PREFACE.

Ir was not altogether intentional, this becoming the historian of the family here essayed to be shown genealogically. To explain let me say; incidentally making inquiry for some one to look at sundry records of Middlesex county, Conn., for the purpose of learning the names of certain of my own line of progenitors, I was referred to the late Hon. Edwin Stearns of Middletown, Conn. This gentleman having a taste for such research, Churin Steamy an extensive acquaintance and an ample library to consult, and with leisure also, offered to collect, for a mere nominal compensation, all the facts relating to our family, readily attainable in that neighborhood, from public or private records, from living witnesses and printed books. It is scarcely necessary to say that I requested him to proceed, and the result was (excepting some errors and inaccuracies) a fair beginning for a genealogical history of the descendants of our paternal emigrant ancestor, comprising several hundred names. Having thus formed for me the groundwork or foundation upon which I might build, should the materials be tolerably well gathered, a somewhat colossal superstructure, I very naturally, as genealogists at least will understand, fell into the desire of knowing something more of the matter.

It is perhaps unfortunate, that some other of the family (in place of leaving it for the present compiler) had not at an earlier period, say a half century before, caught the mania for coing this genealogy. One with the proper zeal and plenty of pocket money to pay expense of travel, might have saved from the mists of oblivion, not a few now lost branches, and regarding particularly the earlier generations, a more complete record.

But if the compiler of this volume at length voluntarily assumed the self-sacrificing office, he can perhaps have little cause for complaint, if in the twenty-five years past, he has appropriated much time and labor to the work, including thousands of letters written, and withal not a few dollars expended, for which he must of necessity, be in great part a loser.

Upon the whole, I think that the families herein displayed may very reasonably feel themselves obliged to me for the service; yet at the risk of losing half the credit for the philanthropy of the thing, I will be frank enough to say, that had not the research been a pleasurable pursuit, there would be no occasion for a vote of thanks to the undersigned, by the present generation, nor by the many which will no doubt succeed it.

It is proper here to mention the fact that the name of our family has gained, or suffered various mutations in form since the settlement of our early ancestor at Wethersfield, Ct., some 250 years ago. The fancies, I believe, of some have occasionally wrought changes for which the excuse does not appear

It was necessary for the compiler to adopt in this volume, some common form of the name, and whether he has judged properly and hit upon the true, original orthography or not is yet perhaps undetermined. We have no knowledge of the antecedents of our ancestor Thomas across the Atlantic. None, I dare say, will change the mode of spelling the name from anything said in this book, nor is it perhaps desirable, on account of identity in years to come.

In the progress of my investigations, I met members of a family distinct from ours, whose emigrant ancestor William Hulbert (of Roxbury and Northampton, Mass.) though cotem-porary with our own progenitor, was not of kin as far as known. As many individuals of both lines, however, use the same mode of spelling the name, it was important to collect the facts regarding the said William's family, and place the record by itself for reference, to avoid confusion. The descendants of William Hulbert are far less numerous than those of Thomas. It is is probable that the record of the family of William Hulbert which I have gathered will be published.

The vignette which appears on our title-page is borrowed from the compiler's book-mark; its use is to be shared between them; it is perhaps not inappropriate, symbolizing as it does an incident in our ancestor's experience at Saybrook.

I have received from a number of our family, copies and a description of a coat of arms taken from some English volume of Heraldry, supposed by my correspondents, or suggested by them, that we had some proper claim and interest in the ornament. As far as I can see we have no right to the coat spoken of. The subject is further referred to, and a drawing of the arms given in the Introduction. The fact is with very few exceptions, the early emigrants to New England, the founders of a great share of our American lines, were plebians; that large and respectable class of common people, who with their descendants, subdued, settled, and christianized New England and much of America. As a matter to be proud of we need scarcely attempt to look after a lineage more noble than we have at home, beginning when our ancestors first placed foot upon American soil. It is true that it would be gratifying to our curiosity at least, could we be furnished with a series of photographic pictures, and a faithful description of our ancestors in the old world, running back to the days before the use of spinning-wheel and loom, when our fore-fathers were clad in skins.

I am writing in the belief that our progenitors over the sea were merely honest burghers or plodders of the soil, bearing no taint of disreputable act, which had won high place or title, or eastles, or manors achieved by cruelty and crime. I would by no means be led to be uncharitable, but I have little respect for that horde of filibusters, whose services were rewarded with the avails of robbery, by that prince of plunder, William of Normandy.

It was deemed expedient, for the better order of the volume, to place the families of female branches in the Appendix.

Much care has been taken to copy accurately the items procured, and when statements were found to conflict, the most reasonable were chosen, though in this, as in other conclusions, I cannot expect entire immunity from error.

Loose and unreliable tradition, in place of written family record, has imposed much labor in verifying some reports and rejecting others; yet I have succeeded in finding living representatives, descendants of the six sons of our emigrant ancestor, Thomas, of Wethersfield.

Quite a number of pages or records of families, supposed to be our kinsman (the descendants of Thomas Hurlbut), which as yet are not fully identified, wanting a missing link of one name perhaps, are placed in the Appendix for future reference and search by parties interested.

I would make my sincere thanks to the numerous persons who have furnished me with information; yet not a few of those that have extended to me such favors, have passed beyond the acceptance of this acknowledgment, and their forms rest in the stillness of the grave. I must not omit to say that from the class of correspondents known as genealogists, I have received marked and painstaking favors; particularly are those kindnesses noticeable, coming from those not of the family. I need not recite their names, but will just speak of

as prominent for his numerous items, the scores upon scores of letters filled with facts, sought and ransacked for, among old documents, public and private, in crannies and cupboards, or in the memories of the aged; very useful to me was the knowledge he secured and so kindly gave.

