OUR EARLY FAMILIES

SETTLERS ON ORWELL ROAD

How Orwell Road Came to Have a Cemetery—Where the Early Families Located.

Among the early settlers of the town of Sandy Creek on the Orwell road were three brothers, Ashbel, Levi and Seth Porter, Levi living across the road from the present residence of Claude Porter; Ashbel on the hill north of the cemetery and Seth at that time across the road from the house built by Henry Stevens and now owned by Floyd H. Stevens. Also two Salisbury brothers, Daniel and Reuben, Daniel living on the hill north of the school house in Dist. No. 5 and Reuben on the farm south, lately owned by Stevens Brothers of Liverpool, N. Y. Two brothers, Stevens, Ezra and Peter, both from New England. In 1818 Peter Stevens bought of his brother Ezra his dwelling which is a part of the house now owned and occupied by Freeman Davis.

In the spring of 1825 Ezra Stevens, while planting corn with a neighbor on the land now occupied by the Orwell road cemetery said that when he died he wanted to be buried on that hill. He died July 4th, 1825 and was the first to be buried in that cemetery, where many of the descendants of these early settlers now rest.

Among residents of the Orwell road and vicinity of seventy-five years ago were four families of Hardings occupying the places now owned by Ira Lounsbury, Jay Bettinger and the Soules families, also Deacon Asa Carpenter, grandfather of Rev. E. D. Carpenter, Amasa Carpenter on place now owned by John Crandall. Freeman Davis, with six sons from Nathan to George W.; Jeremiah Mead, whose seventh son, Stephen P. was called Doc, with two brothers younger; Emery Bartlett, where Claude Porter now is; Harlow Stevens and Ashbel B. Stevens, where now Freeman Davis resides. Miles Blodgett on east road by tannery, with E. Goff and Wm. G. Rich just beyond; Truman Salisbury, next to the school house; John W. Porter and Benj. Covey, south of the school house, Lorenzo Salisbury and John Porter (short John to distinguish him from Long John W.); Carlton Durfee, where E. C. Keene now lives and Wm. Hinman on hill this side Trout brook.

All these have passed to the great beyond of which so much is said and so little known and their descendants scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean.

The Sandy Creek News would be pleased to publish family and neighborhood sketches relating to the early history of this and nearby towns.

Aid of Community is Requested in Attempt to Compile History of Town Fathers in 1845

Commencing in this issue is a serial article which will continue for several weeks. In it we are attempting to run brief but comprehensive sketches of nearly 400 people who lived in this town in 1845. A column, and more if necessary, has been set aside for each week for this purpose. Incidents concerning the lives of these people which would interest the community as well as their place of residence at this period, their business, and their living descendants are among the details necessary for the completeness of these sketches.

It is hoped that all who may have such information will place it in the hands of the editor for publication. This week a few sketches are outlined, for which further details would be welcome. Also, there appear several names of which nothing is known. The names are listed alphabetically, so by filing away each issue as it comes into the home, at the conclusion of this serial a complete record of the town fathers in 1845, and their descendants will be at your disposal.

EIGHTY-FIVE YEARS OLD, READS WITHOUT GLASSES

Whether due to the good reading matter therein, or to exceptionally fine eyesight, Mr. Alvin Thompson at eighty-five years of age is still roadily perusing the columns of The Sandy Creek News on Thursday evenings without the aid of glasses.

And that is not all. He is also gifted with a rare, retentive memory which has been of untold assistance in gathering facts for a serial article beginning in this issue. For many evenings sitting in his arm-chair deep in thought, he probed into the past, and with a reminder now and then from Mrs. Thompson, it has been possible to link 1845 with 1927.

Census Reveals Secrets of Village Greatgrandfathers

A census of the town of Sandy Creek, election district number one, discovered in the walls of the J. P. Jones' residence which is being extensively remodeled, reveals town secrets of our grandfathers and great grandfathers eighty-two years ago. In spite of its spotted and faded cloth cover perhaps warped by storms as it was being carried from home to home about the town by the census taker or perhaps by its long continued seclusion in the walls of this home on North Main street at one time owned by Joseph McKee, father of Mrs. Helen Sprague, it is yet as legible as the day it was written.

