The French Family Origins by Roland Rhoades, Jr.

This is the first in a series of articles that will deal with what we know and don't know about where our French ancestors came from and how various French immigrants are related to one another. Please help us by checking any records or articles that you have or find that deal with the origins of the French family and the early relationships in America and send me the name of the source (RFD 1 - Box 152, Sanford, ME 04073). I also solicit any comments or articles you have on this subject. Thank you. I thank Robert L. French of Chatham, NY for his documented manuscript "The Descendants of Thomas French of Ipswich, MA - 5 Generations" with accounts of the early Frenches. For a map of the English counties mentioned here, see Frenchline Vol. 2, p. 89.

Thomas French of Ipswich, MA, FFA Ch. 1, was from Assington, Co. Suffolk, England and was born circa 1588. He m. Susan Riddlesdale in 1608. (His son Thomas arrived in Boston in 1630 in the Winthrop Fleet.) Some propose that his parents were Jacob French of Assington and Susan Riddlesdale (see Frenchline Vol. 1 #2 & #3). Others propose that his father was John French of the Edwardstone-Coddenham branch. Can either be proven or disproven? Your input is very much wanted.

Edward French of Salisbury, MA, FFA Ch. 4, was of Ipswich MA in 1636 and in Salisbury by 1640. Some believe that Ipswich ties him into a relationship to Thomas French of Ipswich, as his son or brother. I have seen no convincing argument. Edward was born ca. 1590 according to most accounts. A major mistake has been made in saying that he was baptised 13 Aug 1598 in Halstead, Co. Essex, England, a son of Thomas French and Ann Olmstead of Stanstead Hall, and making him a brother to William French of Billerica. This has been proven wrong; this Edward French of Halstead was still in England in 1639. (See Frenchline Vol. 2, p. 93-4).

The only proven ties between the French immigrants is between William French of Billerica and John French of Cambridge, MA, FFA Charts 2 & 3 respectively. They were brothers. John died in 1646 in Cambridge and his children were taken care of by their "Uncle William French in Billerica." A major mistake has been widely published in regard to this line. I repeat some of what was said in the Frenchline, Vol 2 #3. There is still a debate whether or not this William French or another William French of Halstead, was son of Thomas French and Ann Olmstead or Palladia Wood. There was one William French of Halstead, bp. 15 March 1603, who made his will in 1621 and he names his brothers and sisters and it was proved in 1637. His brother John died in 1638 in England. (For William's will, see Frenchline Vol. 2 p. 95-6.)

Francis French, FFA Ch. 8, was born 1625 and arrived in America in 1635 with William, Chart 2. He moved to Derby, CT. He has been identified as either a son or nephew of William French, Ch. 2, depending on which book you read.

Richard French, FFA Ch. 6, resided in Cambridge, Billerica, and Marshfield, MA, and because of the Cambridge-Billerica tie, is called by some a brother to William and John, Charts 2 & 3, but he is not mentioned until after 1650.

These next three paragraphs are practically quoted from Robert French's manuscript.

Two immigrants named French came to Dorchester. The first was Stephen French, FFA Ch. 7, who was in Dorchester in 1630 according to Savage. He sailed from Plymouth, England in the Mary & John. The other was John French, FFA Ch. 5, who came from England in 1637. Stephen moved to Weymouth sometime after 1639. John also went to Weymouth in 1642 and on to Braintree in 1648. (One child's birth is recorded in Dorchester in 1643 and another in Braintree in 1649 with one child in between with no birth record. -R.R.). There seems to be no statement anywhere that these two were related. John was born about 1612 and was supposed to have come from Devonshire or Dorsetshire. Since Stephen sailed from Plymouth, England, he may very well have been from the west of England, too. Stephen may have been a nephew of Henry Adams and have accompanied or followed him to Dorchester. Henry Adams had a nephew Stephen French born about 1601 in Misterton, Somersetshire. He was the son of Richard French whose wife was a sister of Henry Adams. They also had a son John born about 1599, too old to be John of Dorchester (The Henry Adams Generalogy pp. 41, 42, 46).

There was a Judith French, FFA Ch. 67, a 20-year old servant of John Hull of Somersetshire who left Weymouth, England, on 20 March 1635 bound for New England. At least 3 FFA members including myself hope she is the Judith who married John Rogers in Weymouth MA. Sorting all the John Rogers is another project.

Thomas French, FFA Ch. 9, came to Charlestown MA in 1638 and moved to Guilford, CT.

Samuel French, FFA Ch. 11, had a book published on him in 1940, "Ancestors & Descendants of Samuel French the Joiner of Stratford, CT" by Mansfield Joseph French. He was born 15 May 1687 in Bradford Abbas, Dorsetshire, England and married Mary Price and came to America ca. 1722.

Future articles will deal with all the above in more depth as we gather data and the non-New England branches also. We will also cover the early female Frenches, including the French-Loker-Riddlesdale connection and Rev. William Worcester of Salisbury MA whose wife Sarah may be a sister of Edward French.

THE WEEKLY IRISH TIMES, SATURDAY, JULY 8, 1939,

THE death, on the 1st January, 1938, of Miss Kathleen Emily Alexandra Firench, formerly of Monivea Castle, Co. Galway, and the subsequent - publicity given to those provisions of her will, by which she bequeathed the castle and demosne of Monives to the Irish nation, liss brought that ancient seat into the limelight, and will, perhaps, land additional interast to the details: of the history of this old Galway family and their ancestral home, which are here briefly set out.

The following extract from the MS. pedigrees of O'Luinin (quoted by Hardi-man in his "History of Galway"), re-ferring to the genealogy of the Firenches, states that they are "lineally descended from Sir Theophilus Firench, a most valiant Knight, who accompanied William the Conqueror into England, and was present with him at the great battle of Hastings, deriving his podigree from Sir Maximilian de Ffrench, who was son of Harloven, junior, son of Harloven, son of Rolls the strong, alias Robert 1st Duke of Normandy; as Sir Thomas Hawley, King of Arms in England 28 Henry VIII. gives an account, in the ancient and authentic annals of that Kingdom.'

ORANGE GENEA

Sir Humphrey Firench, a descendant of the above-named Sir Theophilus, married Arabella, daughter and heiress of Sir Charles Harley of Ormuch in Wales, and had by her five sons and two daughters-viz : Christopher, Walter, Patrick Patrick, Nicholas, John, Mary and Julian.

OCCGS REFERENCE ONLY Kelly's revenge was a costly one for

Purchased Monivea in 1609

The third son, Patrick, had a son, Walter, who settled near Galway, where he married the daughter and sole heiress of John Athie, "of a worthy family of great antiquity," and from him are descended the family of the Ffrenches of Galway.

One of these descendants, Robert Ffrench, of the City of Galway, left issue a son, Patrick Begg Ffrench, who was "seized in fee of the Castle of Monivea and other lands in the Barony of Tyaquin, County of Galway, before 1619, according to a Chancery Inquisition (post-mortem) taken at Loughrea on the 30th April, 1631."

He was, according to an old Deed the first Ffrench proprietor of Monivea, having purchased the place in 1609 from John Crossach O'Kelly, a descendant of the family of O'Kelly the Chiefs of the territory of Hy-Many, whose connection with the district is mentioned by the Four Masters in the following words:

"A.D. 1504. Three Castles belonging to O'Kelly-viz.: Garbhedhoine, Muinean-Mheadha (Monivea) and Gallach, were demolished by MacWilliam de Burgoviz.: Ulick the Third." O'Kelly (Melaghlin) promptly went to the Lord Justice and complained to him of the injury done to him. Thereupon a great army was mustered Thereupon a great army was mustered by the Lord Justice (Garret, the son of Thomas, Earl of Kildare), "being joined," say the 'Annalists, "by the nobles of Leath-Chuinn—viz.: O'Donnell (Hugh Roe) and his son, together with the principal Chiefs of Kenel-Conaill, and a party of the Connacians—viz.: O'Connor Roe, Hugh the son of Felim Fin, and Mac-Dermott, Lord of Moylurg.

