The following is an alignment of the family groups involved in the first six generations of the ancestry of:

DOES NOT CIRCULATE

- (1) JOE DAVID ROBERTSON
b. 23 Jan 1946
pt. Gilmer, Upshur Co., TX.

It may be noted that the ancestries of many of the enclosed lineages have been proved numerous generations beyond six. However, complete family groups are not yet as available for 8-12; work here is in progress for a later presentation; and additional proofs for some ancestors are needed prior to releasing any further data.

This compiler makes a special appeal for information regarding Sampson Smith and Elisabeth Bouknight, his wife. This union of #18 and #19 supposedly emanated from the "Bouknight stronghold" of Lexington County, SC. However, the "Smith" difficulty, along with the "burned out" Lexington courthouse has made this branch the runt of the family. Any information regarding Smith-Bouknight, or any of the other lineages included in this print-out, will be greatly appreciated and all files openly shared, via writing:

David Robertson
Route 4, Box 292
Jefferson, TX 75657

The enclosed data is, itself, far from complete, to our present-day. To all relation, particularly cousins, from first to twenty-fifth, I welcome your communications and particularly your family group sheets for incorporation toward a complete record.

For those of you who have published a family genealogy, what better place to have it reviewed than in a publication dealing exclusively with this surname!! Your book will be reviewed in future issues of this booklet until I hear from you that there are no more books available. Also, if your family history mentions any other surnames on which I publish booklets, it will be reviewed in them. You will receive a copy of the booklet in which your review first appears. I will also review research books in a like manner, and any time information from the book is used, full credit will be given. If there are possible connections with your family history and published branches, reference will be made and I will contact the submitter. These reviews are published free of charge!!! Just send a complimentary copy, stating price, postage/handling, applicable tax, and ordering address.

If you know of anyone who has published a genealogy book, let them know about us, and allow others interested in the same surname to be informed.

foreword

For the third and final time, Ladies and Gentlemen. (In the trilogy, that is.) This should keep you busy for a little while. As some of you may already know, I have quite my job as an assistant at a nearby elementary school and plan to devote (within reason) my time doing these books. That means they should be arriving in your mailboxes more often of late.

Which reminds me: I have just printed all the Robertson queries I have. This is it. Send in your queries for volumes 11 and 12. And remember if they have Tennessee, Georgia, or English connections, your queries will also appear in those publications.

You will notice that I have put in some Robinson information this time. Thanks to my g.g.gfather, James Robertson. I can't remember how many times I have said, "I don't have Robinsons, just Robertsons." His obituary was listed in his local newspaper as Robinson!

I also used to say, "Oh, I don't have Kentucky people," (or any other location). I don't anymore. I got full eating my own words.

It just goes to prove that we need to check All sources of info, regardless of spelling or locality!

I previously brought you the story of the two Duncan Robertsons. Here's another story for you from Minerva Bassett, 7409 Beverly Rd., Bethesda, MD 20814. "In talking with Mrs. Bushman, a local knowledgeable lady, she said she thought there were two James Robertsons, who were contemporaries living in Augusta co, VA, and each of them had a son named Matthew. It is Mrs. Bushman's theory that the Matthew Robertson who is our forebear was not the son of the James Robertson who married Rebecca, but of the other James Robertson. One of the James Robertsons came to Augusta co, Va from Pennsylvania." If anyone can shed light on this story, please contact Mrs. Bassett.

Remember to check The G.R.O.U.P. sheet that I enclose with your books. Every time we have a meeting, it is updated. Submission of branches and queries is free for every one of them! You can't go wrong!

Encourage your local society and library to purchase these for the greatest benefit to all researchers.

Good luck with your research, and I look forward to receiving all your queries!

