enlarged or completely rebuilt, by Capt. Joseph Barss, who married Olivia, daughter of Judge Elisha DeWolf. A few rods further west still, on a knoll from which a charming view of the dykes could be had, stood the grantee house of Benjamin Peck's younger brother, Cyrus Peck. The next house westward, standing almost but not quite on the site of the large building later erected by Mr. William Redden and known as the "Riviere House", was owned by Moses Stevens, who finally removed to Gaspereau. On the site of the Colonial house, built about 1840 by Mr. Caleb Handley Rand and now owned by Col. Wentworth Eaton Roscoe, stood the house owned and first occupied by Henry Magee, in which at that time lived Mrs. Joseph Allison. In a small house on the south side of the road, afterward bought and added to by Hon. James Delap Harris, for years his residence, and after he moved across the road to the "Whidden House" the home of his son, William Harris, Q. C., lived Robert Westcott, a blacksmith. In the house inherited by Deaconess Alice E. Webster from her father, the late Mr. Henry Bentley Webster, lived Dr. Isaac Webster, Kentville's first physician. About four rods back of the "Red Store" diagonally, stood a gambrel-roofed house, probably first owned by James Fillis, and it would seem kept by him as an inn. In that house, at the period of which we write, lived Mrs. Dennis Angus, a widow, whose husband had once been High Sheriff of Halifax County. Almost on the site of the house which Mr. Benjamin H. Calkin afterward owned, stood the old Fitch or Bragg or Denison house, with a blacksmith shop near. In 1813 the house was occupied by Mr. Handley Chipman. Next came Mr. Silas Masters' house, a little above the present Baptist Church, for many years now the property of his son, Mr. Charles Masters. In a log house where Mr. Herbert Denison's house stands lived Thomas and Samuel Tupper. Of these men, Thomas later moved to Aylesford, and Samuel to Cold Brook, to a farm in recent times owned by Thomas Griffin. Their home and farm in Kentville the Tupperes sold to Major Timothy Barnaby, who later re-sold it to Mr. Samuel Denison. The "Colonel Moore place" had previously been owned by Col. Henry Gesner of Cornwallis, but from him had passed to James Prentice Harris, the latter selling it to Col. Moore, who thereafter occupied it.

On the place once owned by Mr. Charles Smith, now in the possession of Frederick Mitchell, lived George Harrington, father of William and Robert Harrington. At Cold Brook was what is known as the "Davidson Place", now the property of Mr. Peter Innes, but who occupied it at the period in question no one remembers. In 1812 Patrick Fuller purchased a building already standing, which as we have said, he opened as a store, the location of it being near the eastern corner of Main and Church Streets. This store occupied almost, if not quite, the site of the small cottage afterward known as the "DeWolf House", which stood a little to the west of the James Neary house. Close beside it, probably to the east, stood another store, kept by William Hunt. This gentleman who married Jane, daughter of John Barnaby and his wife Rebecca (Chipman), and niece of Hon. Samuel Chipman, while he was in Kentville studied medicine with Dr. Robert Bayard, and when he had obtained his profession removed to St. John, New Brunswick, and practised there. Before he left Kentville he built the house in the grove afterward owned and occupied by Dr. William Bennett Webster. Some time after 1813 Dr. Isaac Webster removed the Fillis house and built in its stead a Masonic Hall, half of which, however, was never roofed in. This hall, which was the first public hall erected in Kentville, was after three or four years taken down. It stood almost if not quite on the site of the Bragg Inn, this site being later occupied by the "Victoria House". At this time George Chipman was High Sheriff, and he of course lived in the house he had recently built. Until 1812, or thereabouts, when he built his new house, Sheriff Chipman lived in the jail building; after he moved from that building his brother Charles, who was then Deputy Sheriff, resided there instead. At some period during Dr. Robert Bayard's residence in Kentville he built the house that Mr. Stephen Harrington Moore, Q. C., afterward for many years owned and occupied, and where he died. Exactly how many years Dr. Bayard lived in the house we do not know.

