County of Columbia, Surrogate's Court.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE GOODS, CHATTELS AND CREDITS
OF

Alvin Covey deceased,

To Charles B. Dutcher, Surrogate of the County of Columbia.

The Petition of Hannah Covey of the town of Anacram — ; respectfully sheweth, that she is a sister of said Alvin and that the said Alvin Covey died the 8th day of December 1854 — and died intestate as your petitioner verily believes. That your petitioner has made diligent search and inquiry for a will of the said deceased, and has not found any or obtained any information that he left or ever made one. That your petitioner has to the best of her ability estimated and ascertained the value of the personal property which the said deceased died possessed, and that the same does not exceed in value the sum of about, seven hundred dollars

That the said intestate left six kindred entitled to his estate, whose names and places of residence are as follows; four petitions of the town of Anacram, in said County — Luther Covey of Port Byron in Cayuga Co, Henry Covey of Genesee in Livingston Co, Benjamin Covey of Sandy Creek in Lewis County, Eliza Covey of Pennsville of Lewis Co, James Covey of the State of Michigan, and the children of the said Alvin, whose names and places of residence are not known to your petitioner, the above named persons are Brothers & Sisters of said Alvin deceased.

Your petitioner further sheweth that the said intestate at or immediately previous to his death was an inhabitant of the County of Columbia. That your petitioner is of full age, and that she is informed and believes that the Surrogate of the County of Columbia, has sole and exclusive power to grant letters of administration of the goods, chattels and credits of the said intestate. She prays that such letters may be granted to your petitioner, & that citations may issue requiring the heirs first entitled to appear & show cause why letters of administration shall not be granted to your petitioner — pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided

And your petitioner will ever pray. ~~Coyne~~

Hannah Covey

State of New-York, } ss:
COLUMBIA COUNTY, }

On the 8th day of February — in the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty one personally appeared before me, Hannah Covey — the petitioner named in the forgoing petition; who being by me duly sworn, did depose and say that she had ^{heard} read the forgoing petition by her subscribed, and knew the contents thereof, and that the same was true of her own knowledge excepting as to the matters therein stated on her information and belief, and as to those matters she believe it to be true.

1. The first part of the paper discusses the general properties of the system under study. It is shown that the system is characterized by a set of parameters which are independent of the size of the system. This is a surprising result, since one would expect the properties to depend on the size of the system. The second part of the paper discusses the specific properties of the system. It is shown that the system exhibits a phase transition at a certain temperature. The critical temperature is found to be independent of the size of the system. This is a surprising result, since one would expect the critical temperature to depend on the size of the system. The third part of the paper discusses the implications of these results. It is shown that the results are consistent with the predictions of the theory of phase transitions. The fourth part of the paper discusses the experimental results. It is shown that the experimental results are in good agreement with the theoretical predictions. The fifth part of the paper discusses the conclusions of the study. It is concluded that the system under study is characterized by a set of parameters which are independent of the size of the system. This is a surprising result, since one would expect the properties to depend on the size of the system. The critical temperature is found to be independent of the size of the system. re: Julia E. Covey Spear

Dear Sir:

Your letter of 15 November 1986 was given to me today for a response and I am glad to supply the following information which you were seeking on subject person. My cenetery records of the Seward Cemetery show the following information;

Julia E. SPEAR 1846-1931 "Mother. His Wife"

In the same lot, the following stones which supply missing information or differing information were among those buried there:

Wesley M. SPEAR 1846-1890 "Father"
Julia Ann COVEY 1806-1893 "Grandma"

I hope this information will help to fill in the blank spaces in your genealogical research.

Sincerely,

Wayne C. Martin

and vivacity, combined with most genial and attractive social qualities, and unusual conversational gifts, which were aided by an extraordinary compass, harmony, and flexibility of voice. Each of them was more than six feet in height and finely proportioned. All of them received the rudiments of their education at the then good common schools of their native town, in which their honored father had been in early life a successful and popular teacher.

John M. finished his studies at Boston and Williamstown, Myron and Horace at Yale College, Orville at Cambridge, and Newman at a popular academy nearer home. John M. was born at Salisbury, Conn., on the 7th of September, 1777, and died there Nov. 14, 1836. In 1798 he took charge of one of the corps of surveyors that ran out the "Connecticut Fire Lands," as they were then called, now called the "Western Reserve," in Ohio, and before leaving the State he laid out the city of Cleveland. Soon after his return to Salisbury he embarked in the forwarding business at Poughkeepsie, with Livingstone & Bogardus, of New York. A few years later, his father having purchased the old furnace property at Salisbury, where so many of the cannon and shot were made that were used in the war of the Revolution, he returned to Salisbury and joined his father in the manufacture of pig iron.

In 1814, Luther Holley having purchased the beautiful farm on the shore of the Lake Wononscopomue, in Salisbury, on which he afterwards lived and died, was succeeded in the iron business by John C. Coffing, thus forming the long and well-known firm of Holley & Coffing,—a firm which, for extended business enterprise, active public spirit, and high integrity of character, ranked among the foremost of the time. Their manufacturing operations in cast and wrought iron for government and private armories, and for general uses, were extended into Massachusetts and New York, and were uniformly and largely successful for that early period.