The outer edges of the pages are yellowed, and nibbled away probably by mice; the ink has faded to a dark brown, yet the pencil marks which appear at the bottom of each page in totaling columns of figures are still in a state of perfect preservation. The final name, that of James Thompson, is also entered in pencil and it would not be surprising if he were the census taker in this case. There were three James Thompsons living at that time, one a doctor. As it was often customary in those days for members of the medical profession to add this also to their duties, it would seem a reasonably safe presumption that Dr. James Thompson was the census taker. Several of the final pages have been torn from the volume and parts of two pages have been ravaged by the mice, making it impossible to draw accurate conclusions, although the census will eventually find its place in the Annie P. Ainsworth Memorial Library.

384 Families

There are entered 384 names as the head of each family, only 9 of them being women. Among them are surnames which continue to occupy places of prominence in the business of our village, while the christian names favor of the Old Testament, Amos, Benjamin, Moses, Joseph, Abraham, etc. There are two John Smith's, while the most unusual given names were perhaps those of Hymeneus Cole and Darwin Crockett, the most common were those of William, and John; 26 and 24 respectively of the 384 having been thus christened.

It is doubtful if our town could today boast of having as few aliens not naturalized as the small number of 2 recorded in 1845. In all that population there was but 1 pauper and 1 negro. Against the 16 deaths occurring during the year there were 30 boys and 28 girls born, while 23 marriages were celebrated.

American Born

This village being situated so inland attracted few of the foreign born population, altogether totaling the small sum of 17. Of this number 16 were born in Great Britain and 1 in Germany. New York State was the birthplace of 1,696 inhabitants of the town, 325 coming from the New England states and 3 from other states of the nation.

A cursory examination of the census indicates a large number attending school even beyond the age of sixteen years. Private schools claimed 33 of the school children but columns given over to the names attending college were blank.

Industrious Community

We may well be proud of our grandfathers; they were industrious hard-working farmers, and our grandmothers led equally busy lives. During that year our forefathers owned 12,706 acres of improved land and raised on this soil 1,380 bushels of barley; 1,556 of peas; 2,800 of beans; 1,754 of buckwheat; 9,400 turnips; 41,693 of potatoes; 9,330 of flax; 11,685 of wheat; 24,222 of corn; 1,350 of rye; 18,799 of oats; showing that at this early date potatoes, corn and oats were most extensively grown, and these are still the most cultivated crops of the town today.

Of the live stock, sheep were extensively owned, totaling from which 14,787 lbs. of wool was taken. Cattle followed with 1,000 head; hogs, 2,174; and horses 1,000.

Spinning Wheels Busy

Our great-grandmothers report that during the year they had 2,504 yards of fulled cloth, 4,884 of flannel and other woollen goods, 438 yards of linen, cotton and thin cloths.

Not only the spinners but also the churns for 127,670

Thomas Nichols, the father of John L. Nichols, lived on the Oren R. Earl farm north of the village, on the Ellisburg road. This property is now owned by Gardner Snyder. He was the grandfather of Mrs. Brainard Tift and Mrs. William H. Young of Syracuse. ~~Prym~~

Simon ~~Prym~~ lived on the Leon Oyer farm. He was the father of Hamilton and Howard ~~Prym~~ Lincoln ~~Prym~~ of Putauki and Frank ~~Prym~~ of Gouverneur are descendants. Abram ~~Prym~~ lived on the Ridge road in the brick house which he built, and later in the tannery house.

Calvin Parish lived in Orwell for many years. At one time, however, they lived between the district No. 5 school house and the home of Cornwell Keene. There had been a tornado, or a big wind storm in that vicinity before they came, and there was as a result a windfall. Evidently they chose this site, as there would be less difficulty in clearing the land. Also, there was a fine spring here, and the ease of getting water was always a big factor with the early settlers in deciding a place for a home. However, the land was very stoney here. X

William Pecox lived where the Central Hotel now stands, in a little house high on a knoll. The situation was dug away, making it on a lower level when the hotel was built.

There were three Porter brothers on the Census of 1845. Levi, Ashbel and Seth Porter. Seth Porter built and lived on the Gardner Snyder place south of the Ingersoll cheese factory. Previous to that he had a log house across from the Floyd Stevens farm, which he sold to Albert Stevens' grandfather. Seth Porter was always known in his later years as Uncle Seth. He also had a saw mill on the Gardner Snyder farm. He was the father of eleven children. Among his great grandchildren are Dr. Leroy P. Hollis, Dr. S. C. Hollis, and D. J. Hollis.

