DR. WILLIAM PIMM BAKER

Dr. William Pimm Baker, for 26 years editor of The Post-Standard, member of the board of regents of the University of the State New York, prominent layman of the Protestant Episcopal church and one of the best informed men of the state on political questions, died at 11:45 o'clock Wednesday morning at his home in Syracuse. Dr. Baker had been in declining health for a long time. 1, 8, 30

Dr. Baker was born in Skaneateles on January 3, 1870, a son of Simeon and Elizabeth Pimm Baker. He was still young when his mother died. His baby sister died. He and his father were left alone. Then, while he was yet in school, his father died. He went to live with his mother's mother and his grandmother Pimm was the one who brought him to manhood and mothered him until her death.

His newspaper career began in 1885 when he was 15 years old and when he helped weekly to turn the wheels of the press of the Skaneateles Democrat, which was manipulated by hand. In 1893 Dr. Baker went to the Syracuse Courier, a Democratic morning newspaper founded in 1856. There he was sporting editor. From the Courier Dr. Baker went to The Standard and then to The Herald, where he was city editor a large part of the time.

Late in the year 1909 Dr. Baker was called to the editorial chair of The Post-Standard, and there he remained 20 years, relinquishing his position only with his death. After becoming editor, he also became secretary and a director of The Post-Standard company.

"Review of the Week," his page in the Sunday edition of The Post-Standard, had long been one of the features of the edition, watched carefully by the readers who wanted an intelligent, unbiased, instructive summary of political and world events.

High honor came to Dr. Baker on February 9, 1921, when he was made a member of the board of regents of the university of the state of New York. At his death he was senior member of the board, having served longer than any other of its 12 members.

In that same year, 1921, another high honor came to Dr. Baker when Syracuse university conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of letters.

MRS. KATE BAKER

We are very sorry to record the passing of another respected neighbor, on the evening of April 15th, 1938. It reminds us that the young may die, but the old must.

Mrs. Kate Baker was a daughter of a large family of children born to William and Eliza Layman Weaver. Date of her birth was Oct. 9, 1833. Her father, William Weaver was born in 1317 and her mother in 1831. They were married in 1847, according to the family record.

Kate Weaver, subject of this sketch, was united in marriage to Elijah Baker in 1873, by Rev. David Walker. For many years they were residents of Allendale, living in what was called Baker's machine shop. Mr. Baker was a mechanic. (His grandson, Ray Baker, now lives there.) Two children were born to them, one dying in infancy. Milo Lane Baker was another child, and he married Amy Rogers, and for many years lived in the old home, where she passed away on March 8, 1919, leaving her husband and two children. The daughter Alice married Mervin Caulkins, and has four daughters. Ray married Mary Lyman and has three children. Milo Baker, father of these children, died July 9, 1933. Mr. and Mrs. Baker purchased a home on Grove Street, Adams, and in 1918 Mr. Baker passed away. His widow continued to live there until coming back to Allendale. The home is now the property of Carl Harwood.

Mrs. Baker was a hard-working woman and always did the best she could. She was never quite contented without something to do. She was very handy with her needle and was fond of piecing quilt tops. On July 9, 1935, she came to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nye and was cared for as one of the family. She had leakage of the heart, and with her advanced age, she was taken down less than two weeks ago. She grew weaker each day, passing into unconsciousness two days before she died.

Little did we realize when the M. N. Club met with Mrs. Lizzie Pitkin on March 30, that it would be the last meeting with her present. We are reminded that we have no promise of tomorrow. She was our oldest member and always attended when she could and seemed to enjoy our meetings as much as we enjoyed her presence. And so another link in our chain is broken, but our loss is her gain.

She leaves to mourn her departure three sisters, Mrs. Mina Lane of Watertown, Miss Della Weaver of Adams, Mrs. Louie Nichols of Woodville, a brother, Charles Weaver who lives below Mannsville, two grandchildren, Mrs. Mervin Calkins of Adams, and Ray Baker of Allendale; seven great grandchildren, nieces and nephews, and many friends who will miss her. Her funeral was held on Tuesday p. m. from her late home, funeral services in charge of Undertaker Piddock, Rev. C. W. Batchelder, pastor of Lorraine M. E. Church officiating. A large profusion of flowers. The bearers were George Miller Sr., James Kelley, William Spink, James Nye, George Chrysler and Frank Lyman. Burial by the side of her late husband in Rural cemetery, Adams.