I finish here all that seems to be demanded of me in this compilation; whatever I may have left undone, must devolve upon others.

INTRODUCTION.

The home of the parents of our emigrant ancestor, (whose Christian name was Thomas) whether in England, Scotland, or Wales, has not been revealed to us; yet it is reasonably supposed that it was somewhere upon that Island, Neither do we know the form in which those parents spelled their surname, nor indeed in what mode Thomas himself wrote the patronymic, after his arrival on this side of the Atlantic. It cannot be proven by early records, and if there were such records, the scribes of that day were often rather careless in their orthography, or at least were quaint and peculiar. It would seem that the atmosphere of the new world gave freedom to their pens, and not unfrequently originality to their autographs. This however is my suggestion merely, and I will now speak of some reports received in my correspondence during some years past. There is, of course, often to be met, the old story of the "three brothers" that came over, but the number for my enlightenment has occasionally been varied from two to four, though one old lady assured me according to her understanding of the matter, there were "seven brothers Hurlbuts who landed at Plymouth." One gentleman in Ohio wrote me that he had the tradition from his father that our emigrant progenitor was Welsh. Another, living in New York, had understood that the family was from Wales, and the name formerly was Hulburdt. Another very old gentleman says, that his uncle told him that the Hurlburts came from Scotland or Northumberland, England.

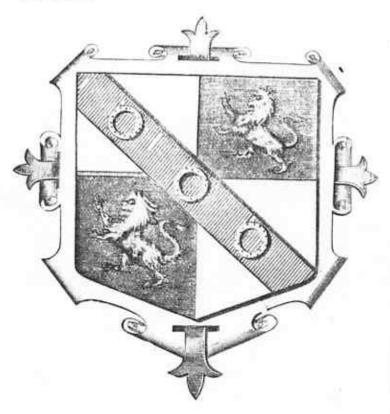

It was the suggestion of one intelligent individual that our name is an abbreviation of what was formerly Haliburton.

One correspondent wrote me, "I may say a word about our "misspelt surname, having counted some twenty errors from "Holabird to Hurlburt. The origin of the name ought to correct this. From a work by Bardsley, published in London in "1873, entitled 'Our English Surnames,' which you may have "seen, it appears that ours belongs to the class of nicknames "like Shakespeare. We are named after an old instrument of "war, called a Whirlbat. I think this can be found in "Webster's Dictionary; it was an instrument held or hurled "by the hand. " "There is no chance for "a second r, nor for omitting the r in the first syllable. "

" " " " I think we came of a fighter, one who "never gave up when in the right, without a fight."

Not a few communications addressed to me, have shown the great confidence of the writers in some story they had heard, relating to an "immense fortune" awaiting for the family, only needing to be proved up," and I have been questioned if that was not the purpose of my research, and wanting to know regarding the prospect of getting our fingers on the coin.

I have in the Preface noticed the fact that a deep interest had been exhibited with some of our relatives, in reference to a Coat of Arais, and I have now lying before me by the favors of various of our consins, six small drawings in different manner of finish, of the Arais, of which a copy of one is given below.

"Granted to Justice George Hurlbert, March, 1639. Quarterly Argent and Sable in the sinister chief and dexter base, each a lion rampant, or over all a bend gules, charged with the amules of the third."

The description I copy as it was sent me; whether correct or not, is more than I can determine. Drawings of the arms were made many years ago, for persons in America, deseendants of our ancestor Thomas, who have honestly, yet unwittingly, had the faith to believe themselves among the true heirs of the decoration. Those drawings, which were as I have learned, on parchment or large sized paper, I have no doubt, still, or at least some of them, hang upon the walls of the dwellings of representatives of the mistaken claimants. I am constrained to believe that there is a fascination pertaining to the pretty bauble. Yet, bow the progeny of Thomas Hurlbut of Wethersfield, who came to America certainly as early as 1636, can lay claim to contrarmor granted to Justice George Hulbert of England in 1639, in no manner proven, nor claimed to be a relative, I am not able to perceive. Frequent stories have been told, that this, that, and some other gentleman had visited England, and verified the statements of our relationship to certain English families, but unluckily for credence, no names or other particulars of affinity have at any time appeared.

It will be proper here to say that while one polite gentleman of our large family, sent me an impression of his Seal, bearing the arms as above, with some additions of his own, including a scriptural motto, another equally polite, forwarded a photograph of an heir loom in his family of which he was the possessor, being a silver goblet with said arms thereon engraved. The existence of the aforesaid heirloom, did not however precede the time of our Revolution.

At the risk of being tedious, I will add a paragraph or two, copied from letters of relatives and correspondents, and close this notice of the Arms. An old gentleman, (since passed away) wrote as follows: "My grandfather in some way procured from England a parchment with a hereditary title on it in print, of or for some ancestor or something or somebody (you see I do not know what) but I can just remember it. On it was printed the name Halbert. What became of it I don't know. It was in a fine frame, and hung up in the front room; we had no parlors in those days."

Another member of the family, a descendant of the same "grandfather" prefaces his reference to the Arms, by the remark that it may be "rather a hazardous thing to follow back the line of one's ancestry, for the reason that we might find some one or more of them had reached a point of elevation, that would'nt add much to the family pride."