Dermott, Lord of Moylurg. "All the Chiefs of Ulster, except O'Neill, joined the expedition—viz.: Art, son of Hugh O'Neill, Tanist of Tirone, Donall the son of Magennis, MacMahon and O'Hanlon; slso O'Kelly and O'Ferrall, commonly called the Bishop, Q'Conor Faby, the O'Kellys, and the sons of William de Burgo, and the forces almost of all Leath-Chuinn in general.

The Battle of Knockdoe.

These numerous forces delayed not until they arrived in Clanricarde, where MacWilliam mustered a great army to give them battle, viz., Torlogh, the son of Feige O'Brien, Lord of Thomond, and his brothers, with all their forces; the Macnamaras, and Mulrony O'Carroll, Lord of Ely, with all his clans and chieftains, joined by the nobles of Ormond and Ara."

A fierce battle took place between the rival forces at Knockdoe (a place eight miles north by east from Galway). "such as had not been known of latter times," ending with the defeat of MacWilliam and the chiefs of Leath-Mhoghs, and a great slaughter of their forces in general.

Shown throughout this issue is a facsimile of arms of English peers, first published in 1688, from Guildhall Library, London

O'Kelly's revenge was a costly one for his allies, for "a countless number of the Lord Justice's forces were also slain, though victory favoured their side."

John Crossach O'Kelly, a descendant of Melaghlin O'Kelly, Chief of Hy-Many, o Knockdoe fame, sold, as already stated, Monivea to Patrick Begg French, who had issue by his wife, Mary Kirwan, five sons and four daughters, viz., Robert, Andrew, John, James, Marcus, Margaret, Julliana, Kate and Anstace.

Here it may be stated that in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries the surname of the Monivea family was written indiscriminately French or firench, but for several generations past the name Brench has been regularly used. Throughout this narrative, for the sake of uniformity, the form "firench" is adhered to,

Patrick ffrench's Will.

Patrick firench, or Patrick Bouge firench, died on the 1st February, 1630. His will, of which the following is a summary, is dated 8th February, 1618:-

"I appoint my eldest son, Robert firench, executor, and I bequeath to him my dwelling house in Galway, which has been conveyed to Dominick Browne and other feoffes by deed. I also bequeath my said son, Robert, the castle and half quarter of Polnemadra adjoining, the two quarters of Knockatobber and Corralich, and the mortgage on Carroweighteragh, near Keilclogher.

"To my wife, Mary firench, alias Kirwan, £200 and all my moveable goods.

"To each of my younger sons, John, James and Marcus, £100.

"As for my son Andrew, whose inclination I do not like, I leave him to his fortunes, desiring speedily to convert or confound him; but in case I should alter my mind, I may appoint his elder brother, Robert, to give him £100 out of the lands bequeathed to the said Robert."

Robert firench died about 1648. His wife, Eveline, daughter of Sir Dominick Browne, survived him, and married (as his second wife) Sir Oliver French, Mayor of Galway, 1650-1. She died in 1684, and was buried in the Monives family tomb at Knockmoy Abbey, where there is a mural tablet bearing the following inscription :--

"Pray for the Lady Evelin French, Her soule, who ordained herself To be intered in this Abbey. For Her this monument was erected by Her children, Patrick French and Valentine French, and for a burial Place for themselves. August the 8th 1684 "

Confiscated and Repurchased

In 1653 the castle and lands of Monivea were confiscated by the Cromwellian Commissioners, who allotted them to Mathias, 8th Lord Trimleston, upon his transportation from Meath into Connaught.

Will of William ffrench

At right is will of William ffrench, the 14th of May, 1621, St. Dunstans In The West, London, England. Written in old English and transcribed on the next page. Listed under Burials 1558-1669, MS 10,342. Index found in Parish Registers, Part 1, 4th Edi-tion, Guild Hall Library, London, 1979, p. 53. I looked at the original paper manuscript, MS 10342, of St. Dunstan's Parish Register, Bap., Mar., Bur., 1558-1631, large book, 12" x 20" and 5" thick, leatherbound with 3 large buckles (hinges) to keep it closed. Incredible! It was brought to me by one of the guards. Does list a William ffrench being buried on 16 May 1621. Price for photographic copy (cannot xerox) was 7.25 Pounds. This will was administered in Halstead, Essex Co., England. See photo of St. Dunstans elsewhere in this issue. #6, p. 101

LIBRARY RULES

Even though the libraries were full of information, it was not easy to do research - one had to be patient. Pencils had to be used, you couldn't touch or even run your finger down the pages, you had to use transparent sheets over the maps, reserve three separate tables for the microfilm reader, book reading, and large map browsing. All reservations were quite booked up. You looked through the indexes and turned in a slip of paper to see a book which was brought to you in about 20 minutes. In the case of the Essex Record Office, they were brought the next day since the office was being remodeled and books were stored in another building. Another slip was filled out for xeroxing or photography work, paid in advance including shipping. It would take 3-5 weeks. I do have all my material now, but some still needs to be transcribed. During the months

Mara French 521 River View Dr. San Jose, California 95111

Dear Mara,

French Family

Are the families of Thomas French of Assington, William French of Halstead, and Thomas French of Halstead related? Even though Halstead and Assington are only 7 miles apart, Halstead is in Essex County and Assington is in Suffolk County. They are separated by the River Stour. Both Thomas Frenches spelled their names ffrench and William spelled his name Frenche. It is difficult to predict if these three families were related. I personally drove that 7 miles and the way is very difficult, indirect, very narrow, and perhaps in the 16th century, there wasn't a bridge to cross the river. In any case, it seems these families arrived in Essex in the 16th century. Could they have come from Scotland, Ireland, or somewhere else in England? This is a link yet unresolved.

In reply to your letter of 17 October, I might say that I do not recall receiving a response to your ad in the Frenchline, but that is all right, as I am no longer doing work for the Foundation. I might say that the Foundation is "on hold" until the probate trust agreement is settled. It seems questionable that it will continue. Nevertheless, I appreciated hearing from you.

As to the will of William French, I was happy to try my hand at the translation. It was very similar to many that I have read, in the past, so will be happy to give my hand at it.

The 13th day of May in the year of our Lord 1621

In the name of God Amen, I, William Ffrench of the parish of St. Dunstans in the west London, being sicke of body but praysed be God for it of a sound and perfect memorie, do make and ordain this my last will and testament in manner and form following, that is to say, first and principally, Igive and command my soul into the hand of my Lord Savior, Jesus Christ that gave it me and my body to be buryed in the parish church yard of the said church of St. Dunstans in the West.

Item, I give unto William Drury in the seller, five shillings. (cellar ?) Item, I give and bequeath unto Grace Burton five shillings

Item, I give and bequeater Harmond Johnson 20 shillings ANGE GOUNTY CALIFORNIA Iten, I give unto Morgan Simmons 5 shillings GENEALOGICAL SOC Iten, all the rest of my goods unbequeathed, I give and bequeath unto my brothers sisters unmarried equally to be divided whose names are hereafter espressed, that is to say, John Ffrench, Edward Ffrench, Robert Ffrench, Anne, Ellinor, Elizabeth, Margaret, Jemima(or Jemonia), Judith, and Dorothy Firench the summe of 4 pounds, to witt given me by my father and all other legacies, goods, and chattells by my testator given unto me as before expressed, equally, to be divided among them and of this my last will and testament, I make and ordain my said sister Ellinor Ffrench, my sole executrix, in Witness whereof to this my said last will and testament I have set my hand and seale the day and year first above written.

signed William Ffrench, sealed and delivered in the presence of Ffrancis Taylor, Nicholas Wenford, (his mark), Margaret Roberts (her, mark).