LOVE,

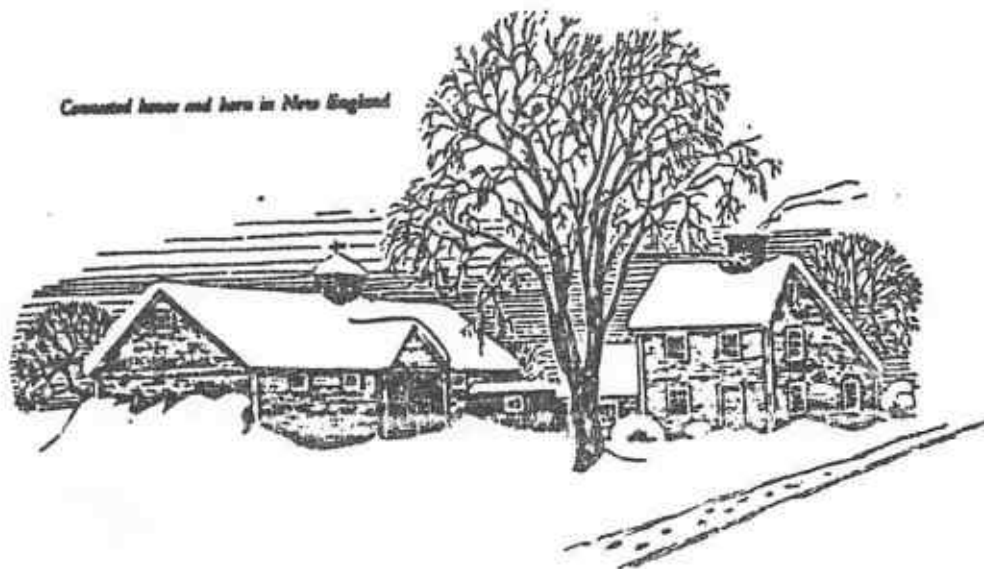

E. Dale Smith

Notes on the Life of William Robertson of Williamsburg (VA)

William Robertson, son of William Robertson, Bailie of Edinburgh, was born in Edinburgh in 1675. He mar. Christian "Christine" Ferguson on Jun 2, 1698. She was born in 1680, the d/o John Ferguson, Lord Pitfour, Cardinal & Burgess. He is buried in Greyfriars, i.e. Lord Pitfour.

William and Christine Robertson came to the James City area of VA in 1698 with James Blair, D.D., president of William and Mary College. He was clerk of the college and lodged there. In 1702, he was appointed Clerk of the Virginia Council and clerk of the General Assembly. In 1705 he was appointed one of the trustees or fee officers to direct the building of the city of Williamsburg. He also became one of the trustees of the College of William & Mary in 1727. He was a member of the vestry of Bruton Parish Church, where his pew is marked today.

In 1707, he was deeded the property on which the house described in "Behold Williamsburg" was subsequently erected. He sold this property to John Grymes of Middlesex co, in 1723, the deed noting that it was "the dwelling house where in the said William Robertson lately dwelt together with the garden, yard and appurtenances."

In 1706 William Robertson asked the council for leave to go to England for the recovery of his health which had "been impaired by a long, lingering distemper". (See Executive Journals of the Council, Bk III, pg. 20)

The Council granted his request and directed him to turn over his records to such person as should be designated to succeed him (ibid pg. 136) Happily, he recovered without recourse to the arduous journey. The records show no break in his services.

In 1727 a letter from Robert Carter, life-long friend and close associate of William Robertson, to anothe friend, John Randolph, dated Aug 5, contained the following:

"Yours of the third reached me this morning. I met with ye unhappy account of poor William Robertson's deplorable disaster." ---"Robert Carter Letterbook" Alderman Library. Two days later a letter addressed to Benjamin Harrison, Carter says: "The dangerous condition poor Will Robertson lyes in at Clocester Court by a broken leg I can not think yu are without an account of. Staggs saw him yesterday morning and writes me last night that two days before his fevers pursued him so violently that his life was dispaired of but a good night before he saw him and that then his fever was quieted off and the surgeons were in great hopes of his doing well. ibid 8-7-1727. Again on Sept 2, 1727, Robert Carter writes to William Robertson: "When I hear of your health so soon when a few days before I had an account of your life being in a great deal of danger.".....On Jan 9, 1728 Robert Carter wrote "It hath bin no small pleasure to have heard of your deliverance so well from your late calamitous disaster and that your wooden leg is now become so familiar to you that you are qualifying all ye parts of your business."