Halls; at Falmouth Ferry, Smith's; at Halifax River, Frame's; then in succession: Bishop's; DeWolf's; Fillis'; Willoughby Farm; Calkin's; and Marshall's, the distance between Andrews and Hall's and Marshall's being given as thirty miles. At some later time, but just when we do not know, Cyrus Peck opened his grantee house as an inn. Mr. Peck was one of two brothers, of the well known Peck family of Lyme, Connecticut, both brothers having places in what is now the eastern end of Kentville. His first wife was Mary English, daughter of the widowed Cornwallis grantee, Mrs. Abigail English, and a sister of Mrs. Samuel Willoughby. Mrs. Peck died in 1808, but her husband soon married again, and until his death in 1812 continued to keep the inn. For a while after his death the house still remained open to strangers, but Angus', farther west, near the corner where the Red Store is, and Bragg's still farther west, shared the honours with it. Finally, largely it is said through the enterprise of the merchant, Caleb Handley Rand, the "Kentville Hotel" was built, and the other inns went out of existence. On the site of Mr. Peck's house, which as an inn was known as the "Royal Oak", stands now the handsome residence of Mayor Harry Hamm Wickwire. The old house was reached from the post road by a picturesque flight of wooden steps, at the top shaded on one side by a magnificent oak, on the other by a large willow. The house itself, which Mr. Peck at some time after he built it must considerably have enlarged, was destroyed by fire in 1881. Shortly after this Mr. Wickwire purchased the hill on which it stood and there erected his house. In 1904 Mr. Frederick Wickwire bought the property of which the hill was originally a part, and built the house in which he lives. Precisely how early a stage-coach line was established between Halifax and Kentville we do not know, but in 1829, it is said, Mr. John Whidden was instrumental in having the stage line extended from Kentville westward to Annapolis Royal. Until the stage-coach was supplanted by the railroad in 1869 the Kentville Hotel was the headquarters of stage travel between Halifax and Annapolis. Back of it, fronting on the Kentville brook, were the great stables, in which the coach horses were stalled and baited, and whence they were taken every day in summer to the brook for a swim in the "deep hole".

The first Kentville school-house stood almost opposite the jail, near what was later the entrance to the Lydiard place. It was erected probably between 1826 and 1829, and was a very small building. Long after the second school-house was built it was moved to the northeast corner of Main and Church Streets, a little to the west of the "DeWolf house", where it finally became a cobbler's shop or a residence for very poor people. The second school-house was also built on Cornwallis Street, but on the site of what is now Mr. James Seeley's store, in "Lovett Block". This building stood until the present school-house was built on Academy Hill. To erect the first school-house a company, composed of the leading men of the village, was formed, and the subscriptions they made were supplemented by a small grant from the government. In the very first years of the use of this school-house it is said that men taught there named Masters, Fisher, and Noble, after them coming in succession, Charles Chipman, a Mr. McSweeney, and a Mr. Hall. Between 1825 and 1831, Andrew Black, a Scotchman and Presbyterian, taught there "an excellent school". Exactly how long his incumbency lasted we do not know, but he died at the Elderkin place, where he had a home with Mr. John Terry, shortly before 1831. At his funeral the school children walked in procession, the little girls dressed in white. Under his instruction, came most of the Kentville boys of the time, among these William and Charles Whidden, John Chaloner Chipman, Robert and William Bayard (sons of Dr. Robert Bayard), William Harris, and George Masters. Not only Horton boys but many Cornwallis boys came to his school. Mr. Black's immediate successor was Mr. Samuel Kirkpatrick, a very estimable man, born in Antrim, Ireland, of North of Ireland Scotch parentage, who in his youth had studied for the Presbyterian ministry. Early renouncing the Calvinistic creed, he taught school for a while in his native land, but in 1812 came to America. A little earlier than this his father had emigrated to Pennsylvania, leaving his family behind him. When the wife with her children sailed to join road to the summit at a point called the 'Look Off'. I know of no other hill or mountain which gives the reward that this one does in proportion to the effort required to climb it. Many a rough White Mountain scramble up three thousand feet yields nothing like the view which this hill affords. The Nova Scotian glories in the fact that from it he can see into seven counties, and can count prosperous farms by the score, and apple-trees by the hundred thousand. From the shores of the basin westward, through the valley between the North and South mountains, well-tilled farm lands reach towards Annapolis as far as the eye can see. It is a patchwork of which the Maritime Provinces are and may well be proud, that quilted landscape, with grain and potatoes, orchard and hayfield, feather-stitched in squares by zigzag pole fences. Were this the whole or the essence of the view from the Look Off it would not be worth writing about, for farm lands by themselves, or with a frame of rounded hills, are neither novel nor inspiring. That which stirs in this view, is the mingling of Minas Basin, its blue water and dim farther shores, with Grand Pré, and the other dike lands and with the red bluffs of Pereau. The patchwork and hills serve only as contrast, back-ground, filling, to the pronounced features of sparkling sea, bright green meadows cleft from the sea by dikes, terra cotta sands and bluffs, and the forest-covered ridge leading towards half-concealed Blomidon, the monarch of this gay and sunlit realm. It was dreamlike to see the tide creeping in over the shining red sand and ooze, and changing their vivid tints by blending with them its own colours, to make tones strange both to sea and land. The wide expanses of mud left bare by the tide told in their own way the story of the Acadian dike builder."