Memorandum that these words (others, legacies, goods, and chattells) were underlined in the 24th line before, then sealed hereof/

This will and testament was probated 26 Day of month of November in the year of our Lord 1637 by Mr. Johanne(John) (??Eyton) declaring Ellenor( ? ) alias(or also) Ffrench, his sister or executrix, in the legal manner as was directed by the deceased.

(Note: This last paragraph was not translated verbatim because it was in Latin and does not translate verbatim because the subject, verb, object is not written in that order and has to be rearranged before the translation).

If this translation is acceptable, I might suggest that it was worth about $10.60 of my time.' The wording was quite straight forward, with not much difficulty except for Ellenor's maiden name. It seems that she had married between 1621 and 1637. It is something like--E---tor. I could look up the original entry, on the microfilm, Sincerely, if you like. It might be clearer.

From what part. of England did he come and E.J. B. (3425.) FRENCH. Jonah French and his wife Melatiah are mentioned in the list of the founders of Keene, N. H. (1752). Information wanted as to his birthplace and ancestry, and that of his wife Melatiah.

I would be pleased also, to learn the family name of the wife of his son Silas. Her first name was Sarah. S. A. F.

3885. 2. FRENCH. J. M. P. Y., March 3, 1926. This line of William French is admirably presented in Mr. Linzee's "Ancestry of Peter Park and Sarah "Ruggles," a genealogy whose standards are well worth study by most amateurs. The passages on this query are inconveniently long for copying here. The book is in many libraries.

March was the first month because New Year's Day was in it. This brings up another question. If March 25 was New Year's Day, was March 24, the last day of the year, in the first month or the twelfth month? Don't worry; all of March was the first month of the year, but it was a question that I had difficulty finding an answer to.

There was a reason for numbering the months - the Puritans and Quakers and others believed the names of the months were Pagan and they simply refused to call the months by their names. Because numbering the months in your records can be ambiguous, it is best to always use the name of the month in your dates.

OBITUARIES Edmund French, 99; printer, photographer, oldest Carlisle resident

CARLISLE. – He spent 98 of his 99 years in this town, was its oldest resident and possessed the old Boston Post gold-tipped cane as a tribute to his longevity, and until his death Saturday in Emerson Hospital after a brief filness, operated his print shop behind his home on River Road.

Edmund L. Frepch, in fact, had printed the ballots used in the town elections this past April in his shop, the Wayside Press, a one-man operation which he had started on his father's farm when he was 15 in 1898.

Known here as a "very reputable, honest old man, a typical Yankee, and hard worker," Mr. French was the son of Tewskbury and Carlisle farm parents George and Josie (Proctor) French whose farm in Carlisle had been used as a training ground for Revolutionary War soldiers. Mr. French's father had been called up after high school for training in the Civil War.

Born Feb. 17, 1883, in Tewskbury, he attended a one-room grammar school, and graduated from high school in Concord in 1902.

Mr. French traced his genealogy to the Revolution, where records show that eight of his ancestors had served at Concord's Rude Bridge and one ancestor, 'who was on the Tory slide had been "persuaded" by Middlescx County fathers to resign his commission from the King. Still another ancestor, according to records kept by Mr. French's son, Hector, of Wakefield, was captured by Indians and lived with them five years after the King Philips War in 1675.

Mr. French was a printer by his chosen trade, as well as a carpenter, photographer, artist, town official and enthusiastic exercise buff and he was especially devoted to his many Masonic activities and his work in the Carlisle Congregational Church.

"He took a lot of pride in his church and Masonic affiliations," said a longtime friend, William Clark of Carlisle."He was a remarkable man."

Among the perceptions of Mr. French by fownsmen who said that they added to his "remarkable centenarian" status were:

 When he took up oil painting at age 85 at the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln, his teacher commented on his "keen eye and steady hand." Mr. Freich related this to his son Hector.

Many of Mr, French's painlings have been displayed locally and at the town's annual 4th of July Old Home Day celebration on the town common.

 At 85 his son saw him run up the backstairs, two at a time.

 At 86 he went swimming in Florida while he told his son "older men" sat in chairs and watched.

 At 88, according to Hector, he was found re-shingling the roof of his printing shop with apphalt shingles.

• When he was 88, wearing, his son said, sporty sideburns he had grown at the time, clear eyes and a vigorous gait." town fathers, presented him with the old Boston Post cane as the town's oldest inhabitant. It was one of 431 first given out as a promotion by the newspaper in 1909 to be passed down among New England towns' oldest residents.

 At 90, he was seen by his son, Lewis, also of Carlisle, riding his bicycle in his backyard outside his printshop.

 When he was 92, Hector saw him climb into a chair for an improved camera angle while taking a picture at the charch ordination service for Rev. Keith Grier.

 He pursued this lifetime interest in photography, taking pictures of church and town events, depicting the town's social life. "His subject was mostly Carlisle," said a friend.

Hector French said his father had at least 100 cameras during his lifetime, and started making pictures on glass plates at the turn of the century, some 20 years after the art of photography was invented.

Some of his plates an i pictures have been published in history books, local newspapers and historical publications, including, "Carlisie, its History and Heritage," by Ruth Chamberlin Wilkins, published in 1976.

* Described by a friend as a gentle person, not Impatient but unchangeable "when he made up his mind," Mr. French was slender and 5 feet 8 and had angular. Yankee features with a strong smile. He spoke rapidly and wore wire-framed and plastic-framed glasses.

'Calmness and peacefulness' were characteristic, said his son Hector.

Never a heavy man, according to friends, he credited his longevity to his habit of "regular exercise and a frugal diet."

His business was a one-man operation, according to friends, printing programs for lodges, organizations, town warrants, ballots and programs for graduations.

In the carly 1900s he had worked for the Lowell Weekly Journal which later became the Lowell Courser Citizen.

Later he was a compositor, stone man (who assembled type so it would be in the right place when printed) and a pressman, for the old Rand Avery Co. in Boston, then one of the larger orinting houses in the city.

From the 1940s until the early 1960s, he was town collector and also building inspector.

Mr. French was Carlisle Congregational Church treasurer for a number of years and was a charter member and past master of the Frank W. Thompson Masonic Lodge of Bedford: past master of the Thomas Talbot Lodge of Billerica; a charter and life member of the Heatner Lodge in Frambolse, N.S., which awarded him a 60-year Masonic recognition pin some years ago: also an officer of the Walden Royal Arch Chapter in Concord and a member of the Sir Galahad Commandery in Waltham and patron of the old Paul Revere Chapter of the Eastern Star in Bedford.

He was the widower of the late Mary C. (Mac-Donald) who died in 1974 at 76.

He leaves two sons, Hector E. French of Wakefield and Lewis E. French of Carlisle.

He also leaves four granddaughters and two great grandsons.

A funeral service will be held tomorrow at 11 a.m. in the Carlisle Congregational Church. Burial will be in Green Cemetery, Carlisle. – WILLIAMTP. COUGHLIN

ORANGE COUNTY CALIFORNIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

French Connection Library

We now have over 100 references in our library, a part of them is listed on the next page. Our intent is to provide a 10-20 page catalog of all our books to our members, some with indexes, but all will have a complete description of what is in the material. We will be able to xerox some of this material. This catalog may alert you to a particular name that you had not put on your chart. Hopefully the catalog will be available this year. If an article is referenced in the newsletter, the number will come from the French catalog (Ref. F004). Besides the partial listing below, we also have the International Genealogical Index (IGI) for the surname French in England (Northampton, Kent, Dorset, Essex, Suffolk, Sussex) and Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Arkansas, Tennessee, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Salt Lake City News

After a week of research in Salt Lake City, the French Connection Library has over 100 pieces of reference material in the form of books, pamphlets, and xeroxed sheets (IGI, wills, passenger lists, registers, public documents, census records, and maps), not to mention many pedigree charts. Much time was spent xeroxing in order to be able to spend research time leisurely at home. The following months will be spent researching and indexing this material, and hopefully we can provide all the help and advice possible to our members.