In January, 1800, J. M. Holley married Sally Porter, the youngest daughter of Col. Joshua Porter, of Salisbury (whose life has been more particularly alluded to in a sketch of his grandson, Alexander H. Holley). She became the mother of John M. Holley, Jr., who was a graduate of Yale in 1822, where he acquitted himself with honor, and subsequently married a daughter of Gen. Joseph Kirkland, of Utica, N. Y.; practiced law in Western New York, represented his district twice in the General Assembly of the State, and died in Florida while a member of Congress. She was also the mother of Alexander H., a sketch of whose life appears in another part of this work, and of George W. Holley, of Niagara Falls, all of whom were born in Salisbury. George W. was educated chiefly at Capt. Patridge's military school in Vermont, and at West Point. He also represented his district in the General Assembly of the State, and is the author of works on the geology of the country about

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

JOHN MILTON HOLLEY.

John Milton Holley, son of Luther Holley, was the oldest son of a brotherhood of six remarkable men; remarkable for the manly beauty and perfection of their physical organization, for marked mental vigor

Niagara. He was for several years the agent of Gen. Peter B. Porter, his uncle, and after the general's death was guardian of his children.

Luther Holley's grandfather was the first of the family to settle in Litchfield County, he having removed from Stamford, Conn., to Sharon, where Luther was born July 12, 1751. The following extracts from a letter of his to his son Horace will give some account of his earlier life: "After I had advanced towards manhood, say at the age of sixteen or seventeen, my father was ill for several years. My two older brothers were of age and had gone from home. It fell to my lot, therefore, to carry on the farm. I worked hard during the day, and at night had to go after doctors and medicine, sometimes riding eight or nine miles, and often becoming so weary that I have fallen asleep on my horse. My father continued ill for years after I was of age; but, by my own exertions and the persevering industry of my mother and sisters, we lived in good style for that day, and punctually paid every demand." A practice for which he was quite remarkable through his whole life. "When at work on a plow one day I cut my knee, and lay for ten or twelve weeks under the care of doctors, expecting to have my leg cut off. Meantime I studied hard to qualify myself to teach school, and succeeded so well that I obtained a small school the next winter, and gave so much satisfaction that I was engaged for the next year. I agreed for six months for seven dollars and fifty cents per month, which was then a great price. I continued to keep school for three years, the salary being raised from time to time until it reached five pounds." Wearying of teaching, he embarked in trade. "I then formed a partnership with William Davis, of Sharon. We made a large purchase of goods of Richard Smith, of New London, who, being in Holland, had assisted our government in its struggle for independence to procure a quantity of gunpowder. For this service the Legislature of Connecticut granted him the privilege of bringing into the country thirty thousand dollars' worth of goods. This purchase of Richard Smith was made just before the news of peace reached the country; the price of goods fell; Mr. Davis became discouraged, sold out, and quit business; I carried it through, paid Smith, and made some money." Subsequently he engaged in business in Redhook, on the Hudson, and in Dover, Dutchess Co. He represented one of the districts in the latter county in the General Assembly of the State. Soon after he removed to Salisbury, where he engaged in business as above stated. He also represented the town of Salisbury during three sessions of the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut.

Myron Holley, the second son of Luther, engaged in business in Western New York in early life, represented the district of his residence during several sessions of the Legislature, and with voice and pen was very efficient in advancing the Erie Canal project.

When its construction was decided upon he was made one of the commissioners to carry forward the work, and devoted his best energies to it until it was made available for use.

Horace Holley became a popular preacher in Boston, where he remained about eight years, and from whence he removed to Lexington, Ky., to accept the presidency of Transylvania University.

At his decease, in 1827, Professor Caldwell, of Lexington, pronounced a funeral oration, from which the following extract is taken. Referring to his decease, he says,—

"It announces to you that Holley, who lately presided in this institution with unrivaled lustre, to whose peerless eloquence this temple has so often resounded, whose judgment and taste were standards by which to decide on excellency both in literature and arts, whose soul, as if obedient to an impulse of prophecy, often sprang forward into future times, and bodied forth the thick coming glories of his country, with a potency of reason, a richness of color, that gave to them the charm of existing realities; whose hospitality knew no limit but that of his means and opportunities to extend it; who was a finished model of elegance in manners and refinement of breeding, and whose manly beauty and graceful deportment were as attractive to the eye as the mellifluous tones of his voice in conversation were delightful to the ear."

Orville L. Holley spent most of his life in the cities of New York and Albany, practiced law in both, became editor and author for many years, and for several years was surveyor-general of the State. He died in Albany, in March, 1861.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON HOLLEY.

Alexander Hamilton Holley was born in Salisbury, Litchfield Co., Conn., on the 12th of August, 1804. His father, John Milton Holley, was also born in Salisbury, 7th of September, 1777. His father, Luther Holley, was born in Sharon, Conn., July 12, 1751. Luther's grandfather was the head of the family in this county, having moved into Sharon from Stamford, Conn., and was one of its earliest settlers. A more detailed sketch of Luther's life may be found in connection with that of his oldest son, John Milton. The grandfather of Alexander on his mother's side was Col. Joshua Porter, who was the first of his family in this county. He was born in Lebanon, Conn., in 1730, was a graduate of Yale College, removed to Salisbury in 1754 or 1755, and made the town his place of residence for the remainder of his life, which was terminated in April, 1825, at the age of ninety-five years. He was a marked man, and spent many years of his long life in the public service. He was elected to the General Assembly of the State fifty-five times, was a judge of the County Court twenty-eight years, judge of probate over thirty years, and held minor offices in town from ten to forty years. He was also colonel in the army, and was with his regiment at the surrender of Gen. Burgoyne at Saratoga. He was for six years agent of the State, superintending the making of cannon in the Salisbury furnace during the Revolutionary war. His sons, Augustus and Peter B., became very distinguished men. They were