By the beginning of the last decade but one of the 19th century, Kentville as the shire town of the county, and the headquarters of the Dominion Atlantic railway, had attained sufficient importance to ask for incorporation. Accordingly, on the 7th of December, 1886, articles of incorporation were granted it, and on the 21st of the following January the first annual meeting of the rate-payers was held. The object announced in the proclamation for the meeting, was "to receive a report on the accounts and the condition of the public services of the town; to receive an approximate estimate of the income and expenditures of the current year; to approve or otherwise of a proposal to convert the temporary school loan of a thousand dollars into a debenture loan of like amount, at a reduced rate of interest, etc., etc". The first election of town officers was held February 1, 1887, the result being that John Warren King was elected Mayor, and James William Ryan, Robert Silas Masters, William Eaton, Charles Frederick Cochran, Thomas Pennington Calkin, and Kenneth Sutherland, Councillors. The first meeting of the new Council was held, March 1, when Judge John Pryor Chipman was elected Recorder, and William Eaton, unanimously, Town Clerk and Treasurer. His acceptance of the latter office removed Mr. Eaton from the Council and his place on this board was filled by the election of Charles Smith. The auditors elected were Col. Leverett de Veber Chipman, and Arthur E. Calkin.

The successive Mayors of the Town since incorporation have been:

John Warren King	Charles Frederick Rockwell
Judge John Pryor Chipman	William Yould
Henry Bentley Webster, M. D.	Charles Frederick Rockwell
Brenton Halliburton Dodge, M. P. P.	Col. Wentworth Eaton Roscoe
James William Ryan	Henry Bentley Webster, M. D.
Robert Silas Masters	Harry Hamm Wickwire

On the death of William Eaton, Town Clerk and Treasurer, in 1893, Frank Herbert Eaton, D. C. L., was appointed in his father's place. Dr. Eaton held office, performing the duties largely through a secretary, until January 10, 1898, when the present incumbent, Mr. John Carroll, was appointed. Before 1888 the only towns in the Province incorporated, besides Halifax, were Dartmouth, Pictou, Windsor, New Glasgow, Sydney, North Sydney, and Kentville.

Across the Cornwallis river from Kentville, on the main roads that run north, for many years have stood some small scattered houses, owned and occupied by people of the African race. From the