Levi Porter lived on the east side of the Orwell road where Claude Porter now lives. Levi Porter was the grandfather of Mrs. Theodore Wart.

Ashbel Porter lived beside Levi Porter, on the hill just this side of the cemetery on the Orwell road, in the present Presley home. He was the father of John Porter, named in the Census of 1845.

Harvey Porter, another of the Porters listed in the Census was the son of Levi, and lived at one time on the Claude Porter farm.

John W. Porter, also of the Census, was the father of Orlo Porter. He lived in the house just beyond the school house.

It is of interest to note that Claude Porter, who is the grandson of Levi W. Porter now owns the most of the land once the property of Levi and Ashbel Porter.

Alphonso Perrin of the Census of 1845 was a blacksmith. His youngest son, Robert Perrin, now lives in Massena Iowa and was a school mate of Alvin Thompson's. The Perrin home was the Skinklo home now owned by Rev. S. A. Renicks.

Our Missing List, now quite decreased, appears below, and we hope in our Thanksgiving issue to be able to return thanks for further erasures, as we are now most grateful to all for their cooperation.

Thomas Nichols, the father of John L. Nichols, lived on the Oren R. Earl farm north of the village, on the Ellisburg road. This property is now owned by Gardner Snyder. He was the grandfather of Mrs. Brainard Tift and Mrs. William H. Young of Syracuse.

Simon Pryor lived on the Leon Oyer farm. He was the father of Hamilton and Howard Pryor. Lincoln Pryor of Pulaski and Frank Pryor of Gouverneur are descendants. Abram Pryor lived on the Ridge road in the brick house which he built, and later in the tannery house.

Calvin Parish lived in Orwell for many years. At one time, however, they lived between the district No. 5 school house and the home of Cornwell Keene. There had been a tornado, or a big wind storm in that vicinity before they came, and there was as a result a windfall. Evidently they chose this site, as there would be less difficulty in clearing the land. Also, there was a fine spring here, and the ease of getting water was always a big factor with the early settlers in deciding a place for a home. However, the land was very stoney here.

SKETCHES

These are the days of high enthusiasm for all that graced the homes of our ancestors, be it the table that held the tallow candle around which the family gathered at suppertime, or the brass candlestick with its candle shedding the flickering light on the family circle at the evening meal, or the dishes upon which the simple fare was served.

In Sketches, it is our desire to make live again and for as long as the printed word endures, this family circle whose memory we cherish not only because theirs is a story of a struggle, endurance and conquest, but because their story is also that of our own community and for the majority of our readers, has the closer tie of kinship.

So we have gone back not quite a century to the time when some unknown hand placed in the walls of a home a census book containing the enrollment of the town of Sandy Creek in 1845. There this record lay concealed until 1927 when in tearing down walls to build the new home of John F. Jones, it was there discovered.

Since early autumn, a column known as Sketches has appeared in the News. In this column, the names on the census roll have been printed with brief sketches concerning them. In many cases, information was lacking, and these names appear on what is called the Missing List. This list is reprinted weekly with the hope that some of our readers will be able to give us information concerning these persons. The spelling of the names on the Census of 1845 has been retained in Sketches.

The brief sketches which we give, it is our desire that you enlarge upon whenever possible. For it is not alone the bare facts of their lives which we would record, but their joys and sorrows also. For as their lives would have been empty and meaningless without these, so will the memory of our forefathers be without significance to those of the after centuries if we fail to include the pathos, the humor and the happiness that was theirs.

Seth Porter

One of the earliest settlers of the town of Sandy Creek was Seth Porter, whose name, with those of his brothers, Levi and Ashbel, appeared on the Census of 1845.

About the year 1820 Seth Porter and his companion came to Sandy Creek, entering an unbroken forest and building a log cabin across from what is now the F. H. Stevens farm. This he afterwards sold to the grandfather of Albert Stevens and built a home on the Gardner Snyder place south of the Ingersoll cheese factory. Here he had a saw mill.

