New Concept in Building Design

Newport's Circular School Becomes City's Showplace

NEWPORT—Recently a friend remarked to G. F. Castleberry, superintendent of the Newport public schools:

"Gib, I knew you went around in circles—and now you've built a place to do it in."

The friend was referring to one of the most uniquely designed schools in the country—a circular building named in honor of the superintendent.

The structure forms a complete circle with school yard in the center. There are 24 rooms. Eighteen are classrooms for the first through six grades. The others are used for physical education, vocal and instrumental music, central library, conference room, film room. Other facilities include a specious cafeteria, kitchen, teacher's lounge, health room and administrator's office.

The school formally opened its doors to 665 children in October 1960 and has become one of the city's showplaces. There are other circular buildings of this type over the nation but they are few and far between. And Newport is probably one of the smallest cities to have this type.

Castleberry said he has received numerous inquiries in recent months and the school has been visited by persons from more than 20 states.

It was built at a cost of $400,000 and is part of a sweeping construction program which Castleberry inaugurated when he took over the superintendency 10 years ago.

The facility replaces two old schools—one was built in 1905 and the other in 1908. It is a far cry from these long-outmoded, two-story structures with wooden floors and oil stoves.

Why a circular school?

Castleberry concedes he and the school board were asked this question many times when the plans were announced.

G. F. CASTLEBERRY
... Named in his honor

The veteran educator cited three main reasons:

1. Compactness and utilization of space for instructional purpose. —"There is no wasted space taken up by hallways and entrances."

2. Complete privacy for each teacher and her students. —"No interference from the outside and no passing through the halls."

3. Beauty — "We feel that a school house should be beautiful because that's where youngsters live much of their early life."

The design was drawn by the Little Rock architectural firm of McAnich and Mahnkin. Decision to build such a structure was recommended by a committee composed of 32 Newport citizens.

"When the plans were first submitted to the school board, we weren't too much impressed," Castleberry said. "But we talked and studied it out. The PTA people all liked it very much. It's the only one of its kind in Arkansas and one of the few in the country."

The true circle was used to develop an extraordinary conception of modern architecture.

The roof structure forms the finished ceiling, insulation, roof deck and acoustics. It projects 4 feet beyond the wall on the exterior and 8 feet beyond the wall on the interior thus providing a covered walk around the building. Additional classrooms can be constructed by building from the inside.

A flagpole forms the center of the circle. Playground facilities are on the outside.

The Gib Castleberry Elementary School is a personal triumph for a man who has devoted more than 40 years to the education of young people.

He is a native of Greenbrier (Faulkner County), and is a member of a family well known in the teaching profession. His brother, W. E. Castleberry, is Prairie County school supervisor, and a nephew, James Castleberry, is superintendent of schools at Heber Springs—which, incidentally, formally opened an ultra-modern high school in December.

Castleberry is a graduate of Arkansas State Teachers College and the University of Arkansas. He served as superintendent at Beebe, Vandale (Cross County), and Hazen before taking over the Newport post in 1950. Since then, more than $1.5 million has been spent on school construction and now the Newport system

D. B. CASTLEBERRY.

D. B. Castleberry, attorney at law, who is now serving as mayor of Booneville and manifests a most progressive spirit in the conduct of his law practice and in the discharge of his official duties, is classed with those men whose native strength of character and acquired ability have brought them prominently to the front in public relations. Mr. Castleberry is a native of Kentucky, his birth having occurred in Marshall county, that state, May 11, 1845. His grandfather, James Castleberry, had removed in an early day from North Carolina to Kentucky and had there devoted his attention to farming throughout the remainder of his life. He was the father of Wesley S. Castleberry, who was born in Hopkins county, Kentucky, in 1813 and became a farmer, devoting his attention to general agricultural pursuits until he died August 2, 1845, at the comparatively early age of thirty-two years. He had married Isabelle Larimer, who was born near Shelbyville, Tennessee, in 1817, and was a daughter of John Larimer, who was born in Tennessee, but in early life removed to Kentucky, where he, too, carried on farming. His daughter, Mrs. Wesley S. Castleberry, survived her husband for a number of years, departing this life June 11, 1863. She never married again, but lived a widow to the time of her demise. Her husband was a school teacher at an early day, but later concentrated his efforts and attention upon farming. In politics he was a democrat. The family of this worthy couple numbered three children, but only two are living, the elder being John W. Castleberry, who was born in Kentucky in 1842 and entered the Confederate army during the early progress of the Civil war, serving throughout the period of hostilities. Several years ago he came to Booneville, Arkansas, and filled the office of county judge, while at the present time he is serving as justice of the peace, although practically living retired. In former years he carried on farming and through his agricultural pursuits won the competence that now enables him largely to rest from further labor.