Other letters from Robert Carter indicated that the loss of his leg, at age 52, was caused by a fall from a horse.

Governor William Gooch of VA wrote to the Board of Trade on Dec 13, 1727 (Gooch Papers pt. I, Transcripts from Public Office Records). "Since the General Court, I have been very ill and the most useful person in this country to the Governor confined by the loss of his leg..."

The above mishap kept him from active service about four months. The only break in his service from 1702 until his death in 1739. He was appointed Clerk of the General Assembly of Va on Oct 27, 1705, while Edward Mott was governor.

William Robertson and his wife Christine lived the rest of their days in Williamsburg. They were buried there, but their tombstones along with many others, were lost prior to the restoration of present-day Williamsburg. The memorial to William Robertson in the restored town is relegated to a single windmill. His portrait hung once in the restored courthouse but that has now been placed in storage. William Robertson departed this life in 1739, aged 54.

Jean, sister of William, married Alexander Henry. They were the grandparents of Patrick Henry.

Minutes of House of Burgesses for 1739-40 shows his will leaving the bulk of his estate to his daughter, Elizabeth, a minor, and her husband, John Littledale, according to a previous agreement.

William Robertson was a cousin of Lord Brougham (See "King William Co, VA" book). Judge John Robertson, his great grandson, (son of Scotch Will's son Archibald).

Branches

The following section is very important to all researchers with the same surname in common. Here is a chance to connect to a branch that has already been published. If you have not yet sent in yours, it is to your advantage to do so as soon as possible. Do not wait until your research is "done" before submitting your information. Many things may happen that would make it impossible for you to have your direct line published. It is important that we preserve our research data for our future generations.

I welcome your lineages, either in the format that follows, or on family group sheets. It is not how you submit it, but that you DO submit it.

Submitted branches may be added to or corrected in future volumes. If errors occur in transferring the material to these publications, i. e., typographical or omissions, please let me know. The editor does not take responsibility for errors in the research.

If you contact others who connect to your branch, please let me know so that we can merge the two or more branches. If possible, please cite your sources, and be detailed as to places so that others may research in depth, too.

What better way to preserve our data, and to meet new cousins!

A little about myself:

Elizabeth Dale Hastin, born 30 April, 1946, Denver, Colorado, and raised in the Air Force. I met my husband Craig Douglas Smith at Washington State University, (GO COUGARS!) We married 26 November 1966, Seattle, Wa. We have two sons, Todd Douglas Smith, PFC United States Army, and Chad Dale Smith, a student at Lewis and Clark High School. I am an active member of Eastern Washington Genealogical Society, a member of The G.R.O.I.L.P., (Genealogical References of Upcoming Publications) of the Inland Empire, a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and a Pioneer of Washington State. In addition to family, friends, and genealogy, I work full time as a secretary.

Costa Mesa author's 100 years have been filled with adventures

100-year-old Georgia Robertson.

The three years Georgia Day Robertson spent at the Poston Relocation Center during World War II are typical of the adventures she's had in her hundred years — that is, if anything about her life can be called typical.

Although she took time out five years ago to look back and write an autobiography, Robertson usually remains focused on the future.

For 40 years, she looked forward to the publication of her novel, "The Harvest of Hate." But since she accomplished that goal last November, she has a new one: cashing her first royalty check.

She didn't write the book for the money. But as a girl growing up poor on an Iowa farm, as a young widow with two boys to support, as a mature woman considered "too old" to work who had to sell eggs and flower bulbs to get by despite her two master's degrees, she learned over and over how important every nickel can be.

Her hair is stark white, but that's not a recent development. It's been that way for 70 years. It started turning, according to her unpublished autobiography, one harrowing night in 1912 when she and other Christian missionaries in China were awake all night listening to gunfire as two rival factions looted and burned the city of Nanking. By the time she was 30 years old and back in her native Iowa, it was all white.

