Harlan was a good-looking man with a great personality. He loved his mom and acted as a father figure to his younger brothers. He passed away of tonsil poisoning at age 27, which was a huge blow to his family. More details to follow.

Harlan bought his mom her first washer (she did everything by hand before that, scrubbing it in the tub). He used to go to the DAR Boys and Girls club, and one day a woman there gave him a guitar. She must have seen something in him, or maybe could tell that he was musically inclined. He taught himself to play it, and then also taught his brothers, Ed and Delmar, to play. After that, there was always a lot of music at home. They were always practicing, even having neighbors and friends over to play music. Harlan was very musical; he played the Hawaiian guitar, holding it on his lap. He also played in an orchestra with Gordon Quierr (Gordon's wife, Marie Flood, was a girlfriend of Harlan's sister Genevieve). When Harlan would come in late at night from playing in the orchestra, his mom would scold him about not getting enough sleep. Grandma Bero said that Harlan was a lot like Grandpa Bero, and that they even looked and sounded alike. Exilda attached herself to Grandpa Bero because of this and how much she missed Harlan. He was very good to his mom.

All the girls liked Harlan. He was popular and nice-looking. He had a lot of girlfriends who would write him letters. Harlan had one girlfriend named Ruth Bolengie, but she didn't want a commitment (Genevieve and Ann would go over to Ruth's house and bake. She kept the girls around like chaperones. Ruth ended up marrying a cousin of theirs, Camile Bero). Later, Harlan met Josephine Wiery. She lived on a farm. He liked her the most and was still dating her when he passed. They were dating during the Great Depression and he didn't want to get married until he could provide for his family. He only made about $6 per week at the grocery store. After he died, she went to work at Lloyd Factory.

Harlan's business card

(these pictures are of Harlan and Josephine Wiery)

Harlan worked at Telots (pronounced Tee-lots) grocery store delivering groceries. People called in their orders and he would deliver it to their houses. He met a lot of people this way and was well-liked because of his personality. He had a truck from the grocery store, with the bed closed-in, and he would haul groceries in it. He sometimes picked up his sister Germaine with the truck.

Bob, Ed and Delmar all looked up to Harlan. He was older, and would take care of the boys in a lot of ways, even acting as a father figure to them. When Harlan died, it was a big loss for everyone. Bob named his first son Harlan. Ed named Gary with the middle name Harlan.

Their dad, Joe, was a 'silent partner' in the family; he just sat in his chair and smoked his pipe. Pam remembers being afraid of him, thinking he was sullen and mean, although he loved our dad, Gary, more than anyone else. He took him to the circus and all over the place. He took him in his truck and dad loved that. They would even walk around together holding hands. He also took dad to the fair, playing at knocking the bottles down for prizes. Auntie Pam doesn't ever remember him hugging her or saying anything nice. Ed did not like his dad and Pam never heard him say anything nice about him, even saying a few negative things about him. Germaine thinks Joe may have become this way after baby Randolph died. He really loved his first little boy. Grandpa Ed LOVED his mother and would have done anything for her.

When Harlan got sick, they lived on 14th Ave across from the Granite works where they make tomb markers. They were living in that house when he died. When he got really sick, they hauled a bed into the living room because all of the 3 bedrooms were upstairs and he was too weak to go up the steps. He hardly got up at all and was pretty much bed-ridden.

Harlan is said to have died of "tonsil poisoning." He was supposed to have his tonsils out and didn't (no one remembers the exact details). Germaine thinks it may have been some sort of cancer. A new doctor came to town later, Dr. Duaine, who said if he had cared for Harlan 6 months sooner, he could have saved his life. Harlan just kept withering away, though. Toward the end of his sickness, he was admitted into the hospital (which is also where he died). While Harlan was in the hospital, everyone heard a strange noise upstairs so Exilda went to see what it was. It was Bob crying so loud about Harlan dying.

Ann was the favorite of Harlan's sisters. She visited him at the hospital when she was about 7 or so. Harlan looked at the purse she was holding and said something odd about it because his mind was being affected by being sick. He passed away on New Year's Eve. Germaine was babysitting elsewhere the night he died, and Ed and Bob came and picked her up to tell her that he died.