D. B. Castleberry received but limited educational opportunities. He attended the common schools for only four or five months and then at the age of eighteen years, or in 1863, joined the Confederate army, becoming a member of Company G, Third Kentucky Regiment of Mounted Infantry. This command was attached to Forrest's cavalry forces, and Mr. Castleberry was captured by Wilson's cavalry on the 31st of March, 1865, which was the last battle fought by the cavalry troops under General Forrest. He received a furlough on the 14th of April of that year and walked all the way home from Montgomery, Alabama, to Kentucky, reaching his destination on the 11th of May. Immediately he took up farm work, nor did he scorn any labor that would bring to him an honest dollar, for he had arrived home penniless. His mother had a small tract of land, which he and his two brothers farmed, but it was all one could do to make a living there. He continued to devote his attention to the cultivation of the land until 1866, when he went to Texas, where he was employed on a farm and at other manual labor until 1868. That year witnessed his arrival in Benton county, Arkansas, and throughout the intervening period he has lived in this state.

In 1869 D. B. Castleberry was united in marriage to Miss Mary Latimer, who was born in Missouri, a daughter of Dr. G. W. Latimer, who for a number of years engaged in the practice of medicine in Benton county, Arkansas. After his marriage various pursuits occupied the attention of Mr. Castleberry, and later he took up the study of law, reading privately under the direction of attorneys of this locality until admitted to the bar in 1901. He has since continuously engaged in practice, covering more than two decades, and has won a satisfactory place at the Logan county bar, now having a large clientele that connects him with much important litigation heard in the courts of this district. He also owns farm property and is a stockholder in the Bank of Booneville.

Mr. Castleberry and his wife belong to the Methodist Episcopal church, South. He is also a Mason and has served for six consecutive years as master of his lodge. Politically he is a democrat and for eleven years has been mayor of Booneville—a record which indicates most clearly his capability and efficiency in office and his fidelity to the trust reposed in him. His administration has been characterized by close study of the needs of the city and practical methods in meeting the highest civic standards and ideals. He has made a most excellent record in office and also in his business and professional career. He has never had a dollar given him, but by persistent effort has worked his way steadily upward, advancing step by step, winning both a creditable name and place in connection with the professional and public interests of his city and county.

PRESTON CASTLEBERRY.

Preston Castleberry, an optometrist of Pine Bluff, was born at Castleberry, Alabama, in 1878; the town having been named in honor of the family. His parents were Solomon and Mary (Branch) Castleberry, who were also natives of that place, and the father was a Confederate veteran of the Civil war. The sons of the family have entered professional circles, one brother of Preston Castleberry being C. E. Castleberry of Little Rock, who is well known as an optometrist of that city, while another brother is Dr. F. L. Castleberry, the well known eye, ear, nose and throat specialist of Paragould, Arkansas.

Preston Castleberry was educated in his native village and in the schools of Kansas City, Missouri, and Little Rock. Having received thorough training along the line of his chosen profession, with the passing years he has become an expert optometrist and has developed a high degree of efficiency in connection with the mechanical end of the business, in the grinding of lenses and other such work. For a time he was associated in practice with his brother in Little Rock before removing to Pine Bluff. Since coming to this city he has gained a splendid patronage and his success is growing year by year.

Mr. Castleberry was united in marriage to Miss Lella Ricks of Atlanta, Georgia, a daughter of Dr. Ricks. Mr. and Mrs. Castleberry have become parents of one child, Mary M. Mr. Castleberry is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and Mrs. Castleberry is a Presbyterian. Both are interested in all those forces which make for right, justice, truth and progress. Their friends are many and the hospitality of a large number of the best homes in Pine Bluff is freely accorded them, for during the period of their residence here they have become firmly established in those social circles where intelligence and true worth are accepted as the passports to good society.

CHARLES EDWARD CASTLEBERRY.

Charles Edward Castleberry, an optometrist of highly developed skill and efficiency in his profession, now serving as a member of the state board of optometry, with residence in Little Rock, was born in Castleberry, Conecuh county, Alabama, December 18, 1866, and is a representative of one of the old families of that state. His parents were Solomon and Mary (Branch) Castleberry, both of whom were also natives of the town of Castleberry, where they were reared and married. The father became a planter and merchant. His political belief was that of the democratic party and at the time of the Civil war he served for three years in the Confederate army. He passed away in the year 1919, and his wife died in 1894. They were the parents of the following named: Charles E.; Ada, the widow of R. T. Halland; Job; Nettie, the wife of C. S. Canady; Frank L.; Julia, the widow of Ed Parks; and Preston.

