Emily (Thompson) Robertson never criticized & never became angry. She was known to say, "When you meet someone, always look at the person and find something nice about them." She could put others in a good mood by talking with them and reminding them of nice things they had done.

∞
∞

Some of Emily's friends were talking in derogatory terms about a woman who was divorced when Emily asked, "Do you remember what delicious cake she makes?" And suddenly the conversation turned to cake rather than criticism.

∞
∞
∞
∞
∞

Emily seldom traveled by Pullman overnight on the train because she preferred to travel during the day when she could see how people were living.

∞

One of the family members had a blacksmith shop near Arcola where a filling station is located in 1975

"When Emily's father died she and her mother went to live with a Davis family and a relative of hers and President Polk. After they left the Davis family, Emily lived with another relative until she married at an early age.
