BARTLETT.

Richard Bartelot, a decendant of Adam Bartelot, Esquire of Brian, who came over with William the Conqueror, ^(in 1066) was heir to the estate of Stopham, Co., Sussex, England, and died in France in 1518, leaving four sons. William, the eldest, succeeded to his father's estate and Edward, another son, inherited the Ernely estate in the same county. He had four sons, Edmund, who succeeded him, and Richard, John and Thomas, who left Ernely in 1634, and are stated to have come to America. The coat of Arms they brought over is substantially that of the present Bartelots of Stopham, and their kinship is admitted by the present head of the elder branch, Sir Walter Bartelot, Bart of Stopham.

Thomas settled in Watertown, Mass. and was known as Ensign Thomas. He left no male issue.

Richard and John settled in Newbury, Mass. some of them acquired great wealth and influence in the country of their adoption.

Crests. A. A swan, couchant, argent, wings endorsed, argent.

Crests B. A castle with three turrets, sable.

Both crests are used as one by the English branch.

Coat of Arms. Three falconer's gloves are placed upon the shield, not the ordinary gauntlet. Shield black, gauntlets argent.

In the American Arms the gauntlets are often charged. Two and one, instead of in chief.

The same arms are used as the Baronts Bartelot of Stopham Co., Sussex, England.

BARTLETT.

RICHARD BARTLETT, with his two sons and a daughter, and his brothers JOHN and THOMAS, came from England to New England, as early as 1635. The three brothers were probably sons of EDMUND BARTELOT of Ernley, Sussex County, England, who was a descendant of Adam Bartelot, the esquire of Brian, a knight who came from Normandy to England with William the Conqueror. Richard a descendant of Adam Bartelot and heir of the estate of Stopham, died in Tournay, France, in the year 1518, leaving four sons, WILLIAM the eldest, succeeded to his father's estate; and EDMUND, another son, had a landed estate in Ernely. Edmund had three sons, EDMUND, who succeeded to his estate, and RICHARD, JOHN and THOMAS, who left Ernely in 1634, or about that time, and are supposed to have come to America. A coat of arms belonging to the descendants of Richard, John and Thomas Bartlett, the emigrants to New England, is said by Sir Walter Bartelot of Stopham, the present representative of the Bartelots of Stopham, to be substantially the same as his coat of arms.

We learn from the Rev. C. J. Robinson of England, who has prepared and published a pamphlet from the history of the Bartelots in Sussex County, that "the name of Bartelot, or Bartlett, is of Norman origin", and "has been thought to be clearly a diminutive of Bartholomew." is still current in Normandy as Barthelot" and exists in many Sussex parishes as Bartelot, Bartlet and Bartlett.

THOMAS BARTLETT settled in Watertown, and was known as Ensign Thomas. He had several daughters, but no sons. We are told by Coffin, that "Richard and John settled in Newby, Mass., at or around Bartlett's Cove, opposite Amesbury Ferry, where some of their descendants of the same name still reside". John was made a freeman in 1637. His wife's name was Joan and they had one son, named John. John Sen., died April 13th, 1678. His wife died Feb. 5th., 1679. John their son, married Sara, daughter of John Knight.

Their children were: Gideon and Mary, who died young.

RICHARD BARTLETT we are told was a shoemaker. He appears to have taken part in the church controversy that agitated Newbury nearly thirty years, his name being one of the five appended to the petitions sent to the General Court by the Woodman party (see account of William Titcomb, page 145). In the testimony concerning his last will and testament that was taken by William Titcomb, his son-in-law, husband of his daughter Joanna, and Anthony Somerby, about a month before his death, his sons, Richard, Christopher and John are mentioned; also his daughter Joanna Titcomb, and her three daughters. He died May 23rd, 1647.

RICHARD BARTLETT, Jr., we are told by Coffin was a very intelligent man, and was a representative to the General Court in 1679 '80 and '84. He resided at first at Oldtown Hill, but afterwards removed to Bartlett Cove. He married Agibail --- Their children were Samuel, Richard, Thomas, Abigail, John, Hannah and Rebecca.