In his boyhood days Charles Edward Castleberry pursued his education in the public schools of his native town, and when he had determined to devote his life to the profession of optometry he became a student in the Kellam & Moore College of Optics at Atlanta, Georgia, where his thorough training well qualified him for the work which he has since taken up. He began the practice of his profession in Atlanta, Georgia, and has made his home in Little Rock since 1906. On the 14th of February, 1915, he was appointed a member of the board of examiners in optometry and was reappointed to that position on the 14th of April, 1920, for a term of five years. He is now serving on that board and is doing most effective work to uphold and advance the standards of the profession.

Mr. Castleberry was married April 6, 1901, to Miss Cora Mae Bugbee, who was born in Gonzales, Texas, September 5, 1875, a daughter of George Gooding and Mary Elizabeth Bugbee, who were residents of Gonzales for a number of years both dying there. Mrs. Castleberry obtained her education in public and private schools and by her marriage she became the mother of two children: Vivian Estelle, who died at the age of eleven months; and Arnold Richmond.

Mr. Castleberry has always voted the democratic ticket since age conferred upon him the right of franchise, nor has he ever sought or desired office outside the strict path of his profession. He has been active as a worker in behalf of prohibition, the cause of temperance long finding in him a stalwart champion. Fraternally he is connected with the Ancient Order of United Workmen and his religious faith is indicated by his membership in the First Methodist Episcopal church, South. His life has ever been guided by high and honorable principles and worthy motives and he is continually extending a helping hand in order to ameliorate the hard conditions of life for the unfortunate.

B. H. CASTLEBERRY

B. H. Castleberry is another excellent example of what can be accomplished through energy and perseverance, for he has won his way up to his present enviable position through his own unaided efforts. He was born in the State of Georgia, on the 1st of July, 1854, and is a son of S. G. and Jane E. (Bell) Castleberry, both of whom were Georgians, the former born in 1821. He was a farmer and a miner, but made milling his principal occupation through life, and is still the owner of some gold mines in Georgia, near Cleveland. His father, who was a native of the State, owned some mines there and was also an extensive slave owner at the time of his death. The great-grandfather was a Georgian, but the great-great-grandfather and six brothers emigrated from the Old World, and settled in the Southern States. B. H. Castleberry was one of seven children, and his youth and early manhood were spent in his native State. He received his literary education in the North Georgia Agricultural College, and principally through his own efforts secured means with which to prosecute his studies. In December, 1876, he emigrated to the State of Arkansas, settling in Fulton County, where he began the study of law, and the same characteristics which marked his progress at school, were prominent in his legal studies. After a thorough preparation he was admitted to the bar and entered upon his practice at Salem, and his patronage steadily and substantially increased during his two years of practice. At the end of that time he engaged in merchandising with his brother, their stock of goods amounting to about $8,000, and besides this they each own a half interest in 500 acres of land. Our immediate subject also owns 1,500 acres in his own right. He was married on the 10th of April, 1881, to Miss Laura P. Wainwright, by whom he has two interesting children: William Lessie and Rex. Mr. Castleberry is a Democrat, and a member of the I. O. O. F. William Castleberry, his brother, a member of the general mercantile firm of Castleberry & Co., was born in White County, Ga., in 1856, and during his youth and early manhood worked with his father. He received an excellent education in Dahlonga College, Ga., and also at Nacoochee Valley, and after leaving school engaged in mercantile pursuits as clerk in a general merchandise store in the latter place, but eighteen months later went to Rabun County, where he began merchandising in partnership with C. W. Oakes. Two years later they dissolved partnership, and Mr. Castleberry came to Salem, and in 1881 embarked in business with his brother and William Wainwright, keeping a grocery. At the end of one year this association was terminated, and the two brothers started a general mercantile establishment of their own. They thoroughly understand the enterprise in which they are engaged, and have done much in their line to increase the trade and influence of the town. They are thoroughly reliable and honest in all their transactions, and as a result enjoy a large and lucrative custom. William Castleberry is also a Democrat politically, and a member of the I. O. O. F. He is unmarried. END.

BARNEY L. CASTLEBERRY

BARNEY L. CASTLEBERRY—Immediately following his own graduation from high school, more than a quarter of a century ago, Mr. Castleberry engaged in teaching in the schools of his native county, Searcy County. He followed this occupation with much success for two decades until he was elected, at the end of this period, clerk of the county and circuit courts. In that important and responsible position he served with marked ability for some four years, until he was appointed, in 1927, by President Coolidge, postmaster of Leslie, Searcy County. He stills holds this position, in which he has made important contributions to the greater welfare and prosperity of the community and the duties of which he has administered to the entire satisfaction of all his fellow-citizens. At various other times he has also served in several other important local offices. A man of sincere public spirit and pleasing personality, he has always taken a very active interest in civic affairs and for many years has been a very popular member of several fraternal organizations. Though he makes his home in Leslie he also owns a good-sized farm, which he operates with marked success.