Twelve children were born to them and in this large family a place was also found for a thirteenth child, left an orphan in infancy, and whom they reared with their own. Mr. Porter is described as having been one of those men who are willing to provide, by the labor of their hands and the sweat of their face, for themselves and those rightfully dependent upon them. In his youth he was much given to music and dancing and he retained his fondness and appreciation for this to the end of his life, seeming to enjoy life more than the average householder of that day. Naturally of a merry heart, the sunshine of life was not darkened for him by gloomy forebodings of the future. He embraced no particular creed or theory nor did he ever seem to have any uneasiness as to a future life, willing to leave that event with the Power that had placed him here.

In later life he was affectionately known to all about him as "Uncle Seth." His marriage was a particularly happy one. The views and feelings of the aged couple were similar through life and in death, they were not long divided for both died within a year, Mr. Porter on April 19, 1884, in the 93rd year of his life. In his obituary which appeared in The News for that year, it was said that he and his companion "went down to their grave as a shock of corn fully ripe, and sleep with their fathers."

SKETCHES

Mrs. Lydia Hedger

Mrs. Lettie Wart of Syracuse who recently spent several weeks with friends and relatives in this vicinity has very kindly given us the following information concerning her grandmother, Lydia Hedger, whose name, incorrectly spelled "Heger" appeared on the Census List of 1845 and of whom we have heretofore been unable to learn.

Lydia Hedger, whose maiden name was White, came to Sandy Creek in the early days of its settlement with her husband, Hiram Hedger. Mrs. Wart is of the opinion that they came from Columbia county, New York, but is not certain of this. They were of Dutch descent.

After they arrived in Sandy Creek they purchased a farm on what is today known as the Orwell road and built a log house where the home of Foster Mead now stands. There were two children, a son, Harry, who went to the West to live, and a daughter, Lucretia.

Hiram Hedger died when these children were very small and this doubtless accounts for the appearance of Lydia's Hedger's name on the Census List. In her old age she was cared for in the home of her daughter where she died in 1876.

As stated above, Lydia Hedger's son, Henry, went West and nothing is known of his descendants. The daughter, Lucretia, became the wife of John Porter and they lived on the Hedger farm, adding a more modern home to the log cabin built by their parents. John Porter was the son of Levi Porter, who was a brother of Ashbel and Seth Porter. The names of all three appeared on the Census List.

Three children were born to John and Lucretia Porter; Hiram, Eugene and Lettie. Hiram married Mary Johnson and they had several children, one of whom now lives in Alaska while another is in Washington. Eugene Porter married Ellen Ackler, daughter of Jacob C. and Emily Ackler, and they were the parents of two children, John Porter who lives somewhere in the West, and Leon Porter who lives in Fulton. He has one son, Jack Porter.

Lettie Porter, the only daughter, married Theodore Wart and they lived for many years in the vicinity of Sandy Creek, afterwards moving to Mannsville, where Mr. Wart passed away about two years ago. They have one son, Virgil Wart, who is married and has three children, Morris, Ada and Donald Wart. Mrs. Lettie Wart now makes her home with them in Syracuse.

The removal of Lydia Hedger's name from the Missing List leaves unidentified only two of the women whose names appeared on the 1845 Census List. They are Chloe Webber and Rachel Young, and we are hoping that through the cooperation of some of our readers these also may be removed. Perhaps only a few facts are known and these are believed insufficient to form the material for a Sketch; nevertheless, this brief outline will be the means of recording the history of one more of the early families of the town and will be most welcome.

Aid of Community is Requested in Attempt to Compile History of Town Fathers in 1845

Commencing in this issue is a serial article which will continue for several weeks. In it we are attempting to run brief but comprehensive sketches of nearly 400 people who lived in this town in 1845. A column, and more if necessary, has been set aside for each week for this purpose. Incidents concerning the lives of these people which would interest the community as well as their place of residence at this period, their business, and their living descendants are among the details necessary for the completeness of these sketches.

It is hoped that all who may have such information will place it in the hands of the editor for publication. This week a few sketches are outlined, for which further details would be welcome. Also, there appear several names of which nothing is known. The names are listed alphabetically, so by filing away each issue as it comes into the home, at the conclusion of this serial a complete record of the town fathers in 1845, and their descendants will be at your disposal.

EIGHTY-FIVE YEARS OLD, READS WITHOUT GLASSES

Whether due to the good reading matter therein, or to exceptionally fine eyesight, Mr. Alvin Thompson at eighty-five years of age is still readily perusing the columns of The Sandy Creek News on Thursday evenings without the aid of glasses.