MRS. NETTINA MEAD BAKER

Mrs. Nettina Mead Baker passed away at her home at Bolton Landing Sunday, February 4, 1940, after a long illness. Suffering from a rare blood disease which had affected her mind, Mrs. Baker was forced to leave her duties as teacher of music at the school there last May.

Mrs. Baker was born 34 years ago in Vorea, the daughter of Edward D. and Alice DeLong Mead. Her early life was spent in that section. She attended Sandy Creek High school, living with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Philander DeLong on Salisbury street during that time. After her graduation, she entered Potsdam Normal and graduated from there in 1929.

On August 1, 1930, she was married to Everard Baker of Bolton Landing, having made her home there since her marriage.

Surviving besides her mother are two brothers, Foster Mead of Adams, and Walter Mead of Boylston. A sister, Mrs. Gertrude Givens of Syracuse, also survives, together with several nieces and nephews. Another brother, Dee, was killed while working on an electric line in 1931.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at the home in Bolton Landing and the body will be placed in the vault here until spring when burial will be made in the Wesleyan Cemetery.

EGBERT E. COVEY

Egbert E. Covey was born in the town of North East, Dutchess county, N. Y., in 1834. He was one of eight children, only one of whom is now living, Jennings, of Wheeler, Ind.

Over fifty years ago he came to Sandy Creek on the solicitation of his cousin, A. C. Skinkle, where he worked as a carpenter until falling health obliged him to give up this work.

He was married to Sarah Porter. To them were born two children, Milo E. of Syracuse and a little girl, who only lived a few months. Mr. Covey was a veteran of the Civil War and was always one of the first to aid his comrades.

EGBERT E. COVEY:

The old veteran Egbert E. Covey served faithfully as musician in Co. B., 7th N. Y. Vol. Cav. to which I belonged and was honorably mustered out with the regiment March 31, 1862; he again enlisted Aug. 14, 1862 at Utica in Co. K., 14th N. Y. Vol. Inf. as private and served faithfully as such and being sick was reported by medical officers in hospital until he did the unwise thing of going away from the hospital without proper authority and enlisted, Dec. 30, 1863 as private in Co. G., 159th N. Y. Vol. Inf. where for ability and energy he was promoted to Sergeant, then first Sergeant, a position of responsibility and mustered out with company Oct. 12, 1865 at Augusta, Ga.

Because of a just and wise ruling in military organizations and followed out by the Pension Department when any man assumes to absent himself from his place of duty without proper authority from his superiors he thereby cuts himself off from all ensuing benefits as a pensioner, unless letter from War Department at Washington, D. C. is granted that charge of desertion has been removed.

We sympathized with our comrade and tried to aid him and publish this only that the young may know the mills grind fine.

Many a man has done like that not thinking that it would prejudice his case. Sometimes a bounty was obtained through such a course.

JAMES K. COTTRELL,

Sept. 5, 1913 at Albany, N. Y.

MAURICE E. PORTER

Camden, N. Y., Feb. 25, 1914—The death of little Maurice Earle Porter occurred yesterday morning at the home of his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drake of South Park street. He was 11 years old Sept. 14.

He has been a patient little sufferer for the past three months. Being first taken with whooping cough and afterwards taking cold, which developed into pneumonia, leaving him in a weakened condition, he did not rally. Death was afterwards caused by anemia. Every effort was made to save and comfort the little one, but all in vain. God had prepared a resting place.

Since coming to Camden Maurice had made many friends by his pleasant, gentle nature and friendly ways, and will be greatly missed in the neighborhood where he was a favorite.