Barney L. Castleberry was born in Searcy County, December 18, 1885, a son of Isaac and Arbie (Turney) Castleberry. Both his parents are natives of Searcy County and are still residents of that section of Arkansas, living on a farm at Snowball. Mr. Castleberry is one of a family of six children, of whom four are living. He received his education in the public schools of his native county and is a graduate of the Marshall High School. Having finished his course at that institution, he engaged, in teaching, which profession he continued to follow for twenty years. Then he was elected clerk of the county and circuit courts, a position he held for four years. In 1927 President Coolidge appointed him postmaster at Leslie and this position he has filled with exceptional ability ever since then. He also served at one time for five years as a member of the Searcy County Board of Education and for four years as a justice of the peace. For many years a member of the Leslie Chamber of Commerce, he was, in 1929, the president of this organization. He is also a member of the local lodge, Free and Accepted Masons; the Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; the Independent Order of Odd Fellows; and the Woodmen of the World. In politics he is a supporter of the Republican party. Born and reared on a farm, Mr. Castleberry has never lost his interest in agricultural affairs and today he is the owner of a farm of his own, consisting of some four hundred and fifty acres, on which he raises successfully corn, wheat and hay.

Mr. Castleberry married, in 1911, Sallie Reece, who was born in Searcy County and who died June 3, 1929. Mrs. Castleberry was laid to rest in the Leslie Cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Castleberry were the parents of three children: 1. Cecil L., now serving in the United States Navy. 2. Selma A., a student in the Leslie High School. 3. Johnnie Margaret. END.

REX CASTLEBERRY OF ARKANSAS

LAWYER - MERCHANT - BANKER

REX CASTLEBERRY

Rex Castleberry is President of the Bank of Salem, located in Salem, Fulton County, Arkansas. He and his father organized the bank about forty years ago. Rex Castleberry guided the bank through years of progress and also through the vicissitudes of stormy financial years that shook the nation. The bank of Salem has proved to be a sound and solid institution, reflecting the character of those in control. Mr. Castleberry is also a large land owner, owning 1,480 acres of land. He has been shrewd in his personal business affairs and equally vigilant in protecting the financial interests of those who deal with the Bank of Salem.

On February 7, 1884, Rex Castleberry was born in Salem, Fulton County, Arkansas. His father, Benjamin H. Castleberry, was born in Cleveland, Georgia, in 1854, and died at Jonesboro, Arkansas, on December 19, 1945. He was a lawyer, merchant and real estate man and he assisted his son, Rex, in the organization of the Bank of Salem in 1908. Laura (Wainwright) Castleberry, mother of Rex Castleberry, was born in Salem, Arkansas, in 1868, and died in 1884. Both parents of Rex Castleberry are buried in Salem, Arkansas.

After preliminary education at Salem, Arkansas, Rex Castleberry entered college at Fayetteville, Arkansas. He was there during 1903 and 1904, then spent the next three years as a merchant in Columbus, Kansas. He commenced the study of law during the time he resided in Columbus. In 1908 Mr. Castleberry severed connections with Kansas and returned to his native state, organizing the Bank of Salem. He is President of the bank and owns the controlling stock. He also has vast farm land on which he has built eighteen tenant houses.

In September, 1909, Rex Castleberry was married to Fay Kammermeyer of Columbus, Kansas. She was born on February 20, 1889. Her father, George Kammermeyer, was a native of Peru, Illinois. He was employed by the International Harvester Machine Company for fifty-nine years. Her grandfather, Michael, Kammermeyer, settled and cleared a farm in what is now the heart of the City of Chicago, Illinois. His cows used to stray not far from what is now conceded to be the World's Busiest Corner in Chicago's Loop District. Elvira (Johnson) Kammermeyer, mother of Mrs. Castleberry, was born in 1855 and died in 1920. She is buried at Columbus, Kansas. The Johnsons were farmers in Illinois. Mrs. Castleberry has been a deciding factor in the success of the Bank of Salem. One year after the bank was established she became Cashier and has filled that position now for over thirty-six years.

Rex Castleberry and his wife have the same hobbies—hunting and fishing. They have a cabin on the South Fork of Spring River. Mrs. Castleberry is an expert with the rifle; her husband has somewhat the edge in fishing, or so his story goes. Mr. Castleberry does not give as much time now as he once did to fraternal affairs. He held membership at one time in the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, Knights of Pythias, Woodmen of the World, Fraternal Order of Eagles and Free and Accepted Masons. Mrs. Castleberry is a member of the Order of the Eastern Star. They are faithful members of the Methodist Church. END.