And that is not all. He is also gifted with a rare, retentive memory which has been of untold assistance in gathering facts for a serial article beginning in this issue. For many evenings sitting in his arm-chair deep in thought, he probed into the past, and with a reminder now and then from Mrs. Thompson, it has been possible to link 1845 with 1927.

Census Reveals Secrets of Village Greatgrandfathers

A census of the town of Sandy Creek, election district number one, discovered in the walls of the J. P. Jones' residence which in being extensively remodeled, reveals town secrets of our grandfathers and great grandfathers eighty-two years ago. In spite of its spotted and faded cloth cover perhaps warped by storms as it was being carried from home to home about the town by the census taker or perhaps by its long continued seclusion in the walls of this home on North Main street at one time owned by Joseph McKee, father of Mrs. Helen Sprague, it is yet as legible as the day it was written.

The outer edges of the pages are yellowed, and nibbled away probably by mice; the ink has faded to a dark brown, yet the pencil marks which appear at the bottom of each page in totaling columns of figures are still in a state of perfect preservation. The final name, that of James Thompson, is also entered in pencil and it would not be surprising if he were the census taker in this case. There were three James Thompsons living at that time, one a doctor. As it was often customary in those days for members of the medical profession to add this also to their duties, it would seem a reasonably safe presumption that Dr. James Thompson was the census taker. Several of the final pages have been torn from the volume and parts of two pages have been ravaged by the mice, making it impossible to draw accurate conclusions, though

This census will eventually find its place in the Annie P. Ainsworth Memorial Library.

384 Families

There are entered 384 names as the head of each family, only 9 of them being women. Among them are surnames which continue to occupy places of prominence in the business of our village, while the christian names savor of the Old Testament, Amos, Benjamin, Moses, Joseph, Abraham, etc. There are two John Smith's, while the most unusual given names were perhaps those of Hymeneus Cole and Darwin Crockett, the most common were those of William, and John; 26 and 24 respectively of the 384 having been thus christened.

It is doubtful if our town could today boast of having as few aliens not naturalized as the small number of 2 recorded in 1845. In all that population there was but 1 pauper and 1 negro. Against the 16 deaths occurring during the year there were boys and 28 girls born, while 23 marriages were celebrated.

American Born

This village being situated so inland attracted few of the foreign born population, altogether totaling the small sum of 17. Of this number 16 were born in Great Britain and in Germany. New York State was the birthplace of 1,696 inhabitants of the town, 325 coming from the New England states and 3 from other states of the nation.

A cursory examination of the census indicates a large number attending school even beyond the age of sixteen years. Private schools claimed 33 of the school children but columns given over to the names attending college were blank.

Industrious Community

We may well be proud of our grandfathers; they were industrious hard-working farmers, and our grandmothers led equally busy lives. During that year our forefathers owned 12,706 acres of improved land and raised on this soil 1,380 bushels of barley; 1,556 of peas; 2,300 beans; 1,754 of buckwheat; 9,100 turnips; 41,693 of potatoes; 9,285 of flax; 11,685 of wheat; 24,222 of oats; 1,350 of rye; 18,790 of oats; showing that at this early date potatoes, corn and oats were most extensively grown, and these are still the most cultivated crops of the town today.

Of the live stock, sheep were extensively owned, totaling from which 14,787 lbs. of wool was taken. Cattle followed with 1 head; hogs, 2,174; and horses 1.

Spinning Wheels Busy

Our great-grandmothers report that during the year they had 2,504 yards of fulled cloth, 4,684 of flannel and other woollens, 438 yards of linen, cotton and thin cloths.

Not only the spinners but also the churns for 127,670

Thomas Nichols, the father of John L. Nichols, lived on the Oren R. Earl farm north of the village, on the Ellisburg road. This property is now owned by Gardner Snyder. He was the grandfather of Mrs. Brainard Tiff and Mrs. William H. Young of Syracuse.

Simon Pryor lived on the Leon Oyer farm. He was the father of Hamilton and Howard Pryor. Lincoln Pryor of Pulaski and Frank Pryor of Gouverneur are descendants. Abram Pryor lived on the Ridge road in the brick house which he built, and later in the tannery house.