He leaves to mourn his loss his mother and step father, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drake, Camden, N. Y.; a grandfather, Mr. Michael Palmer, formerly of Sandy Creek, and two aunts, Mrs. Flower Empey of Camden and Miss Lillian Palmer, Pulaski, N. Y.; and many other relatives besides a host of friends. Mrs. Bessie M. Porter, 37, wife of Leon E. Porter of Hannibal, leaped to her death from a window of her room of the sixth floor of the Onondaga hotel, in Syracuse, about 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

Mrs. Porter fell in the court of the annex of the hotel, striking on her head. Her skull was fractured and she was otherwise injured. She died soon after being removed to the Hospital of the Good Shepherd.

The woman had been in Syracuse from time to time during the past three months undergoing medical treatment. She had been here for a few days past and went to Hannibal for a brief visit Tuesday. She returned with her husband, Leon E. Porter, during the early evening.

When Mrs. Porter was about to retire her husband went into an adjoining room to heat some milk for her. While attending to this, Mr. Porter heard one of the windows being opened. He gave the matter little consideration.

Returning to the room where he had left his wife, he found her gone. Seeing the opened window, he ran to it and saw Mrs. Porter's body lying in the court.

With hotel attendants he reached her side. She was carried into the hotel and an ambulance was called to remove her to the hospital.

Coroner Crane was notified and gave Undertaker G. E. Fairchild permission to take charge of the body.

MRS. ELVIRA PORTER

Mrs. Elvira Porter died at the home of her son on upper Church street, just outside of this village, on Thursday, January 27, 1927, aged 56 years, two months, 13 days.

On July 28, 1926, Mrs. Porter suffered a stroke of apoplexy which practically confined her to her room, and on January 15th she suffered a second stroke. This left her in a weakened condition, practically confining her to her bed, although she retained the use of all her faculties. On the day of her death she suffered a heart attack. A doctor was at once summoned and stimulants applied, but in her weakened condition she failed to rally and soon passed away, knowing those who were caring for her almost to the very last.

She attended the local schools, and later attended what at that time was called a "select school." For some time she taught school in the district schools of the vicinity. On Jan. 29, 1867, she married Horatio S. Porter of Rodman. They went at once to reside on a farm they had purchased, near her girlhood home, and continued to reside there until the death of her husband, which occurred Oct. 14, 1900.

One son was born to this union, Murray C. Porter. She continued to reside on the farm for a few years after the death of her husband and then went to reside with her son. With the exception of about one and one-half years, she has resided with him for the last twenty years. A grandson, M. Claire Porter, of Rodman, also survives.

MYRTON O. PORTER

As stated in last week's issue of The News, the community was cast into mourning by the passing of Myrton O. Porter, Monday morning, January 26, 1925, after an illness of several weeks duration. He was born in the town of Sandy Creek, Feb. 25, 1875, thus in the fullness of years, and maturity of manhood, he was called away. He descended from a pioneer stock, his father, Celia Porter and his mother, Alice Blodgett, belonged to the early families, that cleared the land, and converted a wilderness into a thriving community. He had inherited the noble traits of character, that were so marked, in the first settlers of the rural towns of Northern New York. His pleasing personality made him a favorite among all that knew him. He lived in the sunshine, and he disseminated sunshine all along the pathway of life. He was proverbial for the kindness of his heart, and for the winning way he dealt with his fellow-men.

His funeral was held at the Congregational church, Thursday afternoon, Jan. 29. The concourse of people present was a notable tribute to the high esteem in which he was held by his friends. The edifice was filled to capacity, and a feeling of personal loss was freely expressed. The Sandy Creek Lodge attended in a body and performed the burial service of the Craft. A quartet consisting of E. G. Rogers, R. A. Walton, R. W. Shaul and M. S. Prescott rendered several selections. Pastor Davies assisted by H. G. Seamans had charge of the service. The floral tributes were extensive and beautiful, and was a silent expression, from sorrowing hearts, of the worth and purity of the one departed. Members of Lake Ontario Chapter of O. E. S., the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Maccabees to which the departed belonged, were present at the obsequies.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah Seeley Porter, his mother, Mrs. J. J. Hollis, and by one brother, Claude Porter, Lacona, who have the sympathy of their many friends in this hour of their sorrow.