LEWIS CASTLEBERRY OF JOHNSON COUNTY, ARKANSAS

Lewis Castleberry. The entire life of this gentleman has been unmarked by any unusual occurrence outside the chosen channels to which he has so diligently applied himself. He is considered, and deservedly so, one of the most successful and prominent farmers of Lee Township, Johnson County, Ark., and as he was reared to farm life at home has never followed any other calling; he is the thorough master of every branch of the work. He was born in Alabama, but in boyhood came with his parents to Johnson County, Ark., and here has since made his home. The parents, John and Louisa (Claunch) Castleberry, became the parents of three children—two sons and one daughter—of which the subject of this sketch was the eldest and is the only one now living. At the time of their arrival here the country was almost an unbroken wilderness, and as schools at that time (1845) were very few and far between, their son Lewis did not receive many advantages so far as book learning was concerned. At the age of twenty-two years he commenced the battle of life for himself, and soon after purchased the farm on which he is now residing, and immediately set to work to improve it by erecting good buildings, fences, etc. He has increased his acreage from time to time, and now has 240 acres, eighty-five of which are in a good state of cultivation. His principal crops are cotton and corn, twenty acres being devoted to corn, the cotton promising a yield of one-half bale to the acre. He has a pasture of red top, which makes a heavy growth, and besides this, has a good orchard of peach and apple trees, which supplies them with an abundance of fruit. Everything about the place indicates that a man of thrift and energy is at the helm, and that his farm is a fertile and valuable one, is shown when it is known that he often raises fifty bushels of corn to the acre and 1,500 pounds of cotton. His wife, formerly Miss Elizabeth Ridgway, was born in Alabama, and is the mother of five sons and two daughters: Osborne, Boone, Reuben, Mary, James, Riley and Linnie. The two eldest sons are married, Osborne being a resident of Texas, and Boone residing on a farm near his father. Mr. Castleberry is a member of Spring Hill Lodge, of the A. F. & A. M. He is a liberal supporter of public enterprises, and is anxious to see capital come to Johnson County. END

THE REVEREND AND MRS. VAN BOONE CASTLEBERRY
HAMILTON, OHIO

IN DEDICATION

In grateful appreciation of his pioneering ministry in Ohio, this annual is dedicated to Rev. V. B. Castleberry, who now lives in Hamilton, Ohio, and to his wife who has faithfully served at his side for more than 50 years.

Born in 1898 in Marshall County, near Benton, Ky., Mr. Castleberry was "born again" in 1910 during a revival meeting conducted by his uncle. He attended Hall-Moody College in Martin, Tennessee and Bethel College in Russellville, Ky.

In 1923, he and Mrs. Castleberry, whom he had married on October 31, 1918, went to the Amazon Valley to serve as missionaries under the ministry of E. A. Nelson. Three years later they returned to the States because of ill health.

Upon the return of the Castleberrys, they began a mission ministry in East Kentucky where for several years they served under the State Board of Kentucky Baptists as associational missionaries.

In 1943 Mr. Castleberry accepted the call of the West Side Baptist Church in Hamilton, Ohio, to become their pastor. He served in this capacity until 1947 when he was again employed by the State Convention of Kentucky to serve as missionary of the White Water Association of Missionary Baptists, a group of Ohio and Indiana Baptist churches, affiliated with Kentucky. During the next five years he led in the establishing of a score of churches in Ohio and Indiana. In the meeting of the White Water Association in 1952 he resigned as missionary and served as evangelist and pastor until 1955 when he became pastor of the 1st Southern Baptist Church in Connersville, Indiana. After a fruitful ministry in Indiana he retired in 1963 following a heart attack while pastor at New Castle, Indiana.

To this dedicated missionary, Southern Baptists in Ohio are deeply indebted for their beginnings and their foundations in Baptist beliefs and practice.

ISAAC STROUD CASSELBERRY, M. D.

