MURPHY NAME FACT SHEET

O'MURPHY, O'Morchoe

Murphy is much the commonest surname in Ireland: birth registration statistics indicate that of, a population of 4 1/4 million, no less than approximately 55,000 are Murphys. The name, with which the prefix O is never used nowadays, may be either O Murchadha or Mac Murchadha in Irish. It arose independently in several parts of Ireland: there are, for example indigenous septs so called in Counties Tyrone and Sligo, but these are unimportant in comparison with the great Murphy clan of Leinster. This was centered in Co. Wexford. The Chief of the Name is O'Morchoe, an otherwise obsolete form in English. Birth statistics indicate that Murphy is the commonest name in Co. Wexford and it also has first place in Co. Carlow. The surname, however, is even more numerous today in Munster than in Leinster, particularly in Counties Cork and Kerry. This Munster sept, which is associated particularly with the barony of Muskerry, Co. Cork, is said to be a branch of the Kinsella section of the Wexford clan. Their arms, however, are quite different from those of the Wexford Murphys. The Ulster sept of Murphy, mentioned above as belonging to Co. Tyrone, is still numerous but is now more common in the adjacent county of Armagh, where in fact it is first in the statistical list. A chief named Flaherty O'Murphy is recorded in the Annals of Tir Boghainne, i.e., the modern barony of Banagh in Co. Donegal, so that it will be seen that the Murphys were and are widespread in Ulster also.

As might be expected in the case of a name as numerous as Murphy the references to prominent persons of the name in the Annals are frequent throughout the centuries, both of the Leinster and the Ulster septs, for the most part to chiefs and soldiers; but there are others, e.g., Domhnall Dall Ua Murchadha "chief sage of Leinster" who died in 1127. Passing on to more modern times a few names may be selected to illustrate the extent to which the Murphys have contributed to the political and cultural history of the nation. Wexford produced the best known of these: the two Catholic priests who lost their lives in the 1798 Rising - Rev. John Murphy (1753-1798) and Rev. Michael Murphy (1767-1798). Of the many Co. Cork Murphys who have distinguished themselves we may mention John Murphy (1700-1770), better known as Seán Ó Murchadha na Raithineach, last chief of the Blarney bards; Canon Jeremiah Murphy (1848-1915) and Most Rev. John Murphy (1772-1847), Bishop of Cork, both of whom were remarkable not only for their scholarship but also for the extraordinarily fine libraries, including Irish manuscripts, which they possessed. Marie Louise O'Murphy (1737-1814), beautiful daughter of an Irish soldier settled at Rouen, was an influential mistress of Louis XV. Her features are immortalized in many paintings by Boucher, whose model she was. John Murphy (1755-836), was a famous sea captain; James Cavanagh Murphy (1760-1814), first a bricklayer, later an architect, was a leading authority on Spanish, Moorish and Portuguese architecture; and finally there was William Martin Murphy (1844-1921), business magnate and leader of the employers in the great Dublin strike of 1913. The Ulster Murphys have been less prominent: Arthur Murphy (1727-1805) was an actor and dramatist of some note; Rev. James Gracey Murphy (1808-1896) was a Hebrew scholar; and Patrick Murphy (1834-1862) was remarkable for his immense height, being eight feet one inch tall. Many Murphys of Irish emigrant families have also been outstanding in various phases of life in America and Australia; and many appear in the regimental lists of the Irish Brigade in the service of France.

SOME NOTES ON GOVERNOR ISAAC MURPHY

by James M. Carselowey

These notes are inspired by an item in FLASHBACK about Union Colonel Bishop escorting two Murphy girls from Elkhorn to their home in Huntsville, in early 1862. And by the fact that Isaac Murphy's grave in the Huntsville cemetery is near the grave of my great-grandfather, Captain Jasper Dawson (1840-1864).

Isaac Murphy was born Oct. 16, 1799 near Pittsburgh, Pa., the son of Hugh and Jane Murphy. He died Sept. 8, 1882 at Huntsville, Ark. At the age of 31 years Isaac Murphy went to Tennessee, where he was married July 31, 1830 to Angelina A. Lockhart. The Murphys were in Tennessee four years and there their daughters, Matilda and Mary, were born. In 1834 the Murphy family came to Fayetteville, Ark., where Isaac taught school. He also taught school for a time in Mt. Comfort.

He was admitted to the bar in 1835 and combined the practice of law with his school teaching in Fayetteville. He also worked with a U. S. land survey party in northwest Arkansas. In 1848-49 Isaac Murphy represented Washington County, Ark., in the legislature.