He shall be missed, in the home where he was seen at his best, in the church where he was a member, and ever willing to do his part, among his business associates by whom he was trusted, and by the community at large, because of his fine qualities of mind and heart.

He is not lost, but gone before. Guests from out of town who attended the funeral of M. O. Porter: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Flagg, Mr. and Mrs. James Green, Mr. Will McDaniels, Mr. L. Smith, Camden; Mrs. M. S. Blodgett, Mr. Uri Blodgett, Mrs. H. A. Allard, Mrs. Daisy Jamerson, Watertown; Mr. B. G. Seamans, Puttaski; Mrs. A. L. Jones, Altmar; Mrs. Martha Poole, Richland.

MYRTON O. PORTER

The death of M. O. Porter no Monday, removes from among us a respected citizen, who was just rounding the half century of life's activities.

Mr. Porter was the oldest son of Orlando and Alice Blodgett Porter, and was born in this town on Feb. 25, 1875. As a youth his home was on the Ridge Road, where John Riley now resides and he went to school in the Ridge Road school and at the Sandy Creek High school. Early in life he worked for Henry Stevens and on other farms.

About 25 years ago he began working for F. W. Smart and helped build the wagon and blacksmith shop on the site of the present Miles and Nozier garage.

While working here he lived with Mr. and Mrs. Smart until he was married to Paula E. Poole, when he went to keeping house. Sometime after this he lost all the fingers on his left hand in a jointer. In spite of this handicap, he was soon back at work. Later his wife's health failed and they lived for some time in the South in hopes to regain her health. Not getting much relief, they returned to Lacona where she died. Then he went to work for the N. Y. C. as a carpenter and also as car inspector.

On April 23, 1913 he married Esther LaFlagg, of Camden and they returned to Lacona. Mr. Porter entered the employ of the Stevens Milling & Feed Co. and worked for a year and then moved to Camden, where he was employed in the feed store of W. H. McDaniels. After a year there, they returned to Lacona where he again entered the employ of the Stevens Milling & Feed Co. as foreman. Mrs. Porter acting as bookkeeper and cashier.

Mrs. Porter died Feb. 23, 1922 and he again made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Smart. In January, 1924, he was married to Mrs. Sarah Jamerson.

For some time he had suffered from a severe attack of neuritis and in the Spring of 1924 was forced to give up his work. Soon after this Mr. and Mrs. Porter went to live on the large farm on the Ridge road, owned by Mrs. Porter. With characteristic energy and enthusiasm he soon had this farm restocked and everything progressing finely until he was stricken with a severe stroke of paralysis, having previously developed a weak heart. He had the rare faculty of making friends with everyone and always kept them. Very few persons had a wider acquaintance and he never had an enemy.

He always gave the very best that was in him for his employers and in all the years that he was serving the public there was never a person who in the slightest even had occasion to doubt his absolute honesty and integrity. He always had more than his share of hard luck and trouble, but he never complained and always had a smile and word of cheer for everybody.

The world can ill afford to lose such a man and he will be missed. He is survived by his wife and his mother, Mrs. J. J. Hollis.

The funeral was held from the home and from the Congregational church, Thursday afternoon, Rev. T. T. Davies, officiating. Burial in Woodlawn cemetery.

MRS. NANCY JANE PORTER

Mrs. Nancy Jane Porter was born in Herkimer Co. in 1844 and was united in marriage to George E. Porter December 11, 1868. Most of their married life was spent in Boyston and Sandy Creek, until within the past few years when they bought a little home in Taylor Settlement. To them were born ten children eight of whom with the father and husband survive her, namely, Henry, Porter of Belleville, Earnest of Henderson, Sherwood and Mrs. Charles Allard of Ellisburg, Mrs. Wilber Spink, Jess and Earl of Watertown and Mrs. Warren Wilkins of Oregon. She is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Finster and three sisters, Mrs. Orville Stowell, Richland, Mrs. Sherman Crossman of Utica and Mrs. Merwin Shoecraft of Auburn, and one brother H. J. Finster of Iowa, besides a number of grandchildren. These with many sorrowing friends, mourn the loss of a devoted mother wife and friend.