Richard Bartlett died in 1698, aged 77 years. His wife died March 3, 1687.

SAMUEL, son of Richard Bartlett, Jr., married Elizabeth Titcomb of Newbury. Their children were: Elizabeth, Abigail, Samuel, Sara, Richard, Thomas, Tirzah and Elizabeth.

It is said that Samuel Bartlett was staunch friend to liberty, a very facetious, but decided man. On the first intimation in Newbury of the difficulty at the time Gov. Andros was seized and confined, some of the people of Newbury started for Boston, Samuel Bartlett was one of them. He armed himself with a rusty sword, minus the scabbard, mounted his horse and rode with such speed it is said that his long sword, trailing on the ground, left as it came in contact with the stones in the road a stream of fire, all of the way. He arrived in season to assist in imprisoning the Governor. He died May 15th. 1732.

RICHARD, son of Richard Jr, born Feb. 21st, 1649 married Hannah Emery. Their children were, Hannah, Richard, John Samuel, Daniel, Joseph, a second Samuel, Stephen, Thomas and Mary.

THOMAS, son of Richard Bartlett, Jun, born Sept. 7th. 1650 married Tirzah, daughter of William and Eliza Titcomb. Their children were Elizabeth, who died young, and Tirzah. Thomas Bartlett died Apr. 6th. 1869.

JOSEPH, the fifth son of Richard and Hannah (Emery) Bartlett, was born Nov. 8th, 1686. During the Indian depredations in Haverhill, he was impressed and sent with others from Newbury, to defend the inhabitants of that town. He was stationed at Capt. Simon Wainwright's house, and at the massacre of Aug. 29th. 1708, was captured by the Indians and taken to Canada. The following extracts are from a published account of his captivity. At first I was taken by the French and was with them till this fight was over; during which an Indian came to me with great fury with his hatchet, I suppose to take away my life; but through the mercies of God the French put him by, and so I was spared. I heard many bullets hum over my head as we marched away. After the fight was over the French gave me to the Indians--for the Indians killed their prisoners. We traveled hard all that day till nearly sun-set when we camped for the night. They tied me down, and laid each side of me upon strings, and so they did almost every subsequent night. The next morning they rose very early, and led me, my arms being tied behind me, and another squaw line about my neck. I was led by an Indian who had a hatchet in his hand and a pistol in his girdle. In this manner I was lead most part of the way. They traveled hard the three first days. I had as yet eaten hardly anything, for they had little besides horse-meat; and carrying a heavy pack, I was very much fatigued. The Indians made a little water pottage without salt or sweetning and gave me some to drink, it revived me very much and proved the best cordial I ever took in my life. Before we reached Montreal, we came to Capridia, a French Fort, I think about 15 miles from Camblee where the Indians cut the hair from one side of my head, greased the remainder of my head and painted the latter. We then went over the river to the Governor--where they examined and questioned me, whether the English talked of invading Canada or not. Afterwards we went to the Seminary, that is, the priests house, where we tarried for the night. Next morning we set out for the Indians' Fort, which the French called Sadrokelly, and which was about nine miles from Montreal. When they had proceeded about half of the way they made a stop, and marked a tree with the picture of a mans hand and some scalps. Then they led me along a little further to where there was a fire and about 15 Indians and thirty boys. There they made a stop, and tied me for a short time; during which I believe they had a counsel whether or not to burn me. But God spared my life. They permitted a squaw to cut off one of my little fingers and another to strike me severely with a pole. Passing through a large company of Indians, we entered the Fort, where they bound up my finger with plantain leaves and gave me some roasted pumpkin to eat. Here, a great company, nearly 40, sang and danced the greater part of the night. They pulled me up however and I went around once with them. Next day they came together again with their scalps which they presented to thair squaws. One of them took me by the hand, and after a lengthy speech gave me to an old squaw, who took me into another wigwam. She washed the red paint and grease off my face and hands and was very kind to me. He finally escaped and reached Newbury after captivity of four years. After his return the General Court ordered that the sum of twenty pounds and FIFTEEN SHILLINGS BE ALLOWED HIM AS HE WAS IN HER MAJESTIES SERVICE when he was captured. He settled on a farm at Newtown, N. H. He was Justice of the Peace and Deacon of the Church. He married first--- Tewksbury; second --- Hoyt. He had four sons and six daughters, all by his second wife.