Of these converts from Anglicanism to Baptist tenets, the two strongest minds were Edmund Albern Crawley, and James William Johnstone. It is doubtful, indeed, if on the whole American continent two intrinsically greater men in their time could have been found. Dr. Edmund Albern Crawley, born in 1799, was the son of a retired naval officer, who had settled at Sydney, Cape Breton, where he lived the life of a cultured English gentleman. Prepared by his father for King's College, Windsor, Edmund Crawley graduated at that college in 1820, and in 1822 was admitted to the Nova Scotia Bar. His career began brilliantly, but after his secession from St. Paul's and his union with the Baptists he felt impelled to study for the Baptist ministry, and in 1830, in Providence, Rhode Island, was formally ordained. Returning to Halifax he now became pastor of the Granville Street Church, and this position he filled faithfully until 1839. The Hon. Judge James William Johnstone was the fifth son of Dr. William Martin and Elizabeth (Lichtenstein) Johnstone, and was born in the Island of Jamaica, August 29, 1792. His early education was obtained in Edinburgh, but coming to Nova Scotia he studied law with his brother-in-law, Judge Thomas Ritchie of Annapolis. After his admission to the bar he practised for a short time in Annapolis, then for a little while in Kentville, but later he became a partner with Hon. S. P. Robie in Halifax. From 1843 until his appointment to the Bench as Judge of Equity and Judge of the Supreme Court of the province, he was the able leader of the Conservative party in Nova Scotia. He was made a member of the Council in 1838, Attorney General in 1843, and Judge in 1869. On the death, in 1873, of the Hon. Joseph Howe, for a short time governor of the province, Judge Johnstone was appointed governor. At the time of his appointment he was in Europe for his health and though he accepted the appointment he did not live to get home; he died at Cheltenham, England, November 2, 1873. To the distinguished advocacy of Rev. Dr. Crawley and Hon. Judge Johnstone the Baptist Academy at Wolfville largely owed its beginning.

While Dr. Crawley was pastor of the Halifax Granville Street

Church, to supplement his small salary and to gratify his love for instructing and otherwise helping young men, he was teaching classes in advanced subjects in the Dalhousie College building. Shortly before 1838, to meet the urgent needs of the province, he suggested a plan for the opening of Dalhousie. The plan was adopted, and he himself was promised by the governors a place in its faculty. When the college was opened, however, Presbyterian bigotry had asserted itself, and because he was a Baptist, Dr. Crawley had not received the appointment. This violation of good faith on the part of the governors of Dalhousie and their narrow sectarianism, was promptly condemned by Dr. Crawley's friends, and especially his associates in the secession from St. Paul's who were now members of the Baptist Church of which he was pastor. Stung by the personal slight to so noble and cultured a gentleman as their friend and pastor, and to the religious body to which they had given their mature allegiance, and urged on by the pressing necessity for a college where truly liberal principles should obtain, they got together and in conjunction with the intelligent Baptists of King's and others of the western counties of the province, determined to found a third college at Wolfville, where already the Academy was doing successful work.

To all broad-minded men in the province the establishment of one small college after another seemed a calamity. In the House of Assembly a few years later, the Hon. Joseph Howe unsparingly condemned the narrow Presbyterian bigotry which had made it impossible for the Baptists to throw in their lot with Dalhousie, but the mischief had been done, the Baptists felt that they had been insulted, and on the 15th of November, 1838, at a meeting in Horton of the Baptist Educational Society, it was unanimously resolved to establish a college at Wolfville at once. On the 20th of January, 1839, in the building of the Academy, the classes of "Queen's College" began. For two years the legislature, a majority of whose members properly felt that in a province whose whole population was less than 203,000 the establishment of a third college was a fatal mistake, refused to grant the Baptists a charter, but the

Professor Simon Newcomb, LL. D., D. C. L., etc., etc., the great geologist, though born in Wallace, Cumberland County, was of the King's County Newcomb family. A bibliography of his writings, which were very numerous, was made in 1905 by his relative, Professor R. C. Archibald of Brown University, who

James Edward DeWolf, George Dodge, Henry Hamilton, and Daniel Moore. About 1843, the Temperance cause began to be advocated in the county, and divisions of the "Sons of Temperance" to be established. In 1844, the weevil, or wheat-fly, first appeared in the county; the next year this insect almost completely destroyed the wheat crop.

In 1847, there was a general failure of the potato crop, caused by rot. In 1849, the summer was unusually dry. In 1851, a light-house was built at Horton Bluff. It was a square, white building, standing ninety-five feet above high water, and it had a fixed white light.

In 1852 and '53, as we have mentioned in a previous chapter, a potato disease swept some parts of the United States, and consequently there was great demand in New England for Cornwallis potatoes. In September, 1852, potatoes brought forty cents a bushel; before navigation closed they rose to seventy cents; in the spring of 1853 they brought a dollar a bushel. This unusual price for what was then the most generally cultivated King's County crop, brought a great deal of money into the county.