Each member is receiving a chart pertaining to their particular ancestry. We do search related "French" surnames; however, we try to stick to the Frenchline on the charts. Many times these related names have lead me to accidentally find someone else's line and further prove verifications between our members. Back in the 1600s there were, of course, fewer families in the U.S. I was stunned to find out how many of our members are related to one another from the 1600s.

These charts are basically in their beginning stages. During our second year, we would like to add more to them as time permits. It seems now to be a matter of time rather than a matter of research. We need to put all charts in line format to allow for more room for names. Some charts are already 30 pages long; we just need to enter them in the computer. We also want to indicate all dates as 4 Apr 1600 instead of 4/4/1600.

Please provide your corrections/suggestions to the charts so that we may update them for everyone concerned. Some charts will eventually be combined with others and the chart numbers will change. Charts will be sent out periodically as changes occur.

Charts 3 and 5 are being sent with this issue. Even though Chart 3 represents an easy-to-understand pictorial of each branch, its arrangement becomes increasingly difficult to manipulate as names are added. No more than about 40 names can fit on this pictorial chart; however, Art Westneat came up with a way to include 60 names per page, where the additions are very simple and can include more information on each individual. Also, with his chart, an index may be kept for easy referencing. Some of the charts have already been formatted in this manner (see chart 5). Generation numbers are listed to the left. Let us know if this is difficult to comprehend. We are always trying to find better ways of storing this data to make it more informational to you.

For specific questions, xeroxing, etc. in Salt Lake City (for a fee - about $8-$12/hr.), please write to J. E. Wilson Foundation, Delpha Triptow, 2985 So. 20th East, Salt Lake City, UT 84109 or to Paul C. Reed, Box 510846, Salt Lake City, UT 84151. Delpha can translate Old English and Latin.

FFRENCH(*) OF CASTLE FFRENCH

BARONY [I.] 1. 1798.

[I.] I. Rose DILLON, 1st da. of Patrick DILLON, of Killeen, co. Roscommon, by Mary, da. of Anthony BRABAZON, of Beagh, co. Roscommon, m., 25 June 1761, Charles FFRENCH, who was cr. a Baronet [I.], 17 Aug. 1779.

He d. July 1784, at Charleville. Will dat. 11 Jan. 1783, pr. 20 Oct. 1784. She was, on 12 Mar. 1798, cr. BARONESS FFRENCH OF CASTLE FFRENCH, co. Galway [I.], with rem. of that dignity to the heirs male of her body by her late husband.(1) She d. 8 Dec. 1805, in Dublin.

 THOMAS (FFRENCH), BARON FFRENCH OF CASTLE FFRENCH [I.], only s. and h., b. about 1765; suc. his father in the Baronetcy [I.] July 1784. He m., May 1785, Margaret, 1st da. of Thomas REDINGTON, of Kilcornan, co. Galway, by Sarah, da. of Christopher BURKE, of Kilcornan afsd. He d. 9 Dec. 1814, at his son's chambers, at Trinity Coll. Dublin, having committed suicide by shooting himself.(*) Will dat. 9 Dec. 1814, pr. in England more than 100 years later, Feb. 1915! His widow d. 7 Dec. 1849, aged 82, at Glenloe.

(*) The ludicrous mode of spelling this name with a double "f" has been stereotyped by its adoption in the patent of 1798. It probably arose from ignorance that the form of the capital "F" in manuscript was that of the small "f" duplicated (a duplication presumably arising from "a prolongation of the vertical tick at the extremity of the upper horizontal line of the capital 'F." [N. and Q., 8th s., iii, 24]), so that not only every "Fool," but even every "Felon" (if spelt with a capital "F") would be as much entitled to the double "f" as these scions of the house of French. This ffoolish ffancy, which is aggravated if the F be written Ff, has happily not been repeated by any other member of the peerage, and, considering the spread of education, is not likely now to occur again.

(f) The grounds on which this old lady obtained a Peerage are curious. Neither her husband, nor her son, nor any of her relatives appear to have been in Parl., or to have done any political or other service, save that her son influenced, on behalf of the Government, certain members of the Roman Catholic Committee who were of his own faith. Accordingly he obtained a promise of a peerage, but such a grant to "a Papist" being obnoxious to the King, and in every way unpopular, the difficulty was solved by conferring it on the Protestant mother.

(*) He founded a Bank, at Tuam, about 1804, under the style of "Sir Thomas Ffrench Bart, and Co."; a branch thereof was opened in Dublin in 1807, but "it came to utter grief" in 1814, and the money troubles arising from its failure caused him to kill himself. "A Roman Catholic and a most strenuous supporter of complete emancipation so as to preclude religious distinctions from interfering with civil rights." In this cause he and Lords Gormanston and Southwell were most active under the leadership of the Earl of Fingall. G.E.C. and V.G. (continued)

HISTORY OF JOHN JAY FRENCH Beaumont, Texas

Donated by Homer L. French Retyped by Mara T. French Edited by Portia H. Mason

John Jay French was born on December 20, 1799 in Woodbridge, Connecticut, the son of David and Anna (Johnson) French. He was a 7th-generation American, the great-great-great-great grandson of William French of Essex, England, who came to Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1635 with his wife and four children on Harklaken's Ship, "Defense," of London.

French received a good education and, according to family legend, two of his brothers were on the faculty of Yale [1]. French chose the profession of tanning. He was a member of the firm of Coe and French Tanners, probably in Oxford, Connecticut, at the time of his marriage on December 15, 1810, to Miss Sally Munson of New Haven, Connecticut. Their first child, Electa Jane, was born in Oxford on February 14, 1821 [3].

Sometime in 1822 French moved from Connecticut to Shawangunk, Ulster County, New York, there to engage in tanning and merchandising. On October 11, 1822, the first child, Electa Jane, died in Shawangunk. Several other children were subsequently born to John and Sally French in Shawangunk: Electa Jane (the second) in 1823, Nancy Eliza in 1825, and David in 1827.

Between 1827 and 1831 French moved from Shawangunk to Utica, New York. (Langham Manuscript says it was three years before he came to Texas.) French was evidently a man to look for opportunity and go after it. Inspired by the talk of new land and of fortunes to be made in Texas, French decided to try his luck. Family accounts say that he planned to open a store in Galveston [2]. That this was indeed his intention is borne out by the entries in his ledger book (which still survives) showing extensive purchases of goods beginning in March of 1831 and continuing intermittently after the first large purchases to January of 1832 [4]. French may have intended to leave in the summer of 1831 but, finding that another young French was on the way, he delayed his trip until after the birth on February 9, 1832, of John Jay French Jr. On April 1, 1832 French took inventory of all his purchases, 10 pages listing hundreds of yards of goods, a wide variety of items by the dozens and the gross. Now he was ready to go. The date of his departure is not known, but probably it was in the early summer of 1832. He shipped part of his goods on one ship, took the rest on another ship himself. A description (with some errors) is found recounted in the handwritten manuscript of French's granddaughter, Electa French Langham.

"In 1831 he decided to come South and he shipped (sic) what goods he had in a steamer. That steamer was lost at sea. He came on another steamer and it was in the same storm. He had more dry goods on that ship also. The mast was (sic) broken off. They were some place near Key West. They managed to tie and patch up the mast until they reached New Orleans. When they got there, they could not get timber large enough to make another. He abandoned that boat and took his trunks of dry-goods and went to Galveston. He had intended to start a store there. And only having a few trunks left, he decided to go to Brazoria County and peddle his things out. (Note: French's version to another said he was on a fifty ton schooner.)