JOSIAH BARTLETT, M. D., a son of Stephen, the seventh son of Richard and Hannah (Emery) Bartlett, was born in Amesbury, Mass. Nov. 21, 1729. After an imperfect medical education, he began the practice of medicine at Kingston, N. H., and soon became eminent by his success in treating malignant throat diseases which was fatal among children and very prevalent in the towns of New Hampshire. He made use of Peruvian Bark as an antidote and preventative and his practice was very successful. In 1765, and annually until the Revolution, he was chosen to the Legislature. He was a member of the Committee of safety, upon whom for a time devolved the whole executive government of the state, and on the organization of the government by a Provincial Congress, of which he was a member, he was appointed a Justice of the Peace and Colonel of the 7th Regiment. Being a delegate to Congress in 1775 and 1776, he was the first to give his vote for the Declaration of Independence and its first signer after the President. He accompanied Gen. Stark to Bennington, as agent to the State to provide medicines and other necessaries for the New Hampshire troops. He was again a delegate to Congress. He was appointed a Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas in 1779, a Justice of the Superior Court in 1784 and Chief Justice in 1788. He was an active member of the Convention called to adopt the Federal Constitution. He was for three years President of the State, and under the new Constitution, Governor. He was also President of the N. H. Medical Society which he was chiefly instrumental in founding. He received an honorary degree of M. D. from Dartmouth College. He married Mary, daughter of Deacon Joseph Bartlett. He died May 11th, 1795. His son Josiah was a physician of extensive practice.

HON. WILLIAM BARTLETT, a grandson of Thomas, the eighth son of Richard and Hannah (Emery) Bartlett, was born in Newburyport, Jan. 31, 1748. Having acquired great wealth by mercantile enterprise he employed it in assisting the needy, and especially in advancing the cause of religion and morals. He gave $30,000.00 towards founding the Theological Seminary at Andover, Mass.; $25,000.00 to endow a professorship of Sacred Rhetoric, and contributed largely to the founding of another professorship. He built the Chapel, which was named Bartlett Chapel in his honor; he also built one of the large Halls, and two of the Professor's houses. It is said that no small portion of the select and valuable library of the Institution was given by him. At his death he bequeathed $50,000 to the Seminary. He was a man of iron frame as well as nerve and lived to the advanced age of ninety-three.

THOMAS BARTLETT, a descendant of Samuel and Elizabeth (Titcomb) Bartlett, was a Lieut. Colonel under Gen. Stark at the Surrender of Burgoyne, and in command of a regiment at West point at the time of Arnold's defection. He was a member of the N. H. Legislature, Speaker of the House and Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He married Sarah, eldest daughter of Gen. Joseph Cilley, a patriot of the American Revolution. He died in 1805.

Among the descendants of Samuel and Elizabeth (Titcomb) Bartlett, were Gen. Bartlett of Nottingham, N. H. and Representative and Senator and also Judge of the Common Pleas; Hon. Josiah Bartlett of Lee, a Lieutenant of the War of 1812-15 and a member of the Governor's Council; Hon. Ichabed Bartlett of Salisbury, an eminent lawyer. Hon. Josiah Bartlett of Amesbury, a distinguished physician, and a Colonel of the army; the three sons of the latter, who were eminent physicians. Hon. Samuel Bartlett, a physician of Kingston; and Hon. Bailey Bartlett of Haverhill, Mass.

The latter was appointed by Gov. Hancock, sheriff of the County of Essex, which office he retained forty years, with the exception of a few months. He was elected in 1797 a member of the United States Congress, and served four years. His wife, who was a daughter of John White, Jun., of Haverhill was distinguished for great personal beauty and piety. They had ten children. Their third son, Charles L. Bartlett, who married Mary Plummer, was the father of Gen. William F. Bartlett of the late Civil War.