Of the parchment, he says: "I haven't seen it for some years; about all I can recollect of it is a lion and unicorn rampant. Whether descriptive of the celebrated battle in which the Lion beat the Unicorn all about the town, I can't say; nor do I know whether any of my progenitors lost or won anything on the issue of the fight"

The computation of time by the Christian era was first introduced by the Abbot Dionysius, but the precise year when this was done has been at variance among historians. Dr. Blair placed it in the year 516, Prideaux in 527, and Beda (whom Dr. Holmes thinks gives it correctly) says the year 567. In the year 1752, the hitherto Old Style of the Julian Calendar, by which the year began 25th March, was abolished in England by Act of Parliament, and by which the first day of January was made the commencement of the year. On the day following the 2d of September, 1752, it was to be called the 14th, being eleven days added, or the time pushed so far ahead. Hence the New Style took the place of the Old, and upon many of the New England records of births, etc., which had occurred previous to the passage of that Act, happening between January 1st and March 25th, an additional year was placed to distinguish the time according to the new regulation. I have made my entries, agreeable to the information and figures procured; in the early part of the record herein given, occasionally will appear the additional year referred to, in manner for example, say March, 4, 1713.

The plan of this Genealogy will be readily understood without much explanation. Thomas Hurlbut is given as Number 1, and every descendant of the name of Hurlbut, whose name was received in time to be marshalled in the regular line, has a number. When further notice of any individual is continued, it is indicated by the plus mark +

The number of generations in America, preceding each head of a family, are represented by the line of paternal progenitors beginning with the emigrant Thomas. The female descendants with families are generally transferred to the Appendix.

Their descendants are numbered if they were received in time for such figures.

The various Indexes provided will no doubt be sufficient; they are as follows:

Descendants of Thomas of the name Hurlbut.

Names of wives of ditto, before marriage.

Names of husbands other than Hurlbut.

Names of persons not identified as the progeny of Thomas Hurlbut.

The following are various abbreviations used in this volume:
b. born; bel. believed; ch. child or children; ch'h. church;
d. died; dau. daughter; f. father; fam. family; gent. gentleman; grad. graduate or graduated; h. husband; m. married or marriage; mem. member; mo. month; per. perhaps; prob. probably; rec. records; rem. removed; rev. revolution; res. residence, residing or resided; sup. supposed; unm. unmarried; w. wife; wid. widow.

GENEALOGY.

1 Thomas Hurlbut came across the Atlantic, it is supposed, in the year 1635, for he was a soldier under Lion Gardiner, who built and had command of the fort at Saybrook, Conn. Lion Gardiner, it is said, was an Englishman, and by profession an engineer, and had been in Holland in the service of the Prince of Orange, but was engaged by the proprietors of the Connecticut Patent, issued by Charles II. to Lord Say and Seal, Lord Brooke and others, granting a large tract of territory on the banks of the Connecticut river, to erect a fortification at its mouth. Gardiner, said Judge Savage, embarked at London in the Bachilor, of only 25 tons, 11 August, 1635, with his wife and female servant, and eleven male passengers, and after a long and tempestuous voyage, arrived at Boston 28 of following November. It is believed, however, that Gov. Winthrop told that Gardiner sailed in a Norsey barque (a fishing vessel of the coast of Norway), 10 July, 1635. It is supposed that Thomas Hurlbut was one of the 11 passengers above referred to; but who his parents were, or when or where he was born, we have not been able to learn. We may yet pretty confidently believe that his birth occurred as early as the year 1610, and I am more inclined to believe that he was a native of Scotland than I am able, perhaps, to show satisfactory evidence for such belief. Mr. Hurlbut while at Saybrook, in an encounter with the Pequot Indians in 1637, was wounded by an arrow. This appears in a letter of Lion Gardiner, written in June, 1660, some 23 years after the skirmish with the Indians, addressed to Robert Chapman and Thomas Hurlbut, detailing incidents regarding the Pequot war, as far as came within his personal knowledge. Capt. Gardiner, in the communication named, says that Mr. Robert Chapman, Thomas Hurlbut and Major Mason urged him to do it, "and having rumaged and found some old papers then written, it was a great help to my memory." The document laid in manuscript until 1833 (173 years) when it was printed in Vol. 3, 3d Ser. of Mass. Historical Soc. Colls. The following is an extract:

"In the 22d of February, I went out with ten Men and three Dogs, Half a Mile from the House (Fort), to burn the Weeds, Leaves and Reeds upon the Neck of Land, because we had felled twenty timber trees, which we were to roll to the Waterside to bring home, every Man carrying a Length of Match with Brimstone matches with him to kindle the Fire withal. But when we came to the small of the Neck, the Weeds burning, I having before this set two Sentinels on the small of the Neck, I called to the Men that were burning the Reeds to come away, but they would not until they had burnt up the rest of their Matches. Presently there starts up four Indians out of the fiery Reeds, but they ran away, I calling to the rest of our Men to come away out of the Marsh. Then Robert Chapman and Thomas Hurlbut, being Sentinels, called to me, saying there came a Number of Indians out of the other side of the Marsh. Then I went to stop them, that they should not get the Woodland; but Thomas Hurlbut cried out to me that some of the Men did not follow me, for Thomas Rumble and Arthur Branch threw down their two Guns and ran awa; then the Indians shot two of them that were in the Reeds, and sought to get between us and Home, but durst not come before us, but kept us in a Half moon, we retreating and exchanging many a Shot, so that Thomas Hurlbut was shot almost through the Thigh, John Spencer in the back into his Kidneys, myself into the Thigh, two more shot dead. But in our Retreat, I kept Hurlbut and Spencer still before us, we defending ourselves with our naked Swords, or else they had taken us all alive, so that the two sore wounded Men, by our slow Retreat, got home with their Guns, when our two sound Men ran away and left their Guns behind them."