Mrs. Porter had long been a sufferer from rheumatism but managed to attend to her household duties until last spring when she suffered an attack of grippe resulting in several complications which after several months of hopeless suffering caused her death on Friday September 9. Altho prevented by poor health from much association with friends and neighbors, she was loved and respected by those who knew her intimately, always cheerful and patient with a kind word for all.

The funeral was well attended at her late home on Saturday afternoon, conducted by her pastor Rev. H. J. Carey of Belleville who spoke most feelingly from Rev. 14, 13. She was laid to rest in Rural cemetery at Adams.

MRS. M. O. PORTER

From Camden Advance Journal. The saddest and most regrettable death to occur in Camden in a long time was that of Mrs. Myrton O. Porter of Lacona, a Camden girl, who breathed her last this morning at 9:43 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Flagg, on Fourth street.

On January 9th Mrs. Porter entered the Homeopathic Hospital, at Utica, and underwent an operation which disclosed a serious abdominal condition, following which she appeared to be making a favorable recovery, which was shortly interrupted by the onset of a paralysis affecting her entire left side. Two weeks ago she was removed to the home of her parents in this village and was considered convalescent until Monday of this week when she suddenly developed intestinal obstruction which led on to complete strangulation of the bowel. Rogers

Upon Friday ^{12/13/1934} when the southwest-ly wind was blowing a gale which had continued since the day before, several young people from a cottage in Ackerman's grove, upon the shore of Ontario bay, went over to the sand beach nearly in front of the Outlet house to bathe in Lake Ontario. As they were ignorant of the dangers attendant upon bathing in the breakers they ventured out beyond the safety limit. As a result of this sad mistake they stood helplessly by while the under current carried Jay Rogers out to his death. They saw Mr. Rogers while he was bravely battling for his life, sink beneath the surface only to be carried out into deeper water. Mr. Rogers was the junior member of the firm of H. B. Rogers & Son, who were running two stores where they were dealing in general merchandise in the town of Bridgewater, Oneida county, N. Y. At about the same time another young man, who was a member of the same party, was rescued from drowning while in an almost helpless condition. Mr. Rogers was the only living child of his parents. An older brother had died of disease several years ago. We learned from W. J. Beal and H. E. Palmer, two gentlemen friends of the Rogers family who came to recover the body of the unfortunate young man, that the parents were so prostrated by grief that they were unable to come and supervise the search. The life saving crew from Big Sandy have been here two or three times to drag the bottom. The wind has blown much of the time thereby creating such breakers upon the shore that a small boat could not be used. Mr. Beal has returned home, Mr. Palmer remaining here to direct the search for the body. The bereaved family have the sympathy of a very large circle of friends as they are highly respected by all wherever they are known.

As I See It

By GEORGE W. CORSE

Let's lay aside political conventions and the like and pay tribute to a printer who went home from work one day and the next feeling more tired than usual laid down in the afternoon and went to sleep. Volney Rodgers was the friend of all of us who worked in the Corse Press. Possessed of a better than average knowledge of his trade, he was a careful workman. Best of all, he had a rare sense of humor that caused him to refuse to consider the fact that he was a deaf mute as an affliction. Three years ago when he had a terrific heart attack and it appeared that he would not be getting any better this writer jotted down the following and tucked away for future reference, and it is most appropriate of this man who was our friend:

He never could hear the robins sing in the morning nor the woodthrush in the evening; he was unaware of the smell of a trailing arbutus or a lilac; yet, he loved beauty. The beautiful blending of instruments in a great orchestra was foreign to his ears, but if he could get near a piano he could feel the rhythm by placing his hand on it, and thus fill his soul with music. And how he loved to drum.

In the past when there were parties at different cottages, Volney always enjoyed going and playing a game of checkers with one of the fellows, or perchance he would look at TV, thoroughly enjoying every minute of it. He loved any game where his quick eye gave him an equal chance with the others.

In his work he was careful and exacting; often some of the folks would be impatient with his exactness, but usually he was right. This writer worked with him considerable, locking up forms, and he would never leave one until it suited him and no impatience on the part of anyone would shake his resolve, because when he was through with it, the form was correct. Those who were willing to listen to him profited by it, for he never tried to show anyone a wrong method.