Calvin Parish lived in Orwell for many years. At one time, however, they lived between the district No. 5 school house and the home of Cornwell Keene. There had been a tornado, or a big wind storm in that vicinity before they came, and there was as a result a windfall. Evidently they chose this site, as there would be less difficulty in clearing the land. Also, there was a fine spring here, and the ease of getting water was always a big factor with the early settlers in deciding a place for a home. However, the land was very stoney here.

William Pexox lived where the Central Hotel now stands, in a little house high on a knoll. The situation was dug away, making it on a lower level when the hotel was built.

There were three Porter brothers on the Census of 1845, Levi, Ashbel and Seth Porter. Seth Porter built and lived on the Gardner Snyder place south of the Ingersoll cheese factory. Previous to that he had a log house across from the Floyd Stevens farm, which he sold to Albert Stevens' grandfather. Seth Porter was always known in his later years as Uncle Seth. He also had a saw mill on the Gardner Snyder farm. He was the father of eleven children. Among his great grandchildren are Dr. Leroy F. Hollis, Dr. S. C. Hollis, and D. J. Hollis.

Levi Porter lived on the east side of the Orwell road where Claude Porter now lives. Levi Porter was the grandfather of Mrs. Theodore Wart.

Ashbel Porter lived beside Levi Porter, on the hill just this side of the cemetery on the Orwell road, in the present Presley home. He was the father of John Porter, named in the Census of 1845.

Harvey Porter, another of the Porters listed in the Census was the son of Levi, and lived at one time on the Claude Porter farm.

John W. Porter, also of the Census, was the father of Orlo Porter. He lived in the house just beyond the school house.

It is of interest to note that Claude Porter, who is the grandson of Levi W. Porter now owns the most of the land once the property of Levi and Ashbel Porter.

Alphonso Perrin of the Census of 1845 was a blacksmith. His youngest son, Robert Perrin, now lives in Massena Iowa and was a school mate of Alvin Thompson's. The Perrin home was the Skinkle home now owned by Rev. S. A. Ronicks.

Our Missing List, now quite decreased, appears below, and we hope in our Thanksgiving issue to be able to return thanks for further erasures, as we are now most grateful to all for their cooperation.

SETTLERS ON ORWELL ROAD

How Orwell Road Came to Have a Cemetery—Where the Early Families Located.

Among the early settlers of the town of Sandy Creek on the Orwell road were three brothers, Ashbel, Levi and Seth Porter, Levi living across the road from the present residence of Claude Porter; Ashbel on the hill north of the cemetery and Seth at that time across the road from the house built by Henry Stevens and now owned by Floyd H. Stevens. Also two Salisbury brothers, Daniel and Reuben, Daniel living on the hill north of the school house in Dist. No. 5 and Reuben on the farm south, lately owned by Stevens Brothers of Liverpool, N. Y. Two brothers, Stevens, Ezra and Peter, both from New England. In 1818 Peter Stevens bought of his brother Ezra his dwelling which is a part of the house now owned and occupied by Freeman Davis.

In the spring of 1825 Ezra Stevens, while planting corn with a neighbor on the land now occupied by the Orwell road cemetery said that when he died he wanted to be buried on that hill. He died July 4th, 1825 and was the first to be buried in that cemetery, where many of the descendants of these early settlers now rest.

Among residents of the Orwell road and vicinity of seventy-five years ago were four families of Hardings occupying the places now owned by Ira Lounsbury, Jay Bettinger and the Soules families, also Deacon Asa Carpenter, grandfather of Rev. E. D. Carpenter, Amasa Carpenter on place now owned by John Crandall. Freeman Davis, with six sons from Nathan to George W.; Jeremiah Mead, whose seventh son, Stephen P. was called Doc, with two brothers younger; Emery Bartlett, where Claude Porter now is; Harlow Stevens and Ashbel B. Stevens, where now Freeman Davis resides. Miles Blodgett on east road by tannery, with E. Goff and Wm. G. Rich just beyond; Truman Salisbury, next to the school house; John W. Porter and Benj. Covey, south of the school house, Lorenzo Salisbury and John Porter (short John to distinguish him from Long John W.); Carlton Durfee, where E. C. Keene now lives and Wm. Hinman on hill this side Trout brook.

All these have passed to the great beyond of which so much is said and so little known and their descendants scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean.

The Sandy Creek News would be pleased to publish family and neighborhood sketches relating to the early history of this and nearby towns.