ISAAC CASSELBERRY, M. D., was born on the farm of his father, Thomas Evans Casselberry, in Posey county, Ind., November, 26, 1821. The Casselberry family were among the prominent pioneer families of West Franklin, in Posey county, to which place Paul Casselberry, grandfather of the subject of this mention, removed with his family from Morristown, Pennsylvania, in 1806. Almost from the date of their settlement the family took a conspicuous part in the affairs of the county and the name of Casselberry is indelibly stamped upon its history. The father of Dr. Casselberry was one of the commissioners who located the county seat of Vanderburg county at Evansville; he was a gentleman of much force of character and in many ways identified himself with the interests of Vanderburg county. His death occurred in 1826. His wife was Miss Rachael J., daughter of Charles Carson. Isaac was a child five years old at the time of the death of his father. His early training devolved upon his mother and to her he was no doubt indebted for those valuable lessons that proved so serviceable in after years. She died in 1844. Dr. Casselberry received an academical education and in 1841 began the study of medicine in the office of that eminent physician, Dr. M. J. Bray, of Evansville. Two years later he placed himself under the tutelage of R. D. Mussey, M. D., of Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1845 he graduated with honor from the medical college of Ohio and soon after returned to Evansville, where he formed a co-partnership with his former preceptor, Dr. Bray. In a comparatively short time he obtained an enviable position in the practice, and soon became known as one of the leading physicians in this section of the state. At the commencement of the war he tendered his services to the government, and received the appointment of surgeon of the First Indiana Cavalry. He served in this capacity until the close of the war, when he returned to Evansville, and was appointed by President Johnson collector of customs for the port of Evansville, which position he filled with great credit until a change of administration necessitated his resignation. He then resumed the practice of his profession, and from that time until the date of his decease, July 9, 1873, was one of the most zealous, energetic and self-sacrificing physicians in the county. From the time the city of Evansville was placed under sanitary regulations, Dr. Casselberry filled the office of secretary of the board of health. He was one of the founders of the Evansville Medical College, and one of its first trustees. In 1871 he was called to the chair of physical diagnosis. In everything connected with the welfare of the college he manifested that zeal and energy which characterized all his undertakings, and the success of the institution was largely due to his efforts. Dr. Casselberry was probably more extensively known outside the state as a strong, forcible writer, and a valuable contributor to medical literature. Many of his articles were extensively copied in medical publications. Lack of space prevents a detailed mention, but the following are among the more important papers: "An Inquiry into the Physiology of the Organic Nervous System" — American Journal of Medical

Science, 1852; "Causes of Fever" — Ibid, 1856; "Ancient Marriages of Consanguinity" — Ibid, 1859; a series of articles on "Causes of Epidemics," Nashville Medical and Surgical Journal, 1857 to 1858. In 1857, Dr. Wright, of the Memphis Medical Recorder, made an able review of some of Dr. Casselberry's articles, in which he remarked that much credit was due him for the boldness and industry with which he strove to throw light on pathological subjects. He was one of the charter members of the Indiana State Medical Society, and his election as president of that body was a merited honor. He was a permanent member of the American Medical Association, and it was one of his greatest pleasures to meet its members in annual session. Dr. Casselberry, though starting in life without any of the accidental aids of wealth, was able to conquer in every department of human endeavor which he chose to enter. His character was a strange mingling of manly sternness and womanly kindness. He was gentle, almost to a fault, yet possessed an iron nerve and invincible will. He had the bearing and manner of a genuine gentleman, which, united with a comeliness of person and a fine presence, endeared him to all who were fortunate enough to become his associates. He died in Evansville, July 9, 1873, after a laborious and successful practice of twenty-eight years. In 1847, Dr. Casselberry was married to Miss Louisa Garvin, daughter of John and Providence Garvin, of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Two children were the result of this union, only one of whom, Mrs. Laura Dunkerson, is living. END

PAUL CASTLEBERRY AND HIS NINETEEN CHILDREN

PAUL CASTLEBERRY of Spartanburg County, South Carolina, was born 1 March 1761, on the Tar River in Virginia. While he was very young, his family moved to Orange County, North Carolina, and from there to Newberry District, South Carolina, later from there to Richmond County, Georgia, where he lived when at home until after the siege of Savannah, when he removed to Spartanburg District, South Carolina.

PAUL CASTLEBERRY served as a Sergeant during the American Revolutionary War, and according to his Military Papers, at one time he fought under the Command of the renown General Anthony Wayne. General Wayne was sometimes called "Mad Anthony", because of his reckless bravery against the British during the Revolution. The Revolutionary War Record, Pension Application File W27664, of PAUL CASTLEBERRY is on deposit with the National Archives in Washington, D. C.

PAUL CASTLEBERRY, along with WILLIAM CASTLEBERRY and JOHN CASTLEBERRY, is found in the 1790 Census of Spartanburg County, South Carolina. He (probably) married his first wife in South Carolina. It has been said that her maiden name was thought to be "DUGGER", however, this is still uncertain. It is known that PAUL CASTLEBERRY and his first wife had the following children, all born in South Carolina:

1. JANE CASTLEBERRY, b. about 1786, married JAMES LEATHERWOOD;
2. THOMAS CASTLEBERRY, b. about 1788, married PHOEBE WOODRUFF, 27 September 1808, and he died in 1849, in Cherokee County, Alabama;
3. HENRY CASTLEBERRY, b. May 1790; d. 5 January 1816, Spartanburg County, South Carolina; his wife was ELIZABETH _____;
4. JEMIMA CASTLEBERRY, born about 1792, married a Mr. SHANDS;
5. PAUL CASTLEBERRY, JR., born about 1794;
6. RICHARD CASTLEBERRY, b. about 1796, and according to his step-mother, Mrs. NANCY (GILLESPIE) CASTLEBERRY, moved to Mississippi in 1844;
7. LAVINA CASTLEBERRY, b. about 1798, married a Mr. GILLESPIE;
8. CHARLOTTE CASTLEBERRY, b. about 1800. (At age 50, CHARLOTTE was living with her sister, Mrs. AGNES (CASTLEBERRY) LEATHERWOOD, in Benton County, (later changed to Calhoun County), Alabama.);
9. JOHN CASTLEBERRY, b. about 1803; (JOHN CASTLEBERRY listed in the 1840 Cherokee County, Alabama, could be the same);