Somehow we feel that this man who possessed a love of his fellow workers in a great degree is where there is music and he will "hear it gloriously in the land of the blessed."

I have heard his daughters say that during the hard times when money was scarce, somehow he always had the needed nickel or dime. And that kind of generosity in one's family can be remembered long years ahead.

Since his retirement he has worked a few hours a week and always rung in and went to work, always doing the best he could. As we have said before, Volney was our friend!

ALVIN C. SKINKLE

In the death of Alvin C. Skinkle, which occurred at the home of his nephew, H. Louis Wallace, on Saturday, June 13, 1914, the community and town loses one of its valuable members, who has been an important factor in the upbuilding of the community for the past sixty years.

Mr. Skinkle was born in the town of Ancram, Columbia Co., N. Y., May 10, 1834, and at the early age of seventeen years went to Albany to learn the trade of carpenter and builder under William Culver. He came to Sandy Creek in 1854, and on October 5, 1856 was married to Helen M. Wallace. He has been identified with the growth of the town, being its leading builder for many years. Not alone in this community, but in surrounding towns he was known for his skill and the substantial results that he was able to secure. He was the builder of the Pulaski National bank and many other substantial structures. Whenever there was a peculiar job that needed superior judgment and careful handling, the advice and skill of Mr. Skinkle were ever sought. Both Mr. Skinkle and the late S. H. Barlow came into his community, from the eastern part of the state, at the same time, and were partners and associates in business for many years.

With the late William E. Howlett, Mr. Skinkle operated a large planing, sash, door and blind works on the site now occupied by W. A. Barlow & Co., the firm being Skinkle & Howlett. This shop was totally destroyed by fire February 26, 1872. Later the shop was rebuilt and conducted by Skinkle & Howlett, and Skinkle & Barlow. Since 1879 Mr. Skinkle has conducted a shop on Railroad street which he was compelled to close in January last, on account of failing health. Up to this time he was constantly active and did more or less work.

Mr. Skinkle's wife died in November, 1912, and since January last, he has resided with his nephew, H. Louis Wallace, where he passed away. During his more active years he served two terms as trustee of the village of Sandy Creek. His kindly good nature and skill as a workman ever won him friends in the community where he spent his life.

The funeral was held from the Wallace home Monday afternoon by Rev. W. H. Pullen officiating.

Mrs. Skinkle was the daughter of Alvin and Sally Bentley Wallace, and was born on October 7, 1835, at the Wallace homestead, about a mile south of the village, on the farm now owned and occupied by Fred A. Tiff, where she lived till her marriage to Alvin C. Skinkle, which took place October 7, 1856. For the last thirty-five years she has resided in the home in Ellisburg street, where she died. When an infant she extended a mother's care to her nephew, Attorney H. Louis Wallace, who made his home with her until he grew to manhood.

The Captain accompanied by his wife who was before her marriage, Miss Mabel Wart, daughter of the late Sherman and Mary Wart, former residents of Sandy Creek, went to the Mayo Clinic in Rochester about a month ago. Captain Vandresar had been in declining health for over a year. At Rochester his trouble was diagnosed as tumor on the kidney. H. Nichols of New York. He had been with Mr. Nichols for the past twenty years and had developed his extensive property on the Canadian channel on Howe Island, seven miles above Gananoque and nine miles below Kingston. He was for many years previous to the World war captain of the Nokomis, the largest privately owned yacht on the river, also the property of Mr. Nichols. Before entering the employ of Mr. Nichols Captain Vandresar developed the Jackson and Oliphant properties near Alexandria Bay and was always highly esteemed by those with whom he was associated in business and in a social way.

The leading business men of Alexandria Bay and Gananoque were present to pay tribute to the deceased and he was buried with Masonic honors, the P. & A. M. and Chapter H. A. M. of Alexandria Bay being present in a body at the obsequies.