In 1833 French made an agreement with B. Blackmon of Jefferson County to claim some land on Flores Creek, now Taylor's Bayou [5]. In March of 1834 French's ledger contains entries of sales in Anahuac and Liberty, Texas. In March, 1835, he applied to the Mexican Government for title to the Flores Creek land, and it was granted to him on June 26, 1835 [6]. In all he took possession of 4,428 acres of land under the Colonization Laws of Mexico.

French is supposed to have made three trips to Texas, the last one in the Fall of 1835 when he brought his family as far as Louisiana. His son, David, then seven years old, remembered that they came down the newly opened Erie Canal, and he heard his elders talk of the wonders of its construction [7]. Crossing Ohio, tragedy struck the family, for John J. Jr. died in Massillon, Ohio on Nov. 17, 1835. The family continued by boat down the Mississippi River. David remembered that they stopped at many "hamlets" for supplies and passengers, and that sometimes they were met by bands of Indians in their strange costumes, paint and feathers. After a five week trip, they arrived in New Orleans. In Louisiana they were halted by the outbreak of the Texas War for Independence ("the Battle of San Jacinto") and stayed in Louisiana at Opelousas for three years before moving to Texas. In Opelousas another son was born on August 13, 1838 and, following a family custom, he was also given the name of the previously deceased son, John Jay French Jr. (the second one).

It is reasonable to assume that French visited his Texas land during this time and perhaps built a house to receive his family. However, he is not listed in the 1837 Jefferson County tax rolls. According to family legend, the family did move to the Taylor's Bayou land in 1838, travelling by ox-drawn wagon over the Opelousas Road. Here they lived until 1845, when French realized that the town of Beaumont, which had become the county seat in 1837, was the booming area, outstripping the Taylor's Bayou settlement in growth. He bought 300 acres of land, 31/2 miles north-west of results of the second sec Beaumont [8]. The land he selected, located in the Absalom Williams Survey, was in a wooded area with many oaks whose bark he needed in the tanning process. Here he built a house patterned, some say, on the one he remembered from his Connecticut childhood RANGE COUNTY CALIFORNIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

John and Sally French lived better than most on their property 150 years ago.

A tannery consisting of five vats was built, and a long allee of live oaks planted between the house and the Concord Road. David and John Jr. helped their father in his tanning, and soon learned the business. In 1850 the tannery burned, but was rebuilt. Later, during the Civil War, the Frenches were detailed by the Confederate Army to stay at their work and turn out shoes and leather goods for the army and the civilians. The senior French also kept a store, or trading post, and "trading" was actually the means of exchange, for the ledgers list the many customers who brought in rough hides, barrels of corn, tallow, beef, and hogs to trade for shoes, harnesses, bridles, saddles, and other leather goods from the tannery, for the whiskey, wine, and brandy which French made himself, or for the everyday articles which they needed: cloth, needles, thread, irons, washboards, hats, vests, iron pots, and the like. Periodically the customers came in to "settle up," and French kept a ledger of credits and debits. The "settling" was often done "by book and by note," indicating that very little cash changed hands, but that the one found owing gave the other his note for that amount. Even the wages paid the various tannery employees were done by credit in the ledger against which they charged items from the store, and only a few entries show that French paid out cash. In fact the ledger contains entries that indicate that one man sometimes discharged his debt to another by using his credit at French's to assume some of the other man's debts.

French also had mills for grinding corn and grain and for grinding sugar cane, and people came from the whole area to use these facilities. Later John Jr. and David were the first to mill rice in the area, but their early attempts never developed into a full scale commercial mill. Grindstones from these mills are still imbedded in the ground near the home. French kept whiskey in a barrel and sold it by the pint, quart, or gallon but, according to his granddaughter, you never saw a drunk man on the premises. The granddaughter also remembered that about a half dozen Indians used to hang around, and when they got their whiskey they would go away happy. Legend had it that the Indians had small nuggets of gold, kept in quills, and that they traded this for whiskey and goods.

After a few years, John Jay French sold the tanning end of the business to his two sons and tended the store only. This left him plenty of time to indulge in that favorite of Texas Republic sports: land speculation. French had come to Texas lured by stories of easy land and fortunes to be made, and he promptly set about to realize his dream. The following entries from the Jefferson County deed books alone give some hint of his varied and numerous purchases:

1841 4605 acres in Nacogdoches County (Vol. D, p. 266)

320 acres in Jefferson County (D, 287) 1476 acres in Jefferson County (D, 290)

- 1845 300 acres in Jefferson County (E, 238) **The Home Place
- 1848 333 acres from A. Williams, next to above (G, 7)
- 1850 140 acres more from A. Williams, (H, 20)
- 1854 68 acres more from A. Williams, (K, 49)

- 1861 Lot 61, Blk 13 in Beaumont
- 1866 735 acres in McKinney League (Jefferson City)
- 1867 Block 25 in Beaumont
- 1868 640 acres in Comanche County
- 1871 McKinney League acres in Sheriff's Sale
- 1877 250 acres & 11 6/10 acres Jefferson County

French also owned land in Galveston, including one building on The Strand. He traded and banked with "Hutchins, Seely, and Simpson" or simply "Hutchins, Seely and Co." He was a shrewd yankee trader, often bought land at tax sales, and sometimes paid taxes on delinquent land, put a tenant on it, and got a title to it. He had land in Tyler, Hardin, Taylor, Lavaca, Nacogdoches, Orange, Comanche and Jefferson Counties. He spent his life acquiring land, and the amount he accumulated was staggering. His ventures Included one with the Lookout Mountain (Tennessee) Camp Meeting Association of Spiritualists. The association was selling stock in the mountain property, promising "a dividend in the near future [9]," and French, who was a Spiritualist, did invest in the stock. The family said he used to go up to Tennessee every year for two or three weeks until he sold his stock and got his money back. Then he did not return. There are still letters in the family papers showing that French corresponded with other spiritualists, with clairvoyant healers, with "The Magnetic Shield Co. of Chicago" whose magnetized undergarments "cured" any ailment, and with the Association of Spiritualists (a copy of their bylaws is among the papers).

French, the man is a fascinating study: the shrewd trader, buying goods and land at bankruptcy and tax sales, getting a 65% discount at one store on goods he purchased, and yet believing in and seeking remedies for his ills from a clairvoyant healer whose letter to French states that though French did not state the nature of his illness, he, the healer, was sending him a month's supply of his cure. French also delighted in magic and did parlor tricks of magic for the entertainment of his friends and the young people. Two newspaper accounts of his magic tricks are in the Family papers [1].

French was the subject of several feature articles throughout the years, as the stories of him were repeated from one generation to the next. One incident of his first stormy voyage to Texas which the old gentlemen like to relate concerns a clergyman missionary outward bound from New York on the same schooner as French.

"While on the way, off the Bahamas, there arose a severe gale at sea one night, and my fellow passengers, a clergyman, his wife, and another man went out on the deck of the vessel and began a course of singing hymns and saying prayers for their safety, but did not call on (Mr. French). The next morning the weather was calm and after breakfast the preacher told (Mr. French) of the storm, and of their prayers for safety, and that he (Mr. French) was asleep and they did not waken him to see the danger of death staring them in the face. Mr. French inquired whey they did not awaken him when the clergyman replied, "You know, we have had many discussions on this voyage on theological subjects, and as you don't believe as I do, I thought it wouldn't make any difference whether you were saved or not."

French held a firm belief that a few of the spirits of the departed return to earth. In later years his grandsons used to play pranks on him by pushing sticks through the pantry window at night and rattling and upsetting pans, to hear Grandpa French comment: "There are the spirits again."