HURLBUT GENEALOGY.

Gardiner does not mention his estimate of the number of the assailants, but Underwood, in his History, says there were "a hundred or more."

Mr. Hurlbut was by trade a blacksmith, and after the war with the Pequots, he located and established himself in business at Wethersfield, Ct., and was one of the early settlers of that place, as well as first blacksmith. A single extract from the Colonial Records would seem to indicate that he was a good workman and charged a good price for his work: "March 2, 1642. Thomas Hallibut-was fined 40 shillings for encouraging others in taking excessive rates for work and ware." But this fine appears to have been "respited" Feb. 5, 1643, upon Peter Bassaker's tryal to make "nayles" with less loss and cheaper rates.

He seems to have been a man of good standing in the place; he was Clerk of the "Train Band" in 1640, Deputy to the General Court, Grand Juror and also Constable in 1644. It appears on the records that he received various tracts of land in the several divisions of the Town, which were recorded together in 1647. In 1660 the Town of Wethersfield granted Thomas Hurlbut Lot 39, one of the "four score acre lots" (in Naubuc, east side of the river), which he afterward sold to Thomas Hollister. For his services in the Indian wars, the Assembly voted him a grant of 120 acres of land Oct. 12, 1671. It is supposed that Mr. Hurlbut died soon after the last named date, as no evidence appears that the land was set off to him during his life. In that early day of the Colony, land was plenty and cheap, and no attempt appears to have been made to avail bimself of the bounty, nor even by his sons; it was not until on the petition of John Hurlbut, Jr., of Middletown, a was better and soldier, that it was set off.

It is told, and the tradition is not an unreasonable one to credit, that the house in Wethersfield, Ct., where Miss Harriet Mitchell resides in 1888, stands upon the site of the dwelling of the first Hurlbut who lived in the settlement. (Miss M. is said to be of the 6th generation from her ancestor Thomas Hurlbut.) That house of the early settler, as tradition gives, had peculiar attractions for the Indians, whether with the purpose to inspect the architecture of the edifice, or else to get a view of the proprietor of the mansion, for he had been an Indian fighter formerly, I cannot say; but often, when in the village, they were to be seen looking curiously in at the windows.

The Christian name of the wife of Mr. Hurlbut was Sarah, but nothing further is known; no date of birth, marriage, nor death. The dates of birth of five of their six sons are missing; whether there were any daughters or not, is not known. During the contention that existed in the Church of Wethersfield, the early records of both of the Town and Church, it is understood, disappeared.

2 Thomas Hurlbut, Jr.² (Thomas¹) was probably born in Wethersfield, Ct., but the date not ascertained. He learned the blacksmith's trade of his father and succeeded him in the business. He married (1) Lydia ———, married (2) Elizabeth ————. The town of Wethersfield 11 March, 1602, voted him a piece of land to set a shop upon. By the inventory of the estate of Thomas Hurlbut, Jr., of Wethersfield dated March 6, 168% (Probate Court Records, Hartford).

it appears that he died in Sept., 1689. Appended to the Inventory, are the names of his wife and three children. He left widow Elizabeth, and sons Timothy 9 years, Nathaniel 7 years, and Ebenezer 4 years, besides an older son Thomas. His brother Stephen was appointed administrator. His estate £57, 198., including blacksmith tools, household furniture, &c., and "8 shillings due from Thomas, Jr." (meaning his son no doubt) was declared non-solvent. I could not fall in with the suggestion of the late Hon. Edwin Stearns, that Thomas (son of the emigrant) did not enter into family estate until middle life, and that his first wife was the mother of all his children. Thomas was about fifty years old probably at his death; my belief is that the first wife was the mother of the son Thomas third (called "Thomas Jr."), in the Inventory, who became a resident of Woodbury, Ct., and that the three other children were those of the second wife. I venture to so record them here:

- 8. (1st m.) Thomas 3d. +
- 9, (2 m.) Timothy, b. 29 Sept., 1680. (His father died when T. was 9 years old, nothing learned of his further history.)

- 3 John Hurlbut? (Thomas!) was b. (prob. in Wethersfield, Ct.), 8 Mar., 1642. He learned the trade of blacksmith of his father, and after becoming of age, he worked at Wethersfield and also at Killingworth. At the age of 27, he received a proposition from settlers then planting the town of Middletown, to locate among them with his business, "and do the Town's work of smithing for seven years." He joined in such a contract, bearing date 25 Oct., 1669, and which he faithfully kept. He m. 15 Dec., 1670. Mary Deming, dan of John and Honor (Treat) Deming of Wethersfield. He was made freeman in 1671, and held the office and title of Sargent among the citizen soldiers. Sargent John Hurlbut d. at middle age; according to the Town Records 30 April, 1690, but by the Probate Court Records (prob. more reliable) his death occurred 30 August, of that year, aged 48. He made no will, but the inventory of his property was presented 9 Sept., 1690. Mary his widow with Capt. Nathaniel White, were appointed to administer; but as one child was yet unborn, the court ordered that "there shall be no distribution now made." The estate appears as follows: £373, s. 15, d. e; his house, shop and home lot £100, other lots £160, cattle &c., £46, smith's tools and iron £10. "June 19, 1696, the Court being desired," the estate was distributed. The wid. Mary was to have half the personal property, and one-third of the real estate during life; eldest son John to have a double portion, the other children a single one. The time of death of the widow is not learned; but few gravestones had inscriptions as early, and no deaths appear to have been reverded on the church books, until after that period.