JAMES R. CASTLEBERRY

MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER IN TEXAS

JAMES R. CASTLEBERRY, a merchant and manufacturer, Longview, Texas, has for years been a quiet but an important factor in accomplishing undertakings at this place. As one of its substantial citizens, some personal mention of him is of interest in this biographical record.

James R. Castleberry was born April 15, 1849. His foreparents lived in various places in East Texas from 1835, when his grandfather, Trice Castleberry, brought his family out from near Wetumka, Alabama, and first stopped in San Augustine county. After a few years they moved to Shelby county, where the old pioneer died and is buried.

Trice Castleberry, Sr., was born in North Carolina and was a farmer all his life. He and his first wife were the parents of the following children: William L., who identified himself with Gregg county as a pioneer and brought up his family there; Stephen, who lived and died in Kaufman county, Texas, and left a family; Joseph, who died in Gregg county in 1860, unmarried; Aaron Trice, the father of James R.; Anna, deceased, was first married to James Davis and after his death to Walter H. Payne; Polly married Benjamin Fuller and went to Ree county, Texas, in 1867, and died there, while Millie spent her life in the Pine Tree community of now Gregg county, as Mrs. John Rodden.

Aaron Trice Castleberry, the fourth son of Trice Castleberry, was born in Alabama, in 1820. He received a fair education and devoted his energies to farming and stock raising. He lived in the fear of God, his creed being that of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Politically, he was a Democrat. He married Elmira Pierce, and both are buried at Pine Tree northwest of Longview. Their children were: Joseph, who died at Little Rock, Arkansas, while a member of the Third Texas Confederate troops; Aaron, likewise a soldier of the Confederacy, died in Gregg county, in 1906. He had married Cynthia Rodden, and left a family on his farm; Richard, who married Mollie Martin, is an ex-Confederate soldier and a farmer of Gregg county; James R., whose name introduces this review; Mary, married M. G. B. Morris, died in Denton county, Texas; and a farmer at Pine Tree; Annie, wife of Al Wilson, of Sulphur Springs, is deceased as also is her husband.

James R. Castleberry grew up in the Pine Tree locality, where he was born, and was liberally educated. He passed successfully the period of war times without taking part in it and remained a farmer till the age of twenty-three years. He then joined a brother in the sawmill business as Castleberry Bros. and operated a small mill in Gregg county. They subsequently expanded and extended their interests to Harrison and Cherokee counties, and continued together for ten years. During this period they acquired considerable land. When the partnership was dissolved, his brother took the land and Mr. Castleberry took the milling interests and he continued milling as a country manufacturer till 1905, when he moved his family to Longview and engaged in merchandising in connection with lumber business. Here is a member of the firm of Castleberry, Flewellen and Company, he became identified with one of the leading stores of the town, and subsequently he engaged in the planing-mill business as Castleberry and Flewellen. Messrs. Castleberry and Flewellen have farming and lumber interests in Star county and are among the few men who are making substantial efforts as builders in the development of a new metropolis in East Texas. Mr. Castleberry was one of the organizers of the Citizens National Bank of Longview, in which he is a large stockholder, and he has other material interests in the enterprises which add stability to the county seat of Gregg county.

Mr. Castleberry has lived without political ambition and has manifested an interest in public affairs only as a contributor to progress or as a voter with the majority party of his State. He is a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. March 1, 1882, he was married in Gregg county to Miss Lodema Lawrence, daughter of Enoch Lawrence, of Franklin county, Texas, who came here from Alabama. She died in January, 1907, leaving a family of four children, namely: Annie, Herman J., Maude and Jack. Herman J. is married and a resident of Shelby county, Texas, where he is superintendent of a lumber mill.

HISTORIC GLASS' MILL SITE FOR SALE

By Tim Carfeldt Staff writer

From The Walker County Messenger, Vol. 116, No. 8, p. 1.

Real estate signs have popped up around the site of historic Glass' Mill near Chickamauga. That has City Manager Joh Culpepper concerned about what a new owner's plans may be.

Culpepper is well-versed in Civil War history and said the area now for sale is part of the site of an artillery fight at the start of the Battle of Chickamauga.

Culpepper said he doesn't want to interfere with any land transaction. "I just want to get the story out so we all know what we're dealing with," he said.