In 1849 Captain McCulloch organized a company to go to the California gold fields. Isaac Murphy signed up and it is presumed that his family went with him, as he was in California four years, returning to Arkansas. On Sept. 1, 1854 Isaac and Angelina Murphy and six daughters arrived in Huntsville, where he and daughters Matilda and Mary taught school. The three school positions were probably the reason they went to Huntsville instead of returning to Fayetteville. The oldest daughter Matilda headed the Huntsville Female Seminary.

Matilda Murphy married on Nov. 18, 1855 James R. Berry, born Jan. 14, 1830 in Bellefonte, Ala. Berry came to Madison County, Ark. in 1841. He was the son of John Berry, senator from Benton and Madison counties, who died in 1856 and Isaac Murphy was elected to fill out his unexpired term in the state senate.

Mrs. Carselowey and I found the graves in Huntsville of Isaac and Angelina Murphy; "John Berry, born April 15, 1800, died Sept. 18, 1856"; "Isaac Murphy, born Oct. 16, 1799, died Sept. 8, 1882 -- 8th Governor of Arkansas" and wife, "Angelina A. Lockhart." Other gravestones inscriptions are those of "Angeline Lockhart Murphy, wife of Rev. Thomas May Thorpe, 1842-1929 -- age 87" (she was a daughter of Isaac Murphy), and "Mary R. (Murphy) Lowe, 1834-1829, age 91, wife of H. C. Lowe" (she was Isaac Murphy's second daughter). There were three daughters living in the fall of 1882, indicating that the three younger daughters had died prior to 1882.

The Berry family were prominent people in Madison County. We saw several Berry graves -- all Masons. Among them were: Albert L. Berry, b. June 12, 1826; d. June 14, 1872; John Berry, b. Apr. 15, 1860; d. Sept. 18, 1956; J. H. Berry, b. Dec. 6, 1850; d. Sept. 17, 1880.

Isaac Murphy practiced law and taught school in Huntsville until 1860. In February 1861 he was elected Union delegate to the convention in Little Rock and attended both meetings of the "secession convention", in March and May 1861. All members of the convention voted for secession except Isaac Murphy. Ill feeling forced him to flee for his life on Apr. 7, 1862. In Missouri he joined the staff of Union General Curtis and in 1863 joined the staff of Generals Steele and Davidson. He was present at the capture of Little Rock Sept. 10, 1863. A Union convention at Little Rock in January 1864 chose Isaac Murphy provisional governor, and in March 1864 he was elected Governor of Arkansas. He was inaugurated in April 1864 and his term ended July 3, 1868. He returned to his home in Huntsville where he practiced law until his death on Sept. 8, 1882.

Your readers might be interested to know that Isaac Murphy was Washington County treasurer while living in Fayetteville from 1836 to 1838.

Another interesting personal item: Col. Sam W. Peel, Confederate soldier and Congressman from the 5th Arkansas District, lived at Bentonville. He was the brother-in-law of Judge J. M. Pittman who married his sister, Margaret Peel, on Oct. 16, 1866 in Carroll County. Colonel Peel married a sister of James H. Berry of Huntsville, who married Matilda Murphy.

Fayetteville Daily of 1905

The WCHS has acquired a copy of a little-known Fayetteville newspaper, the Daily Arkansas Sentinel. The issue is Volume I Number 204 and is dated Monday, June 12, 1905. Publisher was Meah M. Merritt. Editor was John Neely. The big story in this number was the University commencement. A political dispute brought the entire board of trustees to Fayetteville: G.T. Breckenridge of Paragould, W.H. Langford of Pine Bluff, H. Stroup of Paris, J.C. South of Mountain Home, D.D. McMillan of Arkadelphia and Frank Hall of Fayetteville. Governor Jeff Davis, wife and daughter were registered at the Washington Hotel. President of the University was Dr. Henry Hartzog.

Stevenson-West Family Reunion

John A. Reed and W.J. Lemke of the WCHS attended the Stevenson-West family reunion at VanBuren on Sept. 4. Some 60 members of these early families were present and heard Mrs. T.J. Garner, permanent secretary, bring the group up-to-date on the history of the family since the last reunion. The reading of the names of those who had died during the past year was impressive. Mr. Reed spoke to the group on his research in Reed-Stephenson family history. Several members of the Crawford County group are members of WCHS.