Gen. Francis Bartlett was born at Haverhill, Mass. June 6th. 1840. At the age of 21 he left Harvard College to go to the seat of War as Captain of the Twentieth Regiment of Mass. Volunteers. He was wounded at Yorktown and sent home. The following November he started for the War as Colonel of the 49th. Regt. He was wounded at the assault of Port Hudson, was Colonel of the 52nd. Regiment; Was appointed Brigadier General of the Volunteers. He was taken a prisoner at Petersburg and carried to Libby Prison. He was afterwards in command of the 9th. Corps where he remained until the end of the war.

In 1865 Gen. Bartlett married Mary Agness, daughter of Col. Robert Pemery of Pittsfield, Mass. He left six children.

Clement H. Hill thus wrote of him: When the 49th. Mass. Vols. passed through New York at its head rode a young man of only twenty-two years, tall, graceful and soldierly. He wore one wooden leg, one arm was in splints, and a crutch was swung over his shoulder, but his conduct and bearing were those of a man whom nothing can daunt. He was a man of quiet intense determination and the charm of his presence was magnetic. The few speeches, essays and letters that he left us are models of brevity of strength and good honest English. He was the idol of young Harvard. In the reunion of 1874 Gen. Bartlett was Chief Marshall of the Harvard Committee. His staff composed of twenty-four former officers. It was on this occasion that he made that short but most forcible and beautiful appeal for peace between North and South. The effect was electric, and the audience fairly sprang from their seats, leaned toward him and gathered around him and cheered him again and again. Gov. Andrews, it is said, pronounced him the most conspicuous soldier of the Gulf. When the war ended he is said to have been the most conspicuous soldier of all whom Mass. sent to the field.

Prof. S. C. Bartlett of the Theological Seminary of Chicago, Ill., while in England, visited Col. Walter Bartelot, M. P., the present representative of the Bartelots of Stopham, Sussex County, England. The following extract is from an account sent by him to Mr. Levi Bartlett, author of the "Bartlett Family".

"The estate is a large one, some 7000 to 8000 acres. The house is a large three story stone building, 150 feet or more long—quite an establishment. A large amount of land about the residence is simply ornamental. The farming portion is on a large scale, and everything well kept and in good condition."

Col. Bartelot is satisfied that we came from some of the junior members of the family in former times. From London to Pulborough Station by rail is two hours and fifteen minutes. The distance from the station to Col. Bartelot's mansion is about three-fourths of a mile. In going from the station to his residence the river Arun is crossed by a stone bridge built by the family in 1300. From the front of the large stone mansion there is a beautiful outlook on the South Downs and a fine range of hills; beyond them the ocean. On two hills in sight, the old Romans have left marks of their fortifications, and three or four miles away—South-east, a portion of the Estate of the Earls of Arundel (Arundale) could be seen. Near the old Norman Church built by the family in the thirteenth century, is an English yew tree, planted about the time the church was erected, which is from the ground, seven and one-half feet in diameter; there are also several large and aged cedars of Lebanon. On the stone floor of the church, are marble slabs with inlaid figures with a regular succession of Bartelots inscriptions, names and dates, from John Bartelot, who died in 1428, down to Col. George Bartelot, who died Nov. 28th. 1872, aged 84 years (the father of Col. Walter Bartelot). Here there is no mistake or sham, for, while scores of families of past nobility have run out over and over, or as Macaulay has it--"Many illustrious houses have forever disappeared from history," the Bartelot family have steadily held possession of the original grant (with large additions) for eight hundred years, from Adam Bartelot, the progenitor of the family, down to the present representative, and an accurate pedigree of the line has been kept from 1069, down to Ada Mary, the youngest daughter of Col. Walter Bartelot, who celebrated her twelfth birthday in August, 1874."

Mr. Levi Bartlett wrote to Col. Bartelot in 1873 and received a reply, dated Nov. 15th. 1873, from which the following extract is taken:

"I was very glad to receive your letter, and am very proud that my kinsmen in America have so distinguished themselves out there and made the old name respected, I assure you it gives me great pleasure to render what information I can, and it would give me greater pleasure, should you come to England, to see you here and to show what we have that is worth seeing. I was very glad to see Prof. Bartlett. He was very kind as to his descriptions of all he saw here.