10 Nathaniel Hurlbut (Thomas', Jr., Thomas') was b. in Werbersfield, Ct., in or about 1682, being 7 years old at time of his father's death in Sept., 1689. It is told, prob. with truth, that after his father's death he was taken by his Uncle Joseph Hurlbut of Woodbury, Ct., where he fived until manhood. His name appears upon the list of freemen, and he was taxed in Woodbury in 1712. He m. (1) 19 Oct., 1708, Sarah Jenner. Mr. Cothien gives from the records of Woodbury, the death of Sarah the woof Nathan Hurlbut, June 10, 1722. I am inclined to think she was the first w. of Nathaniel instead of Nathan. Sarah w. of Nathaniel was admitted to the Cong'l ch'h of Woodbury, 26 July, 1712, she having owned the Covenant, 25 July, 1708. I learned from Mr Stearns, that Nathaniel settled in Simsbury, Ct. May 9, 1759, the wid. Mary then of Farmington (prob.

To son John he gave the bond in the hands of John Hamlin, and the land where he had erected a house (with the home lot) upon the east side of the river (Chatham) with also all his interest in the undivided lands in Wethersfield. 20 David Hurlbut (John), Thomas!) was born in Middletown, Ct., 11 August 1688. He also was a blacksmith, having learned the trade of his father, and the first one, it is said of that occupation at Upper Houses (now town of Cromwell) where he first settled. There was laid out to him in the North Society, 15 March, 1712, four acres of land. In 1727, with Samuel Tracy, he rented a grist-mill for eight years. In 1730 he sells Daniel Hurlbut in South Lots, Middletown. In 1734 he sold his house and lands in Upper Houses, for £210, and moved to Chatham, Midddle Haddam Soc'y. The date of the death of his wife Mary is not learned, but he m. (2) in Middle Haddam, Mercy ----. He died 29 Oct. 1773, on the farm, as I am told, which he deeded in 1761 to his son Gideon, and where (in 1861) resides Jesse Hurlbut, son of Gideon, in what is now Portland, Ct. - 51 Thomas Hurlbut 4th3 (Thomas 3d3, Thomas, Jr.", Thomas1) was bap, in Woodbury, Ct., Dec. 1684. It is reasonably supposed, from various circumstances, that he lived in Wilton, Ct., and is the same known and called "Thomas Holybort," who died 16 Sept. 1753, said to be aged 67 years, though 69 years would have been more correct. There seems scarce any doubt that this Thomas was the father of Daniel Hurlbut, Senr., of Wilton; whether he had other children we are not advised. It is proper to remark that many of the descendants of this Thomas, as well as those of Gideon his brother, wrote (and many still write) the family name Harlbutt. Who the wife of Thomas was, I am not informed. I am advised, from the records, that "Thomas Holabord makes over to Fairfield" (now Weston) "8 May 1716" land in Fairfield, perhaps for road purposes. He was chosen with others by Wilton parish, "Dec. 8, 1735, to lay out a highway to the Ridge." It is believed by our correspondent Mr. Hoosear, that Thos. Hurlbut lived on or near what was since known as the old Harlbut homestead, where Daniel, Senr. and Jr. lived, and may have both been born.

- * 52 Gideon Hurlbut (Thomas 3d , Thomas, Jr. , Thos.) was born in Woodbury, Ct., bap. in do. 1688.

He removed to town of Westport, or perhaps to that part of the present town of Westport known as Green's Farms, with one of his sons, if not both, removed to Nova Scotia, where he purchased land. After the war however, he returned to Middle Haddam; but he had lost much of his property by depreciation and forced sales. About the year 1793, he rem, with his family to Wintonbury about 4 miles from Hartford, in what was since town of Bloomfield, where according to one account he died aged over a hundred years. Yet from another source I am told that he died aged 95 years, at the home of his grandson Russell on Christian Hill in Great Barrington, Mass.

Mar. 1709) dau. of Thomas Deming of Wethersfield. He lived some years in Newington, Soc. Weth., but rem. to Goshen, Ct. at time of its settlement about 1738. The first purchase of lands in Goshen made by Gideon Hurlbut, was from John Crane of Wethersfield, of ½ the proprietors, right, which belonged originally to Christopher Grimes. This was done at Wethersfield 7 Feb. 1738. The land upon which he settled in Goshen, was the North 1 of a second division Lot, laid out in the names of said Hurlbut and Grimes, containing in all 61 scres. The lot was divided between them by deed dated 24 Sept. 1739 "half that lot in Goshen, which we now live upon." He afterward owned the whole right of Mr. Grimes and was a landholder to the extent of one right. He is understood to have been a man of substantial character, and was frequently called to hold office in the town. He was early a mem. of the ch'h in Goshen. His home was on the esat side of West street, about 80 rods south of where the present road leaves said West street for Town Hill. He was generally called Lieutenant," and was still living when Mr. Hooker was settled there in Sept. 1791. Mrs. H. died in Goshen, 17 June 1798.

scendants are so confident however, that his name is placed with the others.

Thomas') was b. in Groton, Ct., the date however has me been learned. It is probable that Mr. Hurlbut first settled it his native town and where he resided some years, but he afterwards became a settler at Southampton, Mass., not however until the birth of a portion of his children. He was, as I lear from a memorandum in manuscript by his brother Dea. John Hurlbut Jr., a land surveyor, and was at the Connecticut settle ments on the Susquehannah, in 1772, and the spring of 17a and perhaps part of the succeeding year in that capacity. It is quite probable also, that he was there in the year 1770, and was the individual referred to in Miner's Wyoming (page 120) erroniously called "Christopher Hurlbut," employed by the Susquehannah company to make surveys. Christopher Hurlbut, son of Deacou John and nephew of Stephen, afterward become a settler and surveyor at Wyoming, and head without doubt the error. Stephen Hurlbut m. (1) Mary Morgan; m. → 264 John Hurlbut Jr., ³ (John, ⁴ Stephen, ⁸ Samuel, ² Thomas⁴) was b. in Groton, Ct., 12 March 1730, m. Abigail Avery (b. o. s. 1 April, 1735), whose father lived in Preston, Ct.