In 1852, a post-office was established at lower Horton, the post-master appointed being J. Borden. In this year also, Professor Isaac Chipman and some of his students at Acadia college were drowned in Minas Basin.

In 1854, a post-office was established at Aylesford, the post-master appointed being — Van Buskirk.

In 1858, a ladies' seminary was opened at Wolfville, with Rev. John Chase as head master.

In 1861, gold was discovered in a small brook which runs into Halfway River, about six or seven miles south of Wolfville. In this year real estate in the county by assessment was valued at $3,775,928; personal property at $649,492. In this year, also, diphtheria was an epidemic, a hundred and forty-four persons dying in the county in the course of the year. In two Horton families, one containing six, the other seven children, eleven children died.

In 1862, the Minas Marine Insurance Company, was founded by John W. Barss, Joseph R. Hea, William DeWolf, Ezra Churchill, James W. Harris, and John L. Brown. In 1865 an agency of the People's Bank was established at Wolfville, and John W. Barss was appointed its agent.

In the autumn of 1869, occurred the great "Saxby gale", and a high tide which did great damage to the dykes.

In May, 1888, the legislature superseded in the office of Registrar of Deeds, the Hon. Samuel Chipman, who had reached the great age of ninety-eight years and was afflicted with blindness, and so was incapacitated from discharging the duties of his office. The act superseding him speaks of "his long and faithful service to the public", and provides that his successor shall pay him for the rest of his life, from the fees of the office, four hundred dollars.

June 4, 1892, a fearful electrical storm passed over the province. In King's County it began about 9 o'clock in the evening and continued almost an hour. The wind was unusually high, the lightning was the fiercest ever known in the county, and the rain, mingled with hail, was very heavy. As the effect of the storm, ornamental trees were uprooted, orchards were badly damaged, barns were blown down, the windows of houses were broken, and in some cases cattle were killed by falling timbers.

Among notable persons who in recent times have visited the county, has been his excellency, Lord Stanley, Governor General of Canada, who with Lady Stanley, their four children, and suite, spent a short time in driving about Kentville, in October, 1890. In the absence of the Mayor, Judge Chipman, who was ill, Barclay Webster, M. P. P., Recorder, on behalf of the citizens of Kentville, presented his Excellency with a loyal address. The Town officers signing the address were: Judge John Pryor Chipman, Mayor; Barclay Webster, Recorder; James W. Ryan, Robert Silas Masters, Charles F. Cochran, William Yould, Robert Harrington, and Henry Lovett, Councillors; William Eaton, Treasurer and Clerk.

too, he was on his way to the place where his men were at work, carrying them their dinners. Again he was seized by the skulking Miamaes, and hurried away toward Shubenacadie. After reaching one of the lakes, the Indians stopped to take a meal. For a special treat, Mr. Orpin was carrying a bottle of rum to his men with their dinners. At the lake the Indians drank the whole of it, and it made them helplessly drunk. This was good fortune for the captive. He reached Halifax again with the scalp safe on his head. This last experience made him more cautious for a long time. The stony ground in Dartmouth, and his trouble with the Miamaes, induced him to give up his Dartmouth lot and commence anew on the Halifax side of the harbor.

"Some years later, he went to the North West Arm. He never returned. Diligent and thorough search was made for him; but he could not be found. The belief at the time was the Indians caught him again and took secret revenge on him in torturing him to death at their leisure.

"His son, Joseph Moore Orpin, married Miss Anna Johnson, of Halifax. Shortly after their marriage, they moved into the wilderness in the township of Aylesford. The land on which they settled was on the southern slope of the North Mountain, just north of the Episcopal church, in Aylesford. There they began life under shadow of the forest primeval.

"In 1808, there was born to Joseph Moore Orpin and his wife Anna, a babe. They called his name John. Traveling from Aylesford to Morden, the place on the shore where the Acadians camped, one passes a large willow tree on the right hand side of the road, on the mountain side. This tree marks the old Orpin homestead. To support itself, this venerable willow, about seven feet in diameter, grasps the side of the mountain in a firm embrace. Its annual rings register the history of Aylesford. It was here that John Orpin first looked out upon the world. A picturesque view he had from his cradle on the mountain side.