I shall send with this a short copy of the pedigree to 1428 and later under three families, or rather five, viz; Bartelot, Stopham, D'Orley, Lewknor, Tregoz, and an extract from the Ford pedigree

The Fords lived at Stopham before the Conquest; the old Saxon proprietors. Brian a knight, who came over with William the Conqueror, is on the Battle Abbey Roll, with his esquire Adam Bartelot, both of course being officers and gentlemen. Both received grants of land. Stopham Sussex being the principal, of which we suppose Brian got the largest share, and Adam Bartelot a smaller one. (The original grant from King William to Adam Bartelot, in 1066, was a landed estate, which could neither be sold, given away or pass out of the family. Levi Bartlett.)

The Saxon family of Fords still retaining possession of a large part of the estate. The Fords lived on this spot before the Conquest and there is still a room, said--with more or less truth--to have been here before the Conquest. Brian, the Norman knight, assumed the name Brian de Stopham. He was succeeded by his son Richard de Stopham. After several generations the male issue of the Ford family failed, and the estate fell into the hands of a daughter of the Fords. John de Stopham, as you will see, married the daughter of the Fords and got their share. In the fourteenth century, John Bartelot married the daughter and heiress of the Stophams, and came into possession of the whole property, the male line of the Stophams having failed. You will see by the chart of pedigree I send, that the Bartelots and Stophams have been members of Parliament for the county from the earliest times. You will also see that John Bartelot had one of our crests--the castle--given him by Edward the Black Prince, for taking the Castle of Fontenoy in France, in command of Sussex men. I also send you our coat of arms. The plates I send you are my arms quartered with those of my first wife, who was a Musgrave of Cumberland; also one of the oldest families of England. The original coat of arms of the Bartelot family was three open hand falconer's gloves with golden tassels about the wrists. Crest a swan; 2nd. a castle. We had the old right of keeping swans on the river, a right which very few had. The Bartelots have lived here ever since the Conquest at the battle of Poitiers, 1356, and at the battle of Cressy, 1346; and subscribed handsomely to the funds contributed to defend England against the attack of the Spanish Armada in 1588. The records of the church are compiled from John Bartelot, who was born early in 1300 down to the present date. There are some very curious and handsome coats of arms in the windows bearing the family names of those with whom they married; also old memorial windows, the date of the oldest figures being 1273.

On the 27th. of Feb. 1874; Mr. Levi Bartlett received a second letter from Col. Walter Bartelot, from which the following is taken.

As I said before Brian the knight and Adam Bartelot, the esquire, came over and fought with William at the Battle of Hastings (1066). Both received grants of land in Stopham. And here I would say, grants of land were different from what would be called an estate now. Then the manorial rights, as well as the lands, gave great power, and were very valuable. There is a tradition that after the first marriage of the Stophams with the Fords, then of the Bartelots with the Stophams and also with the Lewknors and with the De Okehursts, that the family could ride on their own property from Stopham to Northam, about fourteen miles. I have always supposed that my American relations must have descended from Edmund Bartelot of Ernley in Sussex. He died, as you will see by the chart, 1591; he was fourth son of Richard Bartelot of Stopham. The pedigree goes down to Thomas and John Bartelot living in 1634."

A third letter from Col. Walter Bartelot, from which the following extract is made.

I am very much obliged, indeed for your very kind and friendly letter; and I will at once say, were I able to leave, there is nothing I should like better than to go to America. As to the Coat of Arms, I find in the end of the 14th. century the castle was granted by Edward the Black Prince to John Bartelot for taking the castle of Fontenoy, after the battle of Poictiers. I find that crest used until the 16th. century, when the swan was introduced and granted by the garter king of arms. Your seal that you send me is substantially correct. (the seal was a fac simile of the arms of the Bartletts in this country) I may mention, that upon the record of the family, a Richard, Thomas, and John Bartelot, who lived here, were born between 1580 and 1590 (sons of Edmund Bartelot) and there their record ends, they having gone, and very likely to America; and John Bartelot, living in Ernely, did get rid of his property there in 1634.