Sally French did not share her husbands beliefs, and they attended the Methodist Church. French had in his home the Methodist hymnbooks (then containing the shaped notes after the style of the "Sacred Harp") and he would play the hymns on Sally's accordian far into the night.

Another tale shows his upright character: Once a yankee came into the store and wanted some tabacco. John Jay Jr., who was minding the store, pulled out some tobacco.

"How much?"

"Ten cents."

"Got any better?"

"Sure. Here's some for 15 cents," said Junior holding up more of the same.

"Got any better than that?"

"Yes, we've got one other kind, for 20 cents," reaching under the counter for more of the same. The Yank bought the tobacco, started for the door, and met old John Jay standing in the door.

"Wait a minute mister."

"What's the matter, I paid your boy."

"Yes," said old French, "but there's a lot you don't know. That boy cheated you." French gave back the money and gave his boy a whipping in front of the Yank.

A story from the Taylor's Bayou days was recounted by Mrs. Langham: "My grandfather, J. J. French, with another man by the name of Taylor, were boating on Taylor's Bayou in a skiff and one day they started down to the Pass. While there, a lady who had a pair of ducks gave them to my grandfather to take back to a friend of hers. On their way back that night, they camped out along the bayou. The mosquitoes were bad and they stretched a bar over their beds. These ducks were tied together and put over on the far side of the bed, and while they were asleep, a very large alligator was attracted by the occasional (sic) quack of the ducks, and came up by the bed where the ducks were. Grandpa threw his hand over the ducks and the alligator grabbed him by the hand, and the other man had to hold on to grandpa to prevent the gaitor (sic) from pulling him in the bayou, and finally Mr. Taylor took the lid off of a provision box and beat the gaitor with it until he finally turned loose. He grabbed the mosquito bar and some of the bedding and ran into the bayou with it, but they finally succeeded in getting it away from him before he got into the bayou.

By far the most spectacular tale is the tale of "Charley Yank," a carpetbagger who met his untimely end at the hands of French and his neighbors when he attempted to rob the Trading Post. But that story deserves a place of its own. After a long and prosperous life in Jefferson County, French, in 1884 when he was 86 years old, decided the country was getting too fast for him, and with Sally he pulled up stakes and moved to Merkle, A Texas, in Taylor County. There Sally died in 1885 and John in 1889 at age 91. This venerable old gentleman, writing in 1884, said "We have acquired much property under adverse circumstances."

John and Sally had left their imprint on the world they left. Three, and possibly four, of their children survived them, and the family line continued and increased, so that the French name is carried to this day by some of his descendants.

Nancy married George Burrel in 1843 and lived in the Taylor's Bayou area, inheriting from her father his original land grant there.

David married Amelia Guidry in 1850, and John Jay Jr. married Frances Cox in 1859. French Sr. built houses for both of them near his, and these houses, with the tannery and store, were the nucleus of "French Town." They inherited the land and buildings, and John Jr. moved into French's homestead after his father's departure and inherited it at his death.

About Electa Jane (2nd) a family legend persists. In the family Bible is written "died at birth" beside her name. The story was passed down through the generations that she did not die at birth, but lived to be a grown young woman and fell in love with a man unacceptable to her father (rumored to be part Indian). When she eloped with him over her father's prohibition. he disinherited her completely, even writing in the Bible "died at birth" beside her name at this time. One fact which would tend to corroborate this story is that French, in his application to the Mexican Government in March of 1835, stated that he came "with his wife and four children" to settle. Those four could only be Nancy, Electa Jane (2nd), David, and John Jay Jr. (1st). John J. Jr. (1st) did not die until November of that year, and John Jay Jr. (2nd) was not born until 1838.

The French name is still a familiar one in Beaumont. The street in front of the French house has always been French Road, and three schools in the area bear the French name: French Elementary, French Junior High, and French High School. They do not bear that name by accident.

French, himself an educated man, also saw that his children were educated. David was sent to school in a one-room log school house on Byprus Street in Beaumont. It was a private school, as public schools were nearly unheard of in the south of those days. David recalled that the building was about 18-feet square and filled with pupils from the whole area. He recalled dances being held in it when he was a bit older, and that the fiddler sat on a hide bottom chair on top of a table while the dancers frolicked through the Virginia Reel. John also was sent to school. A cryptic note in the beginning of the 1848 ledger states that "John commenced school around 15 Jan. Lost time 4. Left school Sat. 18 March." (March 18 fell on Saturday in 1848). Later in the ledger is a note "John commenced school October 17." This note is beside the regular entries for October 17, 1850.

Both boys were evidently quite aware of the need for public schools. David's daughter attended a school "conducted in a barn for the children of John Marble," and also went to "the governess of the McFaddin children" for a short time. In the early 1900's the nearest schools to the "French Town" area were the Voth School and the Fifth District school, both too far away for young children to go. So in 1903, the French brothers, John and David, together with John McDonald who operated a little sawmill north of Beaumont, and Charles Oglebee, a logger, decided to build a school. The Frenches donated the land, McDonald the lumber, and Oglebee the hauling. A two room, unpainted building was erected at Helbig, near the Concord Road (Voth Road) and Lucas Drive. However, the largest population growth was toward Beaumont, not French Town, and in 1912 the school board, headed by Henry French (son of John Jay Jr.) bought a new location and built a new school. It was called French School, and when an independent school district was formed, it was called French Independent School District and remained so until it merged with the Beaumont Independent School District years later. David's son, John, had also been a board member of the early school, and two of David's granddaughters taught in the French School District. Many of John Jay French's descendants still live in the same area on the land he acquired so long ago.

HISTORY OF THE LAND AND BUILDING

The land on which the French Trading Post stands was first granted to Absalom Williams by the Republic of Texas on November 26, 1841 (signed by Mirabeau B. Lamar, President of the Republic of Texas). Absalom and his wife, May (or Mary), had been living on the land for some time, at least as early as 1838, when they entered into an agreement with Hezekiah Williams whereby Hezekiah was to have the land surveyed and pay the fees and, in return, Absalom was to deed him one-half of it when the title was obtained "with the exception of one hundred acres where the said Absalom Williams now resides." For some reason, however, he does not seem to have divided his property with Hezekiah, perhaps by later agreement.

Absalom promptly began to sell his land. In March of 1842 he sold 921 acres for a total of $1144.

- 100 acres for $100 to Sally Grigsby
- 100 acres for $100 to J. J. O. Millard .
- 90 acres for $200 to O. H. Delano
- 94 acres for $94 to Joel Lewis
- 300 acres for $100 to Joel Lewis
  - ***French House Land***

237 acres for $550 to James Hoggett

(Deed Records, Jefferson County, Vol. D., pp. 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, and 465)

The price paid by Joel Lewis for the 300 acres indicates that there was no improvement on the land.

Our attention now shifts to Joel Lewis, who kept the land only three years before selling it to French. Joe, in 1839, had married Roda Williams. Perhaps one of the two purchases above was intended to be his home. It is possible that he never built a house because it appears that Roda died sometime between 1839 and 1845, when Joel married Mrs. Lydia Williams, widow of Hezekiah Williams, Jr. Since the new Mrs. Lewis had five children by her previous marriage, it is likely that she also had a larger and better provisioned home and that Joel took up residence there. He sold his 300 acres in the A. Williams survey to John Jay French on March 10, 1845 (Vol. E., p. 238) for $400 in promissory notes due in 1846 and 1847.

Given French's character and determination, once he had decided on the move, it is nearly certain that he promptly began to build his new home and tannery, probably during the summer of 1845.

It is not known who built French's house, but five years later he built a house for his son, David, on his marriage, and it was said to be a mirror image of his. Records during the building of that house (David's) indicate that part of the work may have been done by slaves, as entries show that he paid various other settlers for work done by 'Jessy," "Eli," "Black Israel," "Black Usan,". French himself is said to have had at least three slaves.