John Shirlbut

Mr. H. was a farmer and lived many years in Groton, or probably always, until his removal from the state. His farm was between two and three miles from Gales Ferry, and one half a mile from Lantern Hill. He was a man of considerable prominence in his neighborhood, having the confidence of his feller townsmen, active, patriotic, useful. With a tolerable English education for the time, and a fair penman, he was as I infe from the examination of some of his papers, occasionally chosen and officiated as selectman, and also as schoolmaster besides being the deacon of the church. In the movement which immediately preceded the Revolution, he was associated with Col. Ledyard, and several others in the town, as a conmittee of correspondence. There is preserved of his papers, full record or journal of his occupation from day to day in the year 1775, including the condition of the weather also, for every day of that year, with the exception of a few in the month of December. [A copy of that journal, made by m son, I sent to the Historical Society of New London, Co Among the entries of that journal, comprising the routine daily employment of a farmer of that time and locality, a the following; "winowing wheat," "butchering pork," "sho making," "carting wood," "drawing mill-logs," "sheling corn," "ploughing in oats," "sowing flax-seed," "mending oven," "shearing sheep," "planting," "mowing," "digging petatoes," "making cider," &c. &c. I copy here also the fo lowing from same ; "With ye Authority & Select men & choosing Taverners," " Annaversary fast," "21st about o'clock in ye morning Alarmed with Tydings from Boston (this was the news of the battle of Lexington in April;) upon which I set off to meet ye com" at ye ferry with ye Col; "a vised to ye Compy together, bro't orders to ye Captain "22d at Capt. "Ten sail of ships and transports appeared ye west end of Fisher's Island, caused a general alarm."

Dea, Hurlbut visited the Susquehannah valley as early as May 1773, having bought a right in the Conn., "Susquehannah Company," and arrived home in June of that year; in the autumn of '75 and '77, he was also in Penn. Selling his farm in Groton in the summer of 1777, he in the spring of 1778, with wife and children (excepting Christopher and John who left in February preceeding, for the same destination,) with two wagons, horses, cattle, sheep, and swine, left his late home in New England, for the Ct., colony on the Susquehannah. After crossing the Delaware, Mr. H. was taken with the prevailing "camp-distemper," and with Mrs. II, he stopped to regain his health, the others meanwhile moving on. On the way their daughter Abigail, aged 6 years, was taken with the common sickness, and at Lackawaxen or rather at what was Paupucke the little girl died. The delay caused by these misfortunes, very likely, was the occasion of their being spared the greater calamity of the massacre early in July of that year at Wyoming, whither they were bound. They removed to a farm in Shawasgunk, N. Y., where they tarried a while, and in November, 1779, arrived at the land of Mr. H. in Hanover on the Susquehannah. It is proper to say, that they were driven away for a while as it is undersood, and their house burned, whether by the Indians, or else by barbarous whites, who claimed to act for the State authorities of Pa., which for some years, were in collision with the Ct., settlers, regarding ownership and jurisdiction. Dea. H. was a member of the Ct. Assembly from Wyoming in 1779, '80, and '81, and in the absence of a clergyman in the settlement, he frequently officiated by preaching a sermon, etc. Of Mrs. H. she is said to have been of great excellence of character; a meek and devoted Christian." There is evidence too that her patiotism was no less than that of her husband, for it is told that she first proposed to send their two oldest sons (one aged 19 and the other 16) to aid in their country's necessities. She survived her husband many years; her grandson James Hurlbut informed me that he saw her at her son's house near Wilkesbarre, Pa., in 1805, where she was then living, cheerful, and ready to depart, which she did soon after, at the home of her son Naphtali in Pittston, Pa., 29 Nov. 1805. Dea. John Hurlbut had d. in Hanover, Pa., Sunday 10 March, 1782.

Stephen⁵, John⁴, Stephen³, Samuel², Thomas¹) was b. in Charleston, S. C., the first child of his parents. He is said to have been a remarkable boy, and was fitted to enter college at the age of eight years. He d. in Charleston, aged about ten.