I have just examined your seal, and it is, I may say quite accurate. Our name is spelled in all sorts of ways, so I am not surprised that it is differently spelled in America."

Since writing the above, Col. Walter Bartelot has been created by Queen Victoria, a Baronet.

Mr. Levi Bartlett says: "From the statements made in Col. Bartelot's letter, I think there can be no doubt that Richard and John Bartlett or Newbury were sons of Edmund Bartelot of Ernely and Stopham."

We learn from Mr. Levi Bartlett, that over one hundred Bartletts have graduated from the several Colleges of the country; and that seven of the lineal descendants of Richard Bartlett of Newbury, Mass., have been judges in the courts of New Hampshire.

In John Fox's Book of Martyrs, printed in 1610, Richard, Robert Sarah and Isabel Bartlett are mentioned as Protestant Martyrs persecuted by John Longland, popish Bishop of the diocese of Lincoln, in the year 1521.

EBENEZER BARTLETT was born in New England in about 1758. He there married his wife, Mary Abbot. Their children were, Huldah, Mariah, Increase, Emery, Jonathan and David. Ebenezer's wife was a Congregationalist. The family moved to a locality of Rome, Oneida County, New York, probably about 1822. All the children were born in New England. Ebenezer died in Oneida County, New York and is buried there. After the death of her husband Mary went to Wisconsin to live with her youngest son David in about 1837. She was seventy seven years old at the time and uncommonly strong and well for one that age. Her remarkable good health and strength at that age is shown by her riding horseback across a large swollen river, where the bridge had been washed away, while on her way to Wisconsin to live with her son. She died and was buried in Wisconsin.

EMERY BARTLETT, 2nd. son of Ebenezer, was born in 1795 and married and lost his wife, Ruth Carlisle, before he came to Oneida County to live. They had one child, Jane.

Emery Bartlett married his second wife, Urania Perry, in a locality of Rome in 1823. Their children were Perry, Huldah, Mary, Frances and Elizabeth. Emery, his wife, and all their children and their families were Baptists. Emery was a blacksmith and followed this pursuit when not engaged with his work on the farm. He was a Whig and after the Republican party was formed allied himself with that party.

In about 1835 Emery and his six children started (West) to Sandy Creek in wagons, and settled on the cross road leading off from the Orwell road at the Stevens school house. He bought a farm of about seventy five acres, above Miles Elodgett's present tannery and built a blacksmith shop where he did work for the farmers when not attending to his farm duties. He afterwards sold this place and bought what is known as the Vanderhoof place on the Orwell road and built a new house. Here he died at the age of 60 years and is buried in the Stevens burying ground on the Orwell road.

All the other children of Ebenezer lived in Oneida County, with the exception of David.

MARY BARTLETT, (daughter of Emery, fourth child of Ebenezer) was born in Annsville, Oneida County, N. Y. in 1829, and was five years old at the time the family moved to Sandy Creek. It was while living on the cross road where her father (Emery) first moved that she met and married Samuel Nathan Blodgett.

The remarkable strength and vitality of the family is well illustrated by the life of the oldest sister of Emery (Huldah), who lived to be over ninety three years old and retained her mental and physical vigor to the last. And it is to Mary Bartlett Blodgett, in her 70th. year, that we are indebted for about two hundred dates and facts in the preparation of this work. Years, months, days, names and places in connection with the Bartlett, Blodgett, Perry and Curtis families are given with great detail and accuracy.

LYMAN C. RUNYAN, enlisted on the 29th. day of May, 1864, for one year in Company E, 189th. Regiment of New York Volunteers. He was with the Regiment until January, 1865, when he was taken sick with fever and sent to the Hospital. When he got better he was detailed as nurse in the Hospital, where he served until the muster out of the regiment on the 30th. day of May, 1865.

The 189th. Regiment N. Y. Volunteers formed a part of the Army of the Potomac under General Grant, and were a part of the 5th. Army corps under Brigadier General E. M. Gregory. The officers of Company E. were Capt. Beeman from Orwell; 1st. Lieut. D. P. Owen, of Palermo; 2nd. Lieut. Byron Hinman of Sandy Creek.