"With ninety years now sitting gracefully on his venerable brow, he is spending the summer evening of his long life in a cozy cottage, nestling among the shrubbery just out of the reach of the waves of the Bay of Fundy, and on the spot where the Acadians spent their black winter. The ninety winters which have gone over his head have not wrought great havoc on his manly form. In his prime he stood about six feet high. His body in mould and grace was like a Greek statue—his brow high and intellectual, his nose prominent and of the Roman type, his mouth finely formed, indicating mildness and solidity of character; arms and legs symmetrical and firmly knit together with heavy muscles and nerves magnetic, mercurial and ready at the call of his will, to flash into his muscular system almost superhuman power."

THE OSBORN FAMILY

The Osborn family is said to have been transplanted to Nova Scotia from Martha's Vineyard, and this statement is probably true. Nov. 24, 1774, Sarah Osborn, dau. of Samuel and Sarah Osborn, was m. at Passamaquoddy (either in Maine or in New Brunswick), by John Curry, J. P., to Charles Skinner. Ann Osborn, sister of Sarah, was m. in Cornwallis in 1778, to William Allen Chipman, and Ann is said to have been of St. John, N. B. Wilmot Osborn, a brother of these women, m. in Cornwallis, June 17, 1800, Lydia, dau. of Robert and Jerusha (Bill) Kinsman, (2) March 7, 1810, Sarah, dau. of Abraham and Elizabeth Seaborn Wolfe (Woodworth) Masters.

The name "Wilmot" suggests the possibility of a connection between the Wilmot family of N. B. and the Osborns, and we have also the significant fact that the mother of Lemuel Wilmot, founder of the New Brunswick Wilmot family and grandfather of Sir Lemuel Allen Wilmot, governor of N. B., after her first husband, Ezekiel Wilmot's, death was m. to Jonathan Osborn or Osborne.

Wilmot Osborn of Cornwallis and his second wife Sarah (Masters) had children: Mary Lavinia, b. Nov. 26, 1810; John, b. Aug. 2, 1812; Sarah Alice, b. May 12, 1814; Abraham Masters, b. WOODWORTH FAMILIES

The Woodworth families of King's County are all descended from Walter Woodworth, who is said to have come to N. E. with Governor Winthrop in 1630. The name of the family he founded in N. E. was at first Woodward, but in passing from Mass. to R. I., it became Woodworth. The Woodworth grantees in Cornwallis were Amasa, Benjamin, Silas, Thomas, and William Woodworth. In Horton, grants were given to Benjamin and Joseph Woodworth, the latter being a son of Ebenezer (Benjamin, Walter, Walter), and b. in Lebanon, Oct. 19, 1724. THE MARTIN FAMILY

ROBERT MARTIN

The Martin name appears in Falmouth records in 1780 when Robert Martin purchased land from C. Dewey; it has not been confirmed whether this branch of the Martin family belongs to the family founded by Brotherton Martin, the grantee at Horton Township; a number of Irish families settled in Nova Scotia at that time and it is possible that Robert Martin was part of that migration; 1 Mar. 1781 purchased land from Jeremiah Northup; listed in 1795 assessment roll; the name of John Martin also appears on this roll; m. Elizabeth (probably Northup) she was probably the dau. of Immanuel Northup of N. Kingston, R.I. and sister of Jeremiah Northup, the Falmouth grantee; a Mrs. Martin died at Falmouth on 14 Jul. 1783 - St. Paul's Records, Halifax, N.S.; Mrs. Martin mentioned in Capt. ADDITIONS TO SCOTT DIARY: A subscriber writes -

(This is the same thing as the George Fish Journal) ^{copy 2}

I have been following with great interest the extracts you are printing each week from a diary owned by a relative to the Misses Mary and Agnes Scott. The relationship was apparently through their mother, for I note that most of the family names mentioned in the diary are Newport township names, and the mother of Miss Agnes and Miss Mary was of Newport township stock. Her maiden name was Caroline Fish, and she was daughter to George and Martha (Miller) Fish of Poplar Grove (a part of the old Newport township), where Caroline was born in 1837. In 1860, she married James Scott of East Gore, and became mother of Lalia, Mary, and Agnes Scott. Mr. Scott had been married previously, to a daughter of Cyrus Mosher of Avondale, by whom he had three sons, Cameron, Cyrus, and Thomas.