After Harlan died, he was laid out in the house. There were so many people, friends and relatives, who came to see him that they were lined up through the living room, dining room and out of the house. They all wanted to come and pay their respects. Their Uncle Tuffy (who was nick-named this because he was a boxer), and his wife Emma, who lived in Chicago, came to see Harlan when he died.

Uncle Tuffy (Theo Bero) was one of Joe's brothers. He liked Harlan too. His visits during the summer were the highlight of that time. He had a car with a rumble seat. He would pile all of the kids in the rumble seat and take them for a ride around Henes Park. He made a fuss over the kids and they all really liked it. Sometimes, he would give them a quarter (there were too many kids to give gifts). Tuffy had 2 kids, Mary Ann and Weston.

Arlyss, Ed, his sister Germaine, and her husband Howard went to Chicago to visit Uncle Tuffy. She has pictures of that trip.

After Harlan died, WWII broke out. Delmar went in service and Ed was working at the Lloyd factory. In the summer, Ed got Germaine a job there in the glider department making glider planes for the war. Germaine was happy to have the job. She was a junior in high school at the time. Before starting at Lloyd's, Germaine worked ironing and doing dishes for someone in the area. This woman gave Germaine's information to Susan Wells, who lived in Sheridan Circle (off of 1st St). Germaine ended up living with the Wellses and had her own bedroom there, taking care of their little girl and cooking and dusting. She left the Wellses (where she had been making $5 per week) and made more at Lloyds. She saved her money in a drawer all year to buy clothes (2 dresses for graduation) and a party for graduation. She has a picture wearing one of the dresses, which her husband Howard kept in his wallet. She went back to work for the Wellses again during her senior year. Mrs. Wells was glad to have her back.

Exilda Bero was not feeling well at this time. She herself was only 19 years old when her own mother died due to heart problems. One morning, Exilda was making coffee at the kitchen table with Joe and she just fell over. She had been seeing a doctor for her heart, whom they called right away when she collapsed. He was surprised that she had even lived as long as she did. Ed, Delmar and Gary all died that way. Grandma Arlyss Bero said that Harlan was all that the family talked about, even several years later when she and Ed first got together (she never got a chance to meet Harlan).

Arlyss also said that Ann was the baby and was spoiled by her mom. Baby Randolph died by falling out of his high chair into a tub of water and drowning. Exilda was washing clothes by hand and found him when she came back to check on him. Isabelle was supposed to be watching him (although she was only 3, so we can guess what happened).

Exilda lived in Mizner's boarding house before getting married. Exilda worked for Mrs. Mizner cleaning and cooking and caring for the boarders (who were mostly men).

Exilda had heart problems. They didn't really have tests back in those days to tell exactly what it was. Exilda had a hard life, and this probably contributed to her heart troubles. They believed it to be their duty in life at that time to have children. Everyone was poor. She had nothing, and had to try and keep the family fed on next to nothing. She worried about where the next meal would come from for her children. She also lost her own mother when she was young. Germaine remembers Ed and the others going to school in the morning without any breakfast. They had to try and get to school early enough that the nuns would feed them when they got there. Germaine doesn't remember specifically going hungry, but there wasn't a lot of food. Exilda sometimes didn't even have a coat to wear in the winters. Isabelle, once she started working, bought her one.

Joe worked at Gressingham's (off of 13th St). It was a wood factory; he went in at night and locked the place up, although Germaine wasn't positive on the details of what he did there. It was sometime around the war. One day, she saw her pa walking home and he looked so incredibly sad. She found out that he was let go from the job. That's the only job she remembered him having, although in the winter he'd go out on the ice with his nets and catch fish. Later on, he worked for WPA (Works Progress Administration) during the war. For 2 weeks of work, he made $24. The check came in the mail. She remembered her mom waiting for it to come. Money went further back then.

Germaine says her dad didn't really do a good job of taking care of his family. In those days, everyone had a lot of kids. She thinks he thought that the kids would support him when they got older. He lived with Isabelle for a long time; she took care of him.

According to his WW2 draft report, Joseph Bero was of medium height and medium build. He had dark brown hair and blue eyes.

Herbert G. Wickman

Herbert G. Wickman, 87, of Porterfield, died Monday, Aug. 31 at his home.