Company E. left Oswego on the 14th. day of Sept. 1864 and went to City Point, near Baltimore, Md. The Regt. participated in the Weldon R. R. raid, in the battles of Hatcher's Run and Gravelly Run, and at Five Forks, the key to Petersburg and Richmond. From a History of the 189th. Regiment of N. Y. Vol. by Chaplain the Rev. Wm. H. Rogers "The ever memorable 9th. day of April '65, we were summoned to renew our marching. Lee, completely surrounded was engaging Sheridan intent upon cutting through. Coolly and steadily our columns advanced under the volleys of shell and solid shot poured upon us from the rebel batteries. Rapidly the foe drew back, and our column rose to the brow of the hills around Appomattox Court House. Here the grandest military view ever presented to mortal sight appeared. Wherever the woods did not intercept the view, Grant's dread phalanxes of embattled hosts, infantry, cavalry and artillery, were seen converging, "with awful tread and slow" down the slopes toward Lee's hostile and defiant battalions moving to embrace annihilation, if made to give battle. On both sides the banners are all floating on the breeze. Generals and their mounted aids and officers are hurrying to and fro, directing the movements which are to decide the issue of the four years of war. Then across the fields at terrible speed through our brigade skirmish line, came Lee's orderly, bearing a flag of truce, and exclaiming "Cease firing General Lee surrenders with all his forces". Here ended the greatest war ever known to the annals of time. Here rebellion, secession, and slavery found a common grave."

FAMILY RECORD.

Perry Family Record.

Descendants of

PHILIP PERRY, (Rome, New York)

Born about 1781

Died " 1850

Married about 1801.

ELIZABETH WEED, (His wife)

PHILIP PERRY was born about 1781---married Elizabeth Weed-- came from New England and settled near Rome, Oneida Co., New York. Philip Perry's wife, Elizabeth Weed was a Congregationalist. His mother, before marriage, was Ann Hathaway. She came from Virginia and her people held slaves.

Philip Perry was a blacksmith, and was known as an uncommonly good workman. He was a noted horseshoer of his day, and he shod horses so wild that they had killed other men who attempted it.

During the war of 1812 he was in such demand at the forts, Stamvix and Oriskany that he frequently worked all night that the horses might be ready for duty in the morning.

He is buried in Oneida County.

It is a tradition of the family that they are related to Comodore Perry, of Lake Erie fame.

The above incidents have been related by Philip Perry's oldest child, Urania, and she has also stated that he had brothers George and Andrew but she knew nothing of them. She also stated that some of her uncles (probably by the name of Weed) served in the Revolutionary War.

The following were the children of Philip Perry, all born in Oneida County, except Urania, who has stated that she was born in the vicinity of Saratoga Springs, New York.

Urania, Allen, Eli, Bacchus, Paul, Drusilla, Betsy, Philip, Frances, Sally, Rachel and Mary Ann.

URANIA PERRY, was born in 1802 near Saratoga Springs, New York and moved with her parents to near Rome, New York, in 1804. She was the oldest of a family of twelve children and she outlived them all. She was a woman of remarkable mental and physical vigor and retained this vigor until her death in her eighty-seventh year. She was one of the first to join the Baptist Church in Sandy Creek and she remained a constant attendant and unwavering supporter of its principals through all her life. Her husband and the families of all her children were Baptists. The following incidents are related to show her strength and capacity for work during the few last years of her life. She prepared the material, colored and wove 50 yards of carpet after she was 80 years old. And it is stated after she was 86 years old she pieced blocks for bed quilts for all of her grand daughters (about a dozen). She could walk in her last years much farther than any of her daughters, occasionally two or three miles a day. Only a month before she died she walked over rough country roads from Lacona to the Stevens burying ground, on the Orwell Road, did the work of caring for the graves of her friends she thought necessary, and then walked to the home of her granddaughter on the Ridge Road over a mile further--about three miles all in one day. She bleached yarn just before she died .

She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. C. Runyan and was buried in the Stevens burying ground.
