarah Ludgall Spinster, one tract purchased from John Ivy and Elizabeth his wife, one tract purchased from James Tucker. note I have since purchased Francis Millers title to his one third part, so that I now possess two third parts of these several tracts of land.

My late brother is no how concerned with me in the great dismal swamp, or any other lands that i have in Virginia or Northcarolina, except the five parcels above mentioned, and a man who in march, 1779, had been sent for the said testamentary writing in order to return it to Francis Farley was informed by the council, that Francis Farley had wished to make a declaration in his will, as to the title of John Simon Farley to the said lands in America, which the council, as he informed the messenger, declined to do from reason of policy, and brought to him, with that information, lamented that such declaration could not be made.

(a) Francis Farley, who appeareth to have expected that the property in America of british subjects would be confiscated, probably hoped to prevent the loss of these lands by devising them to his grandchildren, who were american citizens, praetermitting his brothers children, because a devise to them might be vain. Note in edition of 1795.

* Details on all of his descendants are in the family section of book.

This chart shows four lines of descent from Richard New, the immigrant to Virginia in 1637.

EDMUND NEW

ca. 1655 - 1727

Edmund New, son of Richard New, the immigrant, was born ca. 1655 in James City Co., VA. He married Mary ____, and probably lived in Charles City Co., VA, until 1720 when he acquired 400 acres in Henrico Co., VA, on the north side of the James River and the west side of Little Horsepen Creek (Patent Book 11 p. 47).

Edmund New wrote two wills, both of which are recorded in the Henrico Co., VA, records. The first one, written 4 July 1726, (pages 50-51 of Henrico Co. Will Book), differs from the second in that it mentions his grandson, John New, "son to my son Edmund New, deceased," and the grandson and deceased son is not mentioned in the second will dated 8 August 1726 (pages 107-108 of Henrico Co. Will Book). A copy of these two wills follow. After careful study of both wills, it is thought that the deceased son Edmund was in fact Edward New who married Sarah Bland and died young, leaving one son, John. The name Edmund and Edward were often abbreviated, and in transcribing old records it would have been easy to mistake one for the other.

Another difference in the two wills is that a son Henry New, mentioned in the first will, is not mentioned in the second. The inventory of Edmund New, dated 1 February 1726, was recorded 5 June 1727. A copy of this inventory follows the copy of the two wills.

The children of Edmund and Mary New were:

- Prissilla New
- Edmund New, Jr.
- Edward New, married Sarah Bland
- William New
- Mary New, married ____ Prior/Prire
- Rebecca New, married Thomas Christian
- Sarah New, married John Tuley/Tully
- Elizabeth New, married ____ Patterson
- Ann New
- Henry New