Other payments for labor and materials are noted: To Amos Tims on Nov. 13, 1850 — 6 M shingles To Amos Tims on Nov. 21, 1850 — 2 M shingles To Amos Tims on Dec. 24, 1850 — 116 pickets To John Fowler Oct. 13 — 5 days work this week To John Fowler Oct. 17 —  $3\frac{1}{2}$  days work To John Fowler Dec. 5 — making 13 doors and windows at \$3 — \$39.00, and doors for two windows, eave troughs, at Browns

Thus, through the building of David's house, it can be guessed that most of John Jay French's house was built, if not by some of the same labor, at least in the same way with local craftsmen making even the windows and doors on the job. Journey back in history French Museum displays signs of a time with very few conveniences

By Pat Yadon Lifestyles staff writer

By modern standards, life was hard during the mid- to late 1800s.

But nobody minded the hard work because they didn't know any other way — just as women who think they couldn't live without their microwave oven today did just fine before that high-tech food heater was available.

Even the shabbiest of today's ovens would have seemed a miracle to the men and women who lived in this area 150 years ago. Women stood sweating over an open fireplace or a wood stove to stir their pots of beans.

For people who want a peek into that more basic lifestyle, a trip to the John Jay French Museum offers a journey into the past.

The museum was the home of John Jay and Sally French, built in 1845. Because the Frenches were prosperous owners of a tannery and trading post, the house is more elaborate than the typical home of that time, says docent Terry Heath.

Like other early Texas homes, the French house is a dogtrot style, meaning it includes an open breezeway or roofed hall between two sections of a main building. But the French home was the first twostory building in this area; people gathered in the street to watch the second story go up, Heath says.

The house features two bedrooms on the right side of the breezeway, an office and a front room on the left side. A narrow stairway leading up from the now-enclosed dogtrot opens onto a large room with a bed and quilting frame. A kitchen and dining area are separate from the main house, with a wash basin on the porch for cleaning up before meals. The "plumbing," of course, was outdoors.

The Frenches had a well in the back yard, and a washhouse with round wooden tubs for weekly baths.

Texans favored dirt yards, which they swept with a broom made of branches. The yards always were fenced to keep chickens and ducks in and wild animals out.

Most Texas pioneers made their own furniture, and the French house includes some of these rough pieces. The men made shelves, stools, tables and chairs with cane or rawhide seats.

A cannonball—pegged rope bed used cords laced to the frame to support the feather mattress women made.

The Frenches also brought furniture with them, and acquired luxuries in Galveston that nobody but a trader would have had. The museum shows off a sewing machine, an organ, an English music box and other niceties a typical family never would own.

But even with the luxuries, life was not easy for the Frenches. Since they couldn't run down to the shopping mall, early Texas families had to be almost completely self-sufficient.

"The amount of work women did was incredible," Heath says.

A typical day for Sally French would have included rising at 4 a.m., serving breakfast at 5, getting the men off to work by 6, then fixing a huge dinner for all the unmarried men who worked at the tannery, which she served at 11 a.m.

Leftovers went into the pie safe until supper time. In the meantime, Mrs. French GECOURTEY CALIFORN GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY have washed clothes in the pots of water in the back yard, scrubbed the kitchen floor with a cornshuck broom or pressed clothes with a sadiron heated on the stove.

The woman of the house also made soap and candles, churned butter two or three times a week and made all the family's clothing, sometimes including shoes and hats. She tended a vegetable garden and gathered cotton from the fields to clean, spin and weave into cloth.

But life wasn't all grim, despite the hardships. "The First Texas Cookbook" includes recipes for home remedies for coughs, colds, cholera and typhoid fever, but also lists three ways to clean kid gloves.

Sunday was a day of rest: Children had their cornshuck dolls and other toys, women got together for quilting bees and the men enjoyed a good horse race. French played an accordian, and parties meant fiddling and dancing.

"They didn't yearn for anything because they didn't know any different way," Heath says.

THOMAS FRENCH First French Immigrant

Thomas French was born about 1580 in Halstead, Essex, England, and later moved to Assington Parish, Suffolk, England. He died 5 Nov 1639 in Ipswich, MA, after living nine years in America. He was married (1st) to Palladia Wood at Canterbury, probably in 1602. Palladia died suddenly, probably in giving birth to her third child in 1607. Thomas had three children by his first marriage: (1) William, born 15 Mar 1603, (2) Francis, baptised 29 Jun 1606, and (3) Jerrymya, baptised 21 Nov 1607. Thomas married (2nd) in 1607 to Susan Riddlesdale. They emigrated with their seven children, setting sail in 1630 as Puritans on the "Winthrop Fleet" from Halstead Parish, Essex, England to Ipswich, MA. Their seven children were: (1) Thomas, born 1608, died 1680, one of the first landowners of Ipswich, MA, married Mary Adams and had seven children (2) Alice, born 1610 (3) Dorcas, born 1614, maid-servant to Governor Winthrop on their voyage to America (4) Susan, born 1616 (5) Anne, born 1618 (6) John, born 1622, and (7) Mary, born 1625 and only five years old on her voyage to America. They were the first French family to emigrate from England to America. During 1630 seventeen ships carrying a total of 1,500 passengers arrived in America. The "Winthrop Fleet" of 11 vessels formed the "Great Emigration of 1630". The colonists were under the leadership of John Winthrop, lord of the manor of Groton, Suffolk. Many of the colonists were of the middle and upper class from Suffolk and Lincoln, as was Thomas.

This information is constantly being researched and updated. Any further data will be appreciated.

The Massachusetts Bay Colony

The most powerful and important English settlement in early New England was Massachusetts. This colony was the result of the political struggle between the Puritans and Royalists of England during the reign of King Charles I. The Puritan party was led by men of wealth, education, and influence who prepared the Massachusetts colonies as a refuge in case their political struggle in England failed.

The first settlement was made in Cape Ann in 1624 by merchants from Dorset, Somerset, and eastern Devon. Two years later the colonizers moved and founded Salem. This began the great Puritan migration which lasted until 1650, when the total population along the Atlantic Seaboard reached fifty-two thousand. In 1629 the leaders of the Puritan party secured the Massachusetts Bay Charter and sent a large fleet of ships from London carrying colonists under the leadership of John Winthrop, lord of the manor of Groton, Suffolk. Many of the colonists were of the middle and upper class from Suffolk and Lincoln.

As with John White, some Puritan clergymen, having been silenced by the archbishops, decided to emigrate to New England. The influence of these men usually extended some thirty miles around the parishes in which they preached, and many of their followers emigrated with them. The new settlements were usually named for large towns near their old homes. The largest emigration was from the Puritan region of Cambridgeshire, Suffolk, Norfolk, northwestern Essex, and eastern Hertfordshire. The Reverend John Lathrop led people from Kent to Sandwich Cape, Massachusetts.

After 1660 the character of emigration changed; there were no longer well-defined groups. The later immigrants were mostly merchants, artisans, tradesmen, apprentices, and servants from London, Bristol, and the southwest counties who came to seek their fortunes. By 1660 the New England colonies were making little effort to increase their population. They were, in fact, discouraging immigration.

HISTORY OF IPSWICH

The Ipswich Chamber of Commerce extends to you a hearty welcome to Ipswich and suggests that you stop at our Information Booth. If you plan to stay awhile, the attendant will gladly aid in locating accommodations and suggest litneraries. If you are just passing through, perhaps a friendly chat with the attendant will induce you to stay over, as there is a lot to see and do in Historic Ipswich!

Ipswich was named after old Ipswich, England, "in acknowledgement of the great honor and kindness done our people, who took shipping there."

