PETRONILLA, COUNTESS OF LEICESTER.
Grant by Petronilla, Countess of Leicester, to Gilbert de Seppe-heved, son of Edwin, of one virgate of land there.

*Vellum, with attached the Countess's fine pointed oval Seal in green wax, measuring $3\frac{1}{4}$ inches by 2 inches; her full-length
large fleur de lys. With her name round border.*

SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE NO. II.

Petronilla, Countess of Leicester, was the wife of Robert Beaumont, Earl of Leicester, who died in 1190. She was heiress of the house of Grantmesnil, and is said to have brought him the honour of Hinckley (Leicester). The Earl joined the rebellion against Henry II. in favour of Prince Henry, which broke out in April, 1173. In consequence, his English estates were confiscated, and an army was sent against his town of Leicester, which was taken and burnt down with the exception of the castle. He was later taken prisoner, with his wife, and they were sent to Henry and imprisoned by him at Falaise, till his return to England, when he brought them with him. On the accession of Richard, in 1189, he was re-instated in favour, and appointed at the coronation to carry one of the swords of state. In 1189 he went on pilgrimage to Palestine, and died in Greece on his way back.