The son of Herbert and Blanche (Savard) Wickman was born on June 30, 1922 in Wisconsin. He married Beatryce J. Malmstadt on April 12, 1944 in Marinette while on leave from the United States Army. They spent time together outside Camp Polk, La. until he was sent overseas with Company C, 60th Armored Infantry Battalion, 9th Armored Division.

He fought in the Ardennse ( Battle of the Bulge), the Rhineland and Central European campaigns. He was wounded in action after crossing the Remagan Bridge over the Rhine River trying to take down the Town of Ittanbach, Germany. He rejoined the company after two days and met the Russians on the Elbe River. He was a platoon Sergeant and eventually was acting First Sergeant. He was presented with the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and Good Conduct Medals. He was discharged in October 1945. He worked at Lloyd Manufacturing Company for 13 years and then became a letter carrier for the Marinette Postal Service for 23 years, retiring June 30, 1984 at the age of 62.

Gary Harlan Bero

Thursday, August 02, 2012

Gary Harlan Bero, 64, passed away Sunday, July 29, 2012, in Menominee, Mich. He was born November 3, 1947, in Menominee, Mich. to Edwin and Arlyss Bero.

As his friends and family will attest, Gary believed a life well lived must include equal doses of adventure, storytelling and family. Adventure was found exploring the Bahamas aboard his sailboat, which provided no end to the stories he always had to share with friends and family, and he loved nothing more than to be surrounded by those closest to him, his beloved wife and children.

Gary is survived by his seven children: Shawn and Jason Boorman, Jamie Bero (granddaughter, Mya), Michelle (Zak) Anderegg, Savannah (Shawn) Sutherland, Micah Bero and Brianna Bero; sisters: Julie Decker, Pam Bero and brother, Jeff (Donna) Bero. Gary was preceded in death by his wife, Terry (Sindorf) Bero. Celebration of life will be this Saturday, August 4th at 4 p.m. at the back stage area of Stephenson Island. "Quaff a few" in his memory while sharing stories and enjoying drinks and food.

ANDERSON- BERO

St. William's Church was the scene of the wedding of Eileen Marie Anderson and Gary H. Bero on Saturday, June 8. The Rev. Fr. Louis P. Brackett and the Rev. Erickson officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Anderson of Rt. 1, Box 131 - A. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Berg, 4018 N. 13th St.

The bride wore a white full-length A-line dress with a scalloped lace overskirt and a two-tiered elbow-length bouffant veil. Her bouquet consisted of white carnations mixed with pink roses.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Roy Anderson, US 41, sister-in-law of the bride. She was dressed in an aqua dress with a lace bodice and taffeta skirt covered by sheer rayon georgette. White and aqua carnations made up her bouquet.

Bridesmaid Julie Bero, sister of the groom, was attired like the matron of honor.

Roy Anderson was best man and Donald Anderson was an attendant. Both are brothers of the bride. Ushers were Jeff Pogrunt, a friend of the groom, and Jeff Bero, brother of the groom.

TERESA M. BERO

Theresa M. Bero, 46, died August 28, 2009, at her home in Conway, S.C. after a courageous battle with brain cancer. She was born July 14, 1963, in Hartford, Conn. to Gwendolyn Baker and Thomas Sindorf.

Terry attended and graduated in 1981 from Marinette Senior High School. On November 5, 1988, she married Gary Bero. Together with their children they lived for a period of time in Menominee, Mich.; Indiantown, Fla. and most recently settled in Conway, S.C.

While she was a proud homemaker, her most beloved achievement was the raising of her beautiful children. Her days were filled with spending time with them and using her amazing creative skills. She was an active member of the Collins Park Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses in Conway, SC. As in her life, her final days were spent surrounded by family and friends. Terry's life would seem too short to many, but those who knew her understood that the quality of existence far exceeds the quantity of time in which one lives. Her generosity, genuine kindness and love toward others brought so much happiness to family, friends and strangers. Her example in living gives us all courage and hope and reminds us of the preciousness of life.

We would also like to thank Dr. Pierre Giglio and his staff at Hollings Cancer Center in Charleston, SC; the staff at MUSC and Nicki Cox, RN and the entire staff of Winyah Hospice Group who provided exceptional care and support for her and for the family.