The town of Ipswich, which lies just north of Cape Ann, was founded in 1633 and incorporated in 1634, making it one of the oldest towns in the United States. It is centrally located on the North Shore of Massachusetts. Ipswich is approximately 30 miles from Boston and 12 miles from Salem. It is only minutes from Route 1 and is accessible from Route 128, Exit 20 North. You can also enter Ipswich from Route 95, Rowley exit onto Route 133 East. Then follow the signs to Ipswich. Route 1A, which goes through Ipswich, is considered the most scenic route on the North Shore and is a most delightful ride.

The northeriy end of the Ipswich shoreline consists of rounded glacial hills, once a favorite Indian camping ground. Overlooking Plum Island and the sea, Little Neck, Great Neck and Eagle Hill are now built up with summer camps and cottages, many of which may be rented by arrangement. There are also an increasing number of yearround homes. Little Neck is operated by a self-perpetuating group of trustees, which has been in existence since the 17th century and which still bears the old English name of Feoffees. The Feoffees, the only such group still existing in the United States, own and operate Little Neck, collect the taxes for the town and still, as was their original purpose, pay an annual sum toward the operation of the Ipswich schools.

In 1614 Captain John Smith, famous for his part in the development of the Virginia Plantation, in an account of his voyages, wrote of the various habitations of Indians along the New England shores. Of "Angoam" (now Ipswich) he said, "there are many sands at the entrance of the Harbour, rising hills, and on their tops and descents are many corn fields and delightful groves."

Archeological studies published by the Essex Institute in 1956 indicate that artifacts uncovered in Ipswich in the last few years may indicate the existence of an Indian village here thousands of years before Christ. Certainly the Indians who roamed the eastern seacoast prior to the coming of white men knew Agawam as a favorable location for their way of life. Great mounds of shells in several parts of town, now overlaid with soil and vegetation, tell us they came here to enjoy the seafood as well as to cultivate corn. White men followed the lead of red men in their evaluation of areas for settlement.

Thirteen years after the settlement of the town of lpswich, its population was 600.

Public ways were maintained along the river. House lots were assigned in the village; farming acres were in the outlying parts of the town. Much land was held in common with rights being passed on from one generation of landholders to the next. Ipswich is one of the most varied communities on the North Shore. Its area alone, enormous for this region, provides a range in terrain that should suit any nature lover. The sand dunes and beaches are exquisite—and the texture of the sand is uniquely suitable to sandcastle construction (hence the annual Sandcastle Competition at Steep Hill Beach).

Inland, the town is a mixture of dwelling styles and commerce, with an active downtown area close by an Historic District that features beautiful antique homes. Further out, the community becomes quite rural, and the seaside landscape gives way to wooded areas and ponds.

There is a definite atmosphere to the community that might best be described as "cosmopolitan." The variety in terrain and dwellings is carried through in the populace, which consists of strong ethnic communities, new arrivals in the recent developments, and what one resident calls the "fabulously wealthy."

The services Ipswich offers make it a self-sustaining community in many ways. Town water and sewers are available to most of the town, as is gas service and municipal electricity. There is municipal trash collection, full-time police and fire departments, and a well-stocked library.

The school system offers a kindergarten to sixth grade program in three elementary schools, a junior and a senior high school.

Housing in Ipswich can still be found in the $40,000 range, but most homes offerred settle into the $50,000 to $80,000 range. In the more prestigious areas along Linebrook and Argilla roads, country homes sell for over $100,000, while in the center section, apartments and multi-family dwellings are available.

MEETING HOUSE GREEN

This ancient Green abounds with history. It was here in 1634 that the settlers of Ipswich built their Meeting House, the first of seven to dominate the rocky crest of Town Hill. The latest contemporary structure, dedicated in 1972, replaces the 1847 structure, an outstanding example of Gothic Revival architecture, destroyed by fire in 1965. The ancient gilded weathercock still swings atop the steeple of the new church, and curfew still sounds from the bell tower, as it has for more than 300 years.

Close to the Meeting House stood His Majesty's Gaol, where some of the accused witches were confined during the witchcraft mania — and here was the Court House where a young John Adams set as circuit judge — and the Town House where Webster held forth. The schoolhouse and whipping post and stocks stood nearby, and still standing is the former Probate Building erected in 1817 and the first Post Office of 1774-possibly the oldest in the country with its delightful overhang.

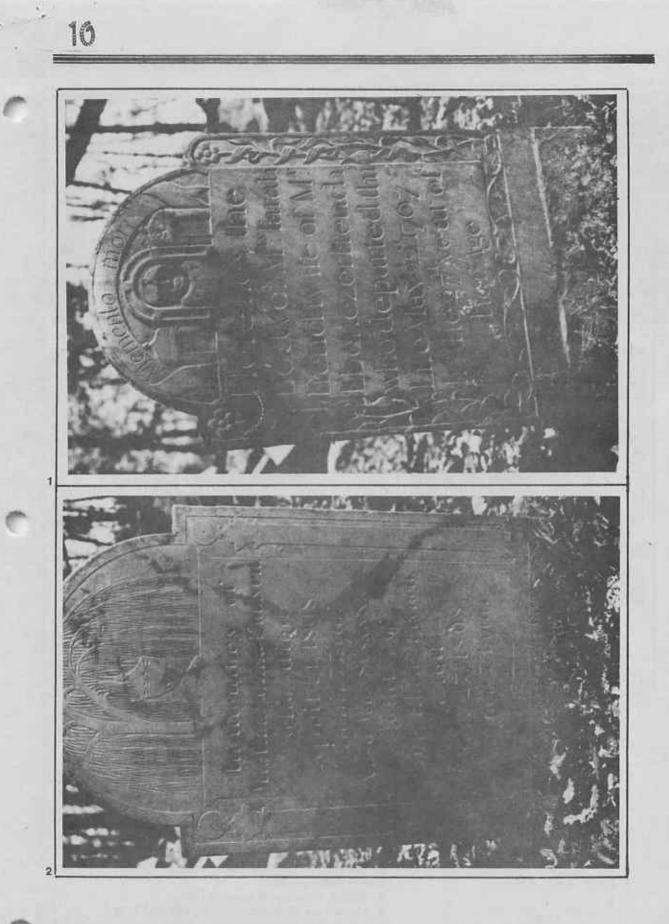

It was in the ancient Town House on August 23, 1687, that the citizens of Ipswich, led by the Reverend John Wise, denounced the tax levy assessed by the government of Sir John Andros and initiated the famed "Andros Rebellion." The town seal bears the legend, "The Birthplace of American Independence," and a plaque on the Green commemorates the event.

Ipswich, in addition to being one of the oldest towns in the Commonwealth, is also one of the largest, with an area of 33 square miles. The present population of Ipswich is slightly over 11,500.

(Diagram 1.)

He had a house on this lot, which was inherited by his son Thomas, the Constable of the Town, who was arrested with the Andros resistants. and was imprisoned and fined for his participation in that affair. John Stiles and Mary, and Esther French, seamster, all of Boxford, sold Dr. Samuel Wallis "the homestead of our father French, two acres" Aug. 1, 1718 (34: 198). The widow, Sarah Rust, daughter and heir of Wallis, sold this lot to Nathaniel Rust, bounded west by Nath. Farley, Jan. 4, 1794 (158: 219). Rust sold to Aaron Kimball, and he conveyed to Robert Kimball, and Ebenezer 3d, March 1, 1814 (203: 32). Ebenezer conveyed his interest to Robert, Sept. 29, 1836 (295:68) and it is called the "Rust lot," in a conveyance (291: 289). Captain Robert Kimball sold this lot, with the sale to the Eastern Rail Road Co. of the whole corner, Oct. 21, 1836 (295: 116). The Joseph Farley southeast bound, which was the northwest bound of the Rust lot, was 58 ft. 6 in. from James F. Mann's corner bound. This establishes the exact location of the Thomas French homestead. It covered the site of the pumping station and land adjacent.