Gen. Hurlbut studied and practiced law in S. Carolina, having been admitted to the bar in 1837. In the Florida or Seminole War, he served as adjutant in a S. C. Regt. He removed to Ill., in 1845 and settled in Belvidere in the practice of his profession; was member of the Ill. Constitutional Convention in 1847; for several terms member of Ill. Legislature. In May 1861 was appointed Brig. Gen of Ill., Vols; had command of Fort Donelson after its capture. Commanded 4th division and took part in battle of Shiloh, etc.; was made Maj. Gen.; was Res. Minister to Columbia 1869-72; member of Congress from Ill., 2 terms, and appointed by Pres. Garfield, Minister to Peru. He was without doubt a man of superior ability, and a brilliant orator. From a tribute paid to his memory after his decease, by Gen. John C. Long, Asst. Adj-Gen, of 4th Div., Army of the Tennesee, I make a brief extract. " April 6, 1862, at the commencement of the battle of Shiloh or Pittsburg Landing, when Gen. Prentiss' division was surprised and driven in, Gen. Hurlbut ordered me to form the division and order all the drum corps I could find to the head of the column, because as he said he made up his mind long before, that when he did go into battle with his division, it should be with music and flying colors; and so amidst the smoke and din of battle, and the retreating and demoralized troops from Gen. Prentiss' command, we moved rapidly to the front and formed in line of battle, just in time to check the advance of the enemy with a steady and well directed fire. When it is taken into consideration that Gen. Hurlbut had never been in a battle before, and had only had experience in the S. Carolina Militia, and as a captain of a Militia company in Belvidere, Ill., it is surprising how well and coolly he handled his division. During the early part of the engagement, he rode out in front of the division, mounted upon his large gray stallion, which made him a very conspicuous mark for sharpshooters, and surveyed the enemy through his field-glass for some time, and when he returned to the rear we remonstrated with him for the reckless exposure of himself, and his answer was that most of the division were strangers to him, and he was determined to convince them on the start that he was no coward. In fact, from that time forward none of us doubted his courage. All that is necessary for me to say in order to convey some idea of how terrific and destructive the firing was in front of the division during the two days continuous fighting, is, that we lost one man out of every three, or full one third of the whole division; and to show how dangerous it was to follow Gen. Hurlbut about during the battle, or to remain by his side, I will state the fact that out of the three orderlies that I detailed on Sunday morning to assist him in carrying orders, before night two of them were killed, and as for myself, it was a very severe strain upon my courage, and although I was not wounded, there was a bullet-hole through the top of my cap and another through my coat sleeve. * * * But perhaps the time when he displayed the best generalship, and when the division had the best opportunity of showing the mettle of which it was composed, was at the battle of Hatchie River. They moved rapidly across the river, filed right and left, faced to the front as coolly as if on dress parade, charged upon at least three times their own number, driving them three or four miles, pressing them so hard, that they nearly all threw away their accoutrements so as to be in light running order; and well they might, for Steve Hurlbut on his big gray horse, and the old 4th division were after them, and it was no child's * * * He had his faults, but his virtues so far out numbered them, that those of us who knew him best, forget them."

Gen. Hurlbut d. in Lima, Peru, 27 March 1882.

2456. George H.+

1462 Wm. Henry Hurlbut¹ (Martin Luther,⁶ Stephen,⁵ John,⁴ Stephen,³ Samuel,² Thomas¹) was b. in Charleston, S. C., 3 July 1827.

The following is copied from Johnson's Cyclopedia. "He was grad, at Harvard college 1847, at Harvard Divinity School in 1849; went the same year to the university of Berlin, and the next to Rome and Paris. In 1852 he entered Harvard Law School, and in 1853 went to the West Indies; in 1854 published Pictures of Cuba; in 1855 joined the staff of Putnam's Magazine and the Albion; in 1856 went to England; in 1857 joined the New York Times; in 1858 travelled through England, Germany, and Russia; In 1862 joined the New York World; spent 1866 '67 in travelling through Mexico, Austria, Hungary, and Italy; visited Suez in 1869; the Ecumenical Council at Rome in 1870; San Domingo in 1871; revisited Mexico in 1871, and again in 1872; in 1873 visited Spanish America, to Cape Horn, returning by Monte Video, Brazil, l'ortugal and England; author of Gen. McClellan and the Conduct of the War, 1864, etc."

It is generally conceded that Mr. Hurlbut has proved himself an accomplished editor, a writer of much force and brilliancy.

Mr. II. in answer to a communication addressed him by the compiler of this volume, said in his letter bearing date 14 April 1863, that his father was of the opinion that the family name should be spelt Hulbert, though he as well as all his sons with one exception (relating to Mr. W. H. H., to be referred to) had always written it Hurlbut. Mr. H. had frequently understood his father to say, that Stephen (the grandfather of my correspondent) had made the change to Hurlbut. This Mr. H. considered a mistake on the part of his grandfather, and he felt "quite convinced" that the name ought to be spelt Hulbert; yet, like all others who have entertained similar convictions, he has failed to present evidence to substantiate it. Of course I do not assert that his impression may not be correct, however skeptical I may be till the proof is forthcoming.

It was somewhat of an amusing incident, by which Mr. H. was forced to get back part of the way at least toward the orthography of his (supposed) old world fathers, and adopt an innovation for which it would seem he was scarcely ready. He said: "Some years ago I happened (my chirography not being absolutely perfect) to give an order for some visiting cards in London. The cards came home engraved Hurlhert, and as I was on my way to Paris and in some haste, I took them, and have ever since used that plate. This is however a mere compromise, and all persons, who respect etymological laws and the truth of history even in small matters, ought to spell the name Hulbert."

Mr. H. m. in Yorkshire, Eng., 9 Aug. 1884, Miss Katharine Parker Tracy of New York. The service was solemnized in the little parish church of St. Chads (Rev. Mr. Smyth officiating) near Kirkstall Grange, the elegant mansion of Mr. Ernst Beckett Denison (not far from Leeds) where the wedding party assembled. The gathering at the grange was a brilliant one, including many of the nobility and others of prominence. A merry breakfast was partaken of at the mansion after the open only; Mr. and Mrs. H. and her sister Mrs. Lee of New York soon started on a tour to the lakes of Cumberland.

PREFACE

Some twenty years ago, the research for this book began in a very modest way. It was always a dream that some day a book would result so that the data collected could be shared with other members of the Hurlbutt family. At long last this dream is becoming a reality.