Wild

DELOS E. WILDS

In the passing away of Delos E. Wilds, which occurred at his home in Lacona Wednesday morning, August 6th, the community lost one of its most honored citizens, and an irreparable loss has been sustained by his departure, he being one of the representative men of the town of Sandy Creek, and one who performed his part with fidelity and foresight to make the town what it is to-day.

Mr. Wilds was born on a farm southeast of Lacona, which is owned and occupied at present by his sister, Mrs. H. H. Cole and her husband. This was the family homestead for many years and interesting are the memories associated with the farm, as the home of the Wilds family. It was on the second day of September, 1838, that he first saw the light of day. His parents were James and Maria Rogers Wilds, natives of Connecticut, and who carried with them to their new home in Oswego county the thrift and enterprise that have been so prominent in the life of the pioneers of New England.

He was married September, 1859, to Martha Burrell, and not until fifty-four years had passed away that this union of hand and heart was dissolved. To this home came twelve children, of whom seven survive, and with their mother, have the sympathy of their many friends in their bereavement. The surviving children are, Mrs. Anna M. Potter and Mrs. W. H. Cox, Lacona; Mrs. Thomas Gunnens and Mrs. Claude Aitchison, Barnsville, Minn.; Mrs. Frances H. McDowell, New York City; Mrs. William Hodggett, Oswego, and Delos Wilds of Minnesota. Friday afternoon, August 8, a large number of sorrowing friends met at the home of the departed, where the funeral service was conducted by Dr. Holyoke of Providence, R. I., and Rev. T. T. Davies of Sandy Creek. A male quartette consisting of Messrs Sturdevant, Shaul, Jones and Rogers, assisted by Miss Edna Thomas as accompanist, sang appropriate selections. Interment was in the family plot in Woodlawn cemetery.

Mr. Wilds was a born leader of men. Few men did more than he in developing the material and social life of the community where he lived for so many years. He believed in progress, and gave a helping hand to every movement that improved the condition of his fellow men. In politics he was one of the standard bearers of his party. He stood by the Republican party from its organization to the present time, and his influence was felt in the shaping of its policy throughout the county.

He was blessed with a genial, warm and friendly nature. His personality was magnetic, and to know him was to be attached to him. His optimism was contagious, and clouds of depression could not remain long in his sunny presence. His heart was full of kind impulses, and many can testify to his readiness to help in the hour of need. Like the great Lincoln, whom he devoutly admired, he plucked thistles and planted roses wherever they might grow.

"Life's race well run,
Life's work well done;
Now comen rest."

MRS. MARTHA BURRELL WILDS

In an eastern city, there is a long, dark, narrow lane, ending in a tunnel. The traveler descends, and passes through, but on the other side he emerges into the court yard of an imposing mansion, flashing with color and sunlight. This is a figure of the passing away of the believer in Christ. Death is not the last sleep, it is rather the last and final awakening. 5/5/23

Mrs. Martha Burrell Wilds entered into the glorious and lightesome home of the blessed Saturday, May 5, 1923, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Cox, Lacona. She was born in the town of Sandy Creek, Feb. 22, 1849, being the daughter of Nathan and Julia Harris Burrell. Her father conducted a wagon shop on the Pulaski road, on the farm now occupied by Arthur Flaisted. She was educated in Belleville Academy, and later taught school in the surrounding districts.

June 28, 1859, she was united in marriage with Delos E. Wilds, who passed away several years ago. Twelve children blessed their union, seven of whom are still living. They are Mrs. Anna Colony, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. W. H. Cox, Lacona; Mrs. Thomas Gunnens, Barnsville, Minn.; Mrs. Frances McDowell, New York; Charles B. Wilds, Minneapolis; Mrs. W. M. Hodggett, Oswego; Mrs. Claude Aitchison, Barnsville, Minn. There are fourteen grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren, also surviving. Her entire life was spent in Sandy Creek and Lacona.

On July 2, 1855, she united with the Presbyterian church, which later became Congregational, on confession of her faith. There were six young people who took upon themselves the yoke of Christ, that Sabbath day, sixty-eight years ago. The others were Herman H. Richardson, Elizabeth A. Robbins, Helen M. Prayn, Chloe Monroe, Caroline Warriner, all of whom, have gone from the church militant to the church triumphant. She gave the major part of her life to the service of Christ and adorned her Christian profession with a faith that never wavered. So long as strength and opportunity permitted, she did what she could for the church she loved and during her long and beneficent life, she proved steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord.