Culpepper referred to a document called the Chattanooga Area Civil War Sites Assessment, which was produced by various parties interested in battlefield preservation.

The assessment states that the National Park Service, local governments and preservation organizations should work together "to discourage wide-scale residential or commercial development," near the Glass' Mill area.

According to the real estate listing, the property is at the junction of Glass Mill Road and Old Bethel Road, adjacent to West Chickamauga Creek. It is in three parcels totaling 113 acres, and the listing does state, "It is believed to be the area where the Battle of Chickamauga began."

Upon request the listing agent, Crye-Leike, provided several pages from the war sites assessment which the seller has made available.

The mill no longer stands but the foundation and segments of the brick pilings remain.

"When the creek is down you can see the foundations of the dam," said Culpepper.

A section of stone fence also survives near the mill site and is "likely to be a wartime feature," according to the war sites assessment.

Around the site, history abounds. According to Chickamauga & Chattanooga National Military Park historian Jim Ogden, Glass' Mill was a principal crossing of West Chickamauga Creek. It was a key strategic holding for Union forces trying to keep the Confederates at bay as each army's forces were gathering around Chickamauga.

Culpepper pointed out that when the park was created in 1890 there were four cast-iron tablets erected (similar to the ones currently in the park) to commemorate the role of the forces engaged at Glass' Mill. It is believed that sometime during the Great Depression the tablets were removed and "possibly sold for scrap money," Culpepper said.

Culpepper said that area development in the last 50 years has caused the loss of many historic features. "And they can't be brought back," he said.

Northwest Georgia is the fastest-growing area in the state, and for that reason it's important to pay close attention to the effects that growth will have on historic sites," Culpepper said.

Minutes Marsh House Community Task Force Meeting
Monday, April 4, 2005, 5:00 P.M. at the Marsh House

Vice President JoAnna Jackson presided in the absence of Evelle Dana.. Attendance = 14. See attached list

I. Minutes of the March meeting were approved as submitted in writing. Treasurer's Report: Attached. Balance in checking $12,655.61.

II. No new members added.

III. Old Business:

Report of Building/G rounds Committee by Clayton Bell. Kitchen wall and ceiling. repairs are underway. A very reasonable bid to repair 16 sets of shutters at $100 per set for a total of $1600 has been accepted. This project is for repair and painting of existing shutters to get ready for the videotape when the azaleas will be in full bloom for a beautiful view of the front of the house. Replacement of missing shutters will cost $1200-1400 per set to match what we have. A deep dark green was the consensus for the color. Clayton is moving forward with shutter repair and reinstallation. Approved. Replacement of the remainder of the shutters will have to wait for funding.

Landscaping Committee recommended that we commission a plan by a landscape architect right away. Things are happening like the county's plan to install a log cabin on the property. Motion by Marge Craig, second by Mary Smitherman to approve up to $7500 for an assessment of historic gardens and grounds sites and materials and the development of a landscape plan based on the assessment. Passed unanimously. Clayton has talked with Betts Engineering which recommended John Brown. There was some question as to whether he had the skills for the assessment There was sentiment to include an archeological assessment The roofing contractor is planning to till the ground close to the house where his heavy equipment has created ruts, then seed with grass. Consensus that the old ivy-covered maple in front can be removed. The county has agreed to remove debris from clean up of brush and bushes. Clayton has the list. of contractor's requirements from the County. We will follow their procedures in hiring major work to be done.

Liaison report: a grant for $1,000 for restoration of the grounds has been received from the Garden Clubs of Georgia.

Laura Wilson reported for the Membership Committee. She is going to get Joan Butler to do an article about membership. Each task force member is asked to identify three people who are prospects for joining the Friends and to bring names and addresses to the next meeting to form a list for a mailing.

Connie Forester reported for the History Committee: Wade Gilbert will scan the grounds with a metal detector, hopefully right after the roofing contractor tills the ground around the house to remove ruts from heavy machinery.

Need docents for 5/7 (wedding reception) and 5/21 (Picnic on the Marsh).

Helping Hands report by Beverly Foster. She is working on some entertainment for the Armed Forces Day Event, Picnic on the Marsh. (See attached email).

Davene Nichols reported that the Interiors Committee is on hold.

Mary Smitherman reported for the Events Committee: An event to celebrate the unveiling of the National Historic Registry sign is planned. Saturday, May 21: Picnic on Marsh, 11-4:00.

Joanna Jackson gave the Resource Development Committee report. Also on hold waiting j vote on the budget. Sandra Scoggins is ready to work on some grants. A motion was made to approve $3500 for a National Register Marker for the property by Dot Stock, seconded by Mary Smitherman. Approved unanimously. Hopefully, it will be installed for a dedication in May..