Research has brought much satisfaction in corresponding with many Hurlbutts and Hurlbutt descendants who carry other names than Hurlbutt. For instance, in the 12th and 13th generations of the book, we discover that some are five generations away from the Hurlbutt name. This comes about since we have carried the female lines down along with the male lines. In this we have departed from the way in which The Burlbut Genealogy by Henry H. Hurlbut was written as he relegated the female lines to the appendix.

We have included many pictures and a few feature stories to relieve monotony from the "beyats", and to add interest. We have pretty largely restricted pictures to those who have gone before rather than include pictures of persons now living. One reason for this is that the author received very few current pictures, and the other reason is that we did not want anyone's feelings hurt.

There is so much more that could have been done, but in genealogy there is never a stopping place since bables are always being born, persons are yetting married, and deaths occur. It is the author's hope, however, that individuals who find their names in the book will wish to keep adding information to their particular sections, that it may be a continuing record.

The author wishes to take this opportunity to express sincere thanks and appreciation to all who have replied to various letters and requests we have sent out from time to time, who have sent in information, letters, clippings, and pictures, and especially to those who have written encouraging and appreciative letters. Many friends have been made through this effort, and we trust that the friendships made will be continued. It is a joy and a deep pleasure to be able to present this book at this time.

ENGLISH BEGINNINGS

Henry H. Hurlbut in The Hurlbut Genealogy did not go back farther than Thomas Hurlbut who emigrated to America in 1635. Neither has the author attempted this. However, Mrs. Henry C. Mittenzwei, of Imperial Beach, Calif., has written that there are some handwritten notes on the fly leaves of his copy of that book which are interesting though we have no proof of their authenticity. The book had belonged to Aeneas Hurlbut (#1287, The Hurlbut Genealogy). Presumably some of the notes were made by him, some by another person. Notes reveal that Aeneas died in 1862, not 1858. His 2nd wife was Lucretia Smith, b. 1819; d. 1878.

Aeneas Hurlbut, Jr. b. Apr. 8, 1848, at Lockport, N. Y., m. Addie Barclay at Belpre, Ohio, Oct. 11, 1875. She d. at Belpre, Ohio, Apr. 4, 1902. They had one son, Guy Barclay. Addic Barkley was b. Dec. 18, 1853, dau. of Rm. Barkley, b. Oct. 15, 1821 and Grace Pennock, b. Jan. 7, 1832, at Belpre, Ohio. Guy Barkley Hurlbut resided at Lincoln, Neb. (Note two spellings of Barclay - Barkley).

Further notes, presumably written by Aeneas, Sr., indicate that the family crest had been granted to John Buriblatt, of Farnham, County Surrey, England. A crude drawing of the crest and description of it follows:

Crest out of a Ducal Coronet or Talbots head Argent & gules, collared of the last and studded with the first.

Sable a cross between four leopards heads vissant de Or.

This crest is similar to the one used on the cover of this book which is taken from The Hurlbut Genealogy. We are not certain of its authenticity either; but it would seem there might be some basis of fact for it.

The name of Hurlbut first appears on English records in the year 1305 on a patent roll #33 of Edward the First, signed March 20, 1305. The notes do not give what spelling was used. Various spellings on English records are: Hurleburt, Hurlebut, Hurlebutte, Hurlblatt, Hulbert, and Hurlbut.

THE DESCENDANTS OF

NATHANIEL HURLBUTT (1760-1839)

Compiled by

EDITH H. HURLBUTT

The Hurlbutt family in the United States is a large one. There were 3,307 mentioned in The Hurlbut Genealogy by Henry H. Hurlbut, published by Joel Munsell's Sons, Pub., Albany, N. Y., 1888. The original spelling was Hurlbut, using one "t", so it would seem that all Hurlbutts and Hurlbuts are probably descended from the same Thomas Hurlbut who came to America in 1635.

To give the story of the beginnings of the Hurlbuts in the United States, we will quote from The Hurlbut Genealogy:

"The home of the parents of our emigrant ancestor Thomas, whether in England, Scotland, or Wales has not been revealed to us, yet it is reasonably supposed that it was upon that island.

"1. Thomas Hurlbut came across the Atlantic, it is supposed, in the year 1635, for he was a soldier under Lion Gardiner, who built and had command of the fort at Saybrook, Conn. Lion Gardiner, it is said, was an Englishman, and by profession an engineer, and had been in Holland in the service of the Prince of Orange, but was engaged by the proprietors of the Connecticut Patent, issued by Charles II to Lord Say and Seal, Lord Brooke and others, granting a large tract of territory on the banks of the Connecticut river, to erect a fortification at its mouth. Gardiner, said Judge Savage, embarked at London in the Bachilor of only 25 tons, 11 August 1635, with his wife and female servant, and eleven male passengers, and after a long and temptestuous voyage, arrived at Boston the following November. It is believed, however, that Gov. Winthrop told that Gardiner sailed in a Norsey barque (a fishing vessel of the coast of Norway), 10 July, 1635. It is supposed that Thomas Hurlbut was one of the 11 passengers above referred to; but who his parents were, or when or where he was born, we have not been able to learn. We may yet pretty confidently believe that his birth occurred as early as the year 1612, and 1 am more inclined to believe that he was a native of Scotland than I am able, perhaps, to show satisfactory evidence for such belief.

"Mr. Hurlbut was by trade a blacksmith, and after the war with the Pequots, he located and established himself in business at Wethersfield, Ct. and was one of the early settlers of that place, as well as first blacksmith....For his services in the Indian wars, the Assembly voted him a grant of 120 acres of land, 001. 12, 1671. It is supposed that Mr. Burdbut ofted soon after the last named date, as no evidence appears that the land was not off to him during his life."