Her funeral was held Tuesday-afternoon, May 8, at her home in Lacona, Rev. T. T. Davies conducting the service, speaking on the 23d Psalm, her favorite portion of Scripture. This Psalm being a beautiful expression of her own religious creed and experience. Her remains were laid in the sacred Machpelah of the family at Woodlawn cemetery, to await the day of awakening. The beautiful and costly floral tribute, spoke of the tender ties between her and those whom she loved.

Her day without a cloud hath passed,
And she was lovely to the last,
Extinguished not decayed!
As stars that shoot along the sky
Shine brightest, as they fall from high.

Schnyler Colfax, whose death was mentioned last week, was born in New York, in 1823. His grandfather was General Wm. Colfax, commander of General Washington's life guard. His father, a clerk in a New York bank, died four months before he was born. When ten years old his mother married a Mr. Mathews, and in 1836 the family moved to Indiana. In 1845 he started the St. Joseph Valley Register, a Whig paper, at South Bend, Ind., which he continued to publish until 1865. He was a delegate to and secretary of the Whig conventions that nominated Taylor and Scott, for presidents, in 1848, and 1852. In 1850 he was a member of the Indiana state convention, and took an active part in framing its constitution. On the formation of the Republican party, he was elected member of congress, and retained his seat until 1869, being six times re-elected. He was speaker of the House of the thirty-eighth, thirty-ninth and fortieth congress. In 1868 he was elected vice president on the ticket with Grant, by the Republicans, and at the close of his term retired to private life. During the years of the Rebellion, and the period of reconstruction, Mr. Colfax was one of the leaders of the Republican party and a staunch defender of the government.

The fight at Albany for United States Senator was virtually won last week though the caucus was not held until Monday evening. The Everts men went into the caucus with enough votes pledged for their candidate to elect him. Wm. M. Everts received 61 votes, Levi P. Morton 28, C. M. Dewey 3. Senator Lansing and the assemblymen from this section supported Everts. The election Tuesday, was in accord with the caucus. Republicans supporting Everts, the Democrats Edward Cooper. In the Senate Everts led Cooper 19 to 13 and 73 to 53 in the Assembly.

Congressmen Hiscock and Leslie W. Russell have won the applause of their party by withdrawing from the Senatorial contest, and throwing their influence with the people's candidate, Wm. M. Everts. Both are young men yet, and Mr. Hiscock, as leader of the House of Representatives, had undoubtedly strong claims as a candidate for the United States Senate.

—The operation of the prohibitory liquor law in Iowa is not what its advocates promised, if the reports furnished by the mayors of 18 of the principal cities and villages in the state are trustworthy. The reports cover the first six months of the law's operation. Except in one instance, the repeal of the law is urged on the ground that the saloon interest has grown and drunkenness increased at a greater rate than when license prevailed. It appears from these reports that Council Bluffs has 10 saloons more than before the prohibitory law went into effect. Keokuk has 15 more, Boone 4, Sioux City 13, Ottumwa 53, Davenport 10 and Des Moines 40. In Cedar Rapids no liquor is sold openly, but in Dubuque, Atlantic and Council Bluffs the city councils maintain the revenue formerly received from saloon licenses by issuing licenses for the sale of "legal drinks," which is simply an evasion of the law. If it is said that the law is all right and fails only because it is not enforced, the answer is that that trouble was foretold and has been experienced in every case where prohibitory legislation has been tried. The liquor evil is one close to the people, and must be dealt with at close quarters and not at arm's length. City councils, mayors, police justices, and all of the close at home makers and officers of law must be enlisted, which they rarely are. Usually temperance people expend their efforts on state and legislative tickets, while a different class of people runs off with the common council boards, mayors, excise boards, etc. Prohibitory liquor legislation will never of itself suppress traffic in liquor or stop the consumption of liquors. Prohibition, as charity should, must begin at home. - Utica Herald.