Enclosed are a few notes which will identify the individuals concerned, which may be of interest to readers.

W. J. Mosher
1858 - Sept. 23: I. Harvey is Ira Harvey, son of Elkanah, son of Andrew, son of John Harvey, who came from Rhode Island to Newport township in 1761. Ira and his wife (who went by her middle name, Amelia) were parents of Alfred, who married Lillian Mosher. Ira's grand-uncle, Jim Harvey, had a family of 18.

1859 - May 10: Barz (Barzilla) Miller was a son of Isaiah Miller and his wife Margaret Mosher, daughter of Barzilla Mosher (and his wife Margaret Harvie), son of James Mosher, ancestor of the Mosheres of Hants County, who, with his wife, Lydia Allen, came from Rhode Island in 1760 and settled in Newport township. James was one of the original 70 proprietors and he built the first mill in the area.

1859 - June 21: This is Ira and Amelia Harvey; see under Sept. 23, 1858.

1859 - July 31: This would be Silvanus, eldest son of John Anthony of Newport, who died this day in his 16th year.

W. J. Mosher
1859 - Aug. 31: Asa Knowles of Newport was born in 1811 and died 1883; his wife was a daughter of the Rev. George Dimock, pastor of the Newport Baptist Church. Asa was "a deacon in the Baptist Church, a man of hasty temper, and, when aroused, he was accustomed to walk nine miles to the church at Scotch Village, to quiet his feelings." Asa was son of William (1772-1818), son of Capt. Henry (1708-1799 or 1800), son of Henry (1675-1740), son of William (1645-1727), son of Henry Knowles, born about 1609 in England. Asa's son George (1847-1916), was father of Mr. Clifford Knowles, now of Poplar Grove, whose wife is descended from John Withrow of Rawdon.

1859-Sept. 29: See under Sept. 23, 1858.

1859 - Nov. 10: Edward Smith, son of James Smith, died on Nov. 11th at Newport, in his 46th year.

1859-Dec. 20th: The initial I. should be J.; John G. Burgess of Cheverie and Hannah Malcolm of Lower Newport were married at Newport by Rev. J.M. McLeod.

1861-May 21: Ada DeWolfe Shaw, youngest daughter of Anthony Shaw of Newport, died, aged 8 years.

1864-May 2: Louisa DeWolfe Allison was the daughter of William and Martha (Irish) Allison of Newport and grand-daughter of John Allison, who came from Ireland to Nova Scotia in 1769 and eventually settled in Newport. Louisa was born in 1838 in Newport; Thomas Harris was a farmer from King's County; they had no children.

1864-May 16: John was born 1782 and married Hannah Smith, by whom he had ten children, one of whom was Joseph Allison, later High Sheriff of the County of Hants. John was son of John, who came from Ireland to N.S. in 1769.

1864-June 11: Duncan Scott was brother to James and therefore uncle to the Misses Agnes and Mary. He was also uncle to Mrs. Ben MacKenzie (mother of the Hon. A.W. MacKenzie), who is now in her 95th year. Duncan was born 1824 in East Gore and died 1867, same place. He taught school for a number of years.

1864-Oct. 2: I think that the surname must be McDonald rather than McDavid, for I have the record of a Mary McDonald, daughter of Francis, who died at Brooklyn, Sept. 30, 1864, and likely she was buried on the 2nd. She was in her 28th year.

1864-Oct. 10: See under June 11, 1864.

1867-March 19: James Whidden Allison (son of John, who came from Ireland in 1769) was born 1795 and died in 1867; he married Margaret Elder. For five years he represented the township of Newport in the Provincial Parliament, and he was father of David Allison, later President of Mount Allison University.

1868-Jan. 9: See under May 10, 1859.
