Mayor Potts

'Of all places I've seen, Jerico is the prettiest'

by Ronnie Roy

Francis Potts is a hard man to track down for someone who is semiretired, but he did stop for a moment to sit on the porch swing in front of his white brick house and talk about his life in Jerico Springs.

Potts says he has lived in Jerico Springs all his life, but his life has not been as long as previously reported. A recent article in the Springfield Daily News said Potts was 79 years old. "I've still got ten years to go until then," he said.

Potts was a member of the 1933 graduating class of Jerico Springs. His favorite memories are of the porch on the south side of the school. "It was the best place to eat watermelons," he said. "The boys would bring in watermelons, which they probably stole, and we'd go there and eat them."

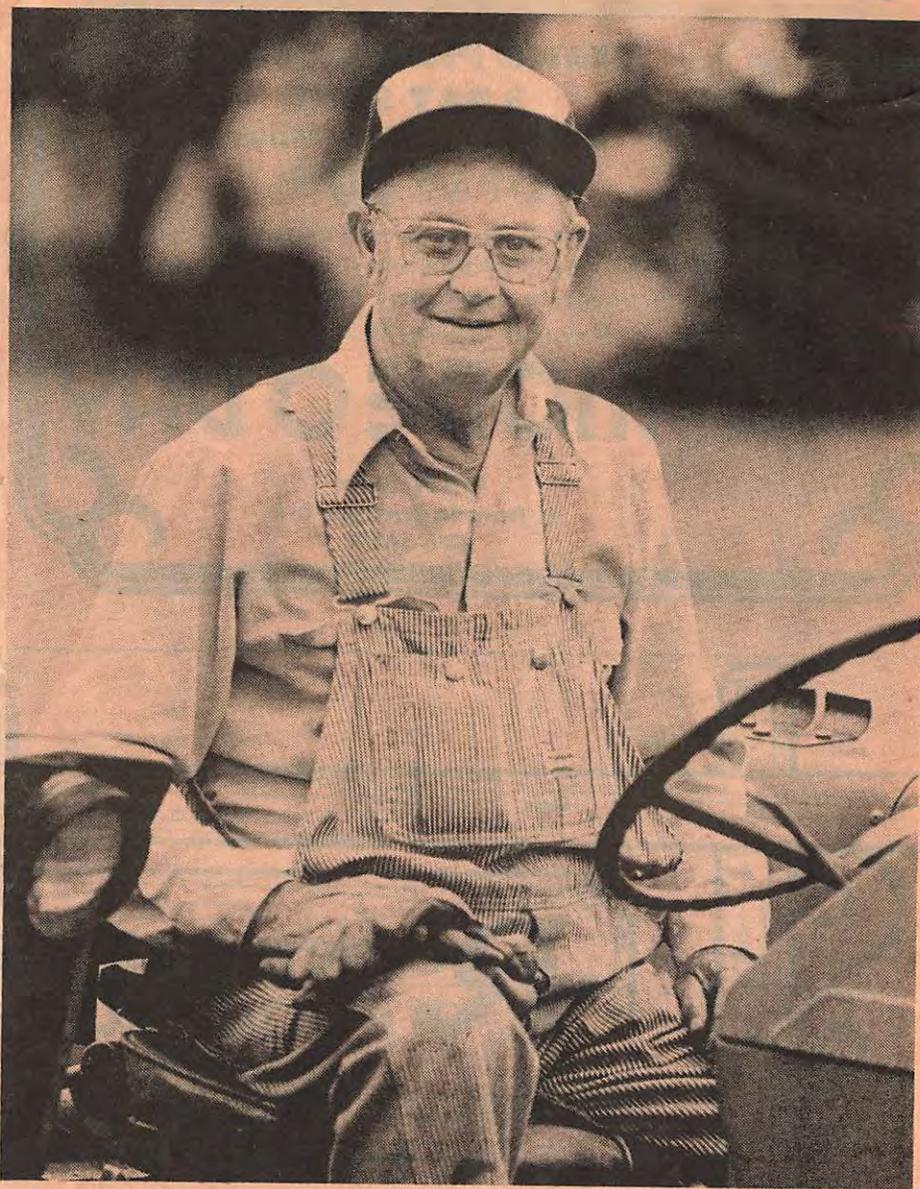

Potts' class will hold its 50-year reunion Sunday after the Jerico Springs picnic. There were 15 in the graduating class. "Twelve of them are left," he said. "Most of them should make it back."

Today, Potts is a semiretired trucker. He began hauling stock to Springfield on April 11, 1935. Before then he worked in the mill with his father and hauled feed and stock in his '26 Model T truck. "I've hauled all my life," he said.

For the past seven years, Potts has been mayor of Jerico Springs. One of his duties as a member of the board of trustees is to take care of the water meters. "I check the pump every day and check out, pull and hang meters," he said. Potts is also a member of the volunteer fire department and one of the 10 members always on call.

Life in the village is the best, says Potts. Recently he and his wife, Marie, traveled 6,600 miles and visited California, Washington and Oregon. "And of all the places I've seen, Jerico is the prettiest," he said.
