Dear Liz and Gerry,

How wonderful to have had the chance to have you visit with me—albeit too briefly—while you were in Orange County! Even though it was under difficult circumstances for me with Carl in the terminal phase of his illness, it was a pleasure to make your acquaintance. Carl passed away on Sunday, October 18, of heart failure.

Until today, I have not had an opportunity to write.

First: In response to your question concerning Letitia Christian who married John Tyler, she was a descendant of Thomas Christian of Charles City County, Virginia.

Second: Thank you so much for the photograph of the Cherry Bottom home of the nineteenth century Christian family and for your "Illiam Dhone & His Descendants." It shows a lot of work on your part entering the data on your computer; however, much of the information from which the data originally came is questionable. A quick perusal causes me to offer the following:

1) As far as I have been able to determine, the immigrant to Augusta County, Virginia, GILBERT CHRISTIAN, was not a son of Patricius Christian. I have often wondered how and when he was first so identified with the result that numerous descendants of Gilbert have accepted the possibility as fact and carried the unsubstantiated information forward. According to Patricius Christian's 1687 will, he names only a son William and a daughter Mary. What evidence do you have that Gilbert was a son of Patricius?

2) On your page 2 you show Israel Christian as a grandson of Gilbert although all early U. S. sources identify Israel as a nephew of Gilbert. I have not personally engaged in research on this point.

3) On your page 11 I wish to point out that the Robert Christian who married Mary Houston was a different Robert from the one who married Mary Adair. I have numerous original documents showing that the Robert who married Mary Houston was the second son of that name born to John and Margaret (Wilson) Christian. Robert and Mary had a large family and lived in what is today Knawha County, West Virginia.

4) On your page 12 you show the John Christian who married Nancy Skelton as part of this line. Not so! He was not a son of Gilbert and Margaret (Anderson) Christian; he was a son of the Hawkins County, Tennessee, progenitor, Lewis Christian.

5) On your page 14, you show the correct John Christian as the son of Gilbert and Margaret (Anderson) Christian; however, recent discoveries show that his wife was Elizabeth Stockton, not Stogland.

The above observations are a result of the most cursory review of the descendants. I'm certain when time permits I can offer numerous corrections and additions.

If I were you, I would be quite cautious accepting Family Tree Maker's data since much is apparently taken from the mass of published, erroneous material available in the United States. This is true for the two major lines (Gilbert and Thomas) and, in fact, for the other less well-known Christian immigrants.

I am just sorry I was not in a position to go over my files with you while you were in Santa Ana. I have spent more than twenty-five years gathering documents to verify the relationship between the various Christian groups and am distressed that so much false information is being disseminated via the internet.

Until next time,

Agnes B. Pearlman

THE MOFFETT-CHRISTIAN FAMILIES
The Story of Hannah Moffitt, Robert's Wife

In the early 1760's Robert Trimble, son of Walter, and Hannah Moffett were married in Augusta County, Virginia, thus uniting the Trimble family with the historical Christian family of the Isle of Man. Hannah Moffett's mother was born Mary Christian, daughter of Capt Robert Christian, who was the grandson of William Christian, who had been executed on 2 Jan 1663 at Hango Hill, Isle of Man. ***

The Christian family first came to the Isle of Man in 1422, having come there from Wigtonshire in Scotland. They were of the rank of gentlemen, but were under the feudal control of the Earls of Derby. It would be this relationship with the Earls which would lead the Christian family into an historical confrontation, which would result in the execution of William Christian. (In 1822 Sir Walter Scott wrote THE PEAK in which the life and execution of Christian was fictionalized. Copies of this book are still available in most major libraries.)

On 30 January, 1649, the English put to death their King Charles I, ending a decade of tumult against the throne, and indeed ending centuries of royal rule on the British Isle. Oliver Cromwell's forces had at last been successful in replacing the king with the Council of State. However, the royalist sentiment was not completely destroyed. The King's most faithful supporter was James, Seventh Earl of Derby.