She was Georgia Day when she went to China in 1911, a young woman some considered "too pretty" to become a missionary. But she was certain she had been called to the work, and the missionary board eventually agreed.

Along with her degree in mathematics and physics from Iowa State University and several years of teaching experience, she took with her 100 bars of Ivory soap, enough to last five years. She did not, however, take along long underwear for cold weather. So when she got to China, she had to spend an embarrassing evening going through the streets of Hankow with a bishop and a male missionary to find some. "It was my first experience on the streets of a Chinese city," she said in the autobiography she wrote five years ago. "Narrow, indescribably dirty, a woman lying in a gutter. I don't know whether or not she was dead. Dim flickering kerosene lamps or maybe just a cup of oil with a wick hanging over the side. . . ."

Finally the bishop found her some men's long underwear, "as scratchy as burrs. One would have needed the hide of an elephant to wear them in comfort."

She never got the chance. After she and another young woman took a summer break in the mountains, revolutionary forces overthrew the Manchu dynasty, in power since 1644. With fighting everywhere, the vacationing missionaries could not safely return to their assigned station, where the soap, the underwear and most of their other belongings were.

In the mountains, she saw two of China's greatest natural wonders: the pink sunrise over the Snow mountains of Tibet and the "Glory of Buddha." For the trip, the women switched from their usual sedan chairs — ladies generally did not walk in public — to mountain chairs, and were carried up to the temple on the summit of 11,000-foot Mount Ormei.

"In some places the road going up the mountain curved so sharply that your front chairbearer would be around the curve before the rear one reached it, and you would be hanging in space looking down a few hundred feet," she recalled in her autobiography. Weather conditions had to be right for both the pink sunrise and the Glory of Buddha. She was fortunate enough to see both. The Glory of Buddha, she explained, happens when "you stand on the edge of the precipice, and out there on the billowy clouds you see your shadow surrounded by a rainbow circle."

After the revolution ended and Sun Yat-Sen took power (she met him once and remembers him as "a friendly, pleasant man"), she was assigned to the temporary capital of Nanking, where she was the first female to teach at all-male Union University, and possibly the first female to teach men anywhere in China. The school administrator warned her that if the class did not stand and bow when she entered the room, it would be such an insult that she could not return.

Apprehensively, she opened the classroom door and walked in. All the students leaped to their feet. "Apparently their respect for a teacher outweighed their contempt for a female."

The morning after the battle in Nanking, "I dressed to go to the university to my classes. I wasn't going to have those men students say I was afraid to come," she wrote. "The cook told me I could not get out the front gate because the dead bodies were piled so high against it they couldn't get the doors open. So I went out by the small side door."

None of the students showed up for class that day, but she made sure they knew she had.

She was the principal of a girl's school in the central China city of Chengtu when she met a young Canadian mining engineer, John Alexander Thompson Robertson. They were married a short time later at the British Consulate.

Their son Angus was born in 1915 in the old Manchu city; missionaries had to stand at the gates while she was in labor to intercept the doctor and keep him from leaving the city. The gates were locked every day at sunset and kept locked until morning.

The Robertsons were back in the United States when son David was born in 1917. In 1922, her husband became ill with cancer, and he died the following year.

She went back to college and got a master's degree in economic history in 1923, another in education the following year, and worked as a college teacher in Iowa and Kentucky before moving to Orange County in 1933.

Shortly before Pearl Harbor, she took a job managing entertainment for a USO club in San Diego. But after the war began, she quit that job, moved back to Orange County, and then went to work at Poston.

After the book was rejected in 1946, Robertson went on to other adventures. She went to postwar occupied Japan to teach English, then came back to Orange County.

As she got older, she sold her house and moved into a trailer. Her sister died in 1968, leaving her the only surviving family member of her generation.

"Being old is like driving an old car," she wrote at age 95. "All the parts are wearing out, and it doesn't run so nice as it used to. You keep wondering when some part is going to break down altogether and the car is ready for the junk heap. . . .

"Yes, the body ages, but it is the spirit that is important. If you allow it, it too, will become old and depressed and cranky."