In 1643, during the tumultuous time preceding the King's death, the Earl moved his residence to the Isle of Man in an attempt to keep the royal standard flying. The Earl had considerable military might and was able to impose the method of submission over the inhabitants of the Isle. Or, as aptly stated by Sir Walter Scott, the Earl conducted "a loving manner, with love such as suits a despot's fancy."

A thorn in his side included the Christian family. The brother William, Edward Christian, was perceived by the Earl as an obstacle to his will, and thusly felt compelled to imprison the man, who the Earl himself described as a "prince" of men. Edward remained imprisoned until his death in 1650. William was appointed Receiver General of the Isle of Man in 1648.

In 1651 the Earl of Derby (James) gathered together a corps of soldiers from the Isle and sailed for England. There they were to join the royal army on the eve of battle at Worcester. The Earl was eventually forced to flee, but was caught and imprisoned at Chester. He soon was on trial in Bolton in Lancashire, where he was executed on 15 October 1651.

In 1662 upon the death of Oliver Cromwell, the English people began showing a weariness of the puritanical rule implemented under Cromwell, and desire for the return of royal rule was widespread. And so the decade hiatus of royal rule came to an end, but not before some severe restrictions were placed upon the new king and his heirs—a step toward the eventual time when the king would be little more than a figure-head in England.

Despite the amnesty granted, which was to have protected those who ruled during Cromwell's time, revenge was none the less in the heart of Charles, Eighth Earl of Derby, and the son of James, the Seventh Earl. Charles believed that it was William Christian who had surrendered the Isle to Parliamentary forces in 1651. (In 1651, on the death of James, Col Duckenfield, who commanded at Chester on behalf of Parliament, proceeded to the Isle of Man with an armament of ten ships and considerable military force for the reduction of the Island).

The proceedings against William Christian began on 29 Dec 1662. On 31 Dec 1662 he was sentenced "to be shot to death, that thereupon his life may depart from his body". The execution was completed on 2 Jan 1663 at Hango Hill. The following day William Christian was buried in the chancel of Kirk Malew.

Preserved are the last words of William Christian, who on the Isle of Man would take his place as a martyr and hero, whose life would inspire the lament ON THE DEATH AND MURDER OF RECEIVER-GENERAL WILLIAM CHRISTIAN OF RONALDSWAY, WHO WAS SHOT NEAR HANGO HILL.

Among his last words were these, "for I do freely forgive all that have had any hand in my persecution; and may our good God preserve you all in peace and quiet the remainder of your days".

Like the Trimble families, both the Moffett and Christian families were emigrants of Ireland. According to some early sources, the Trimble and Moffett families traveled together when they came to the colonies, and finally settled near Stone Church in Augusta Co, VA.

John Moffett, born ca 1705 in Northern Ireland, was one of those who came to Augusta Co, VA. There he married Mary Christian, daughter of Gilbert Christian, in 1724. John and Mary had seven children, among them Hannah Moffett.

In 1749 Hannah's father, John Moffett was killed by Indians while on a trip to South Carolina (possibly in Augusta Co, VA). He died leaving his widowed wife, Mary Christian Moffett, and seven children. In 1755 the widow Mary Christian Moffett married John Trimble, who was a cousin to our Walter Trimble. Hannah, as we know, married Robert Trimble, son of Walter.

On 13 Sep 1764, records chronicled indicate that Hannah's step-father, and Mary Christian's husband, John Trimble was murdered by the Indians in a raid by some thirty Indians, led by a white man named Dickerson. Captured in this raid were Hannah's sister, Catherine (Kitty) and her eight year old half-brother, James.

The morning after the murder of John Trimble, Capt George Moffett, his step-son and brother of Hannah, together with a group of other men, set out to recapture the prisoners. Their trip was highly successful with many of the Indians being killed and only one white man being wounded. Of noteworthy record here is that the wounded white man, named Russell, would later meet the leader of the Indians, Dickerson, at the Battle of Point Pleasant and kill him in hand-to-hand conflict. All of these records were published by the Virginia DAR and are presently in the collection of the Virginia State Library as well as other major libraries.
