

ORIGIN OF NAME.

Taken from Barber's "British Family Names" Spicer, from the old French espicier; see (Rotuli, de Oblatis et Finibus time of Regis Johannis) Benedict le Spicer.

The practice of borrowing names from various avocations of life is of high antiquity. As local names had generally the prefix de or et, so these frequently had le; as, Stephen le Spicer, in the records of the twelfth and the two subsequent centuries.

These anecdotes of the origin of the name may interest and amuse the family at large: (From a letter written by a grandson of Jacob Spicer of New York State) "My grandfather Jacob Spicer once told me that the name originated in England at the time of the Gunpowder Plot; that the King knighted the discoverer of the plot and gave him the name of Spy, Sir, since changed to Spicer." Another correspondent writes: "It is a fact the Spicers are, of Irish origin, though those emigrating to this country were born and reared in England. This is the tradition as to the origin of the name: 'In one of the early wars an Irishman was captured by the English; such were the appearances that they said to him, "You are a spy, sir." The captive with ready Irish wit replied, "Spicer? Spicer! Yes, Spicer begolle, that is my name." "But you are a spy, sir, and must die." "Yes, yes, begolle, that is my name, Spicer, but you don't hang people for having a name you know, do you?" The English were so much pleased with his wit that they let him live and he was ever after known as Spicer."

OUR ENGLISH ANCESTRY.

It is with great regret that the compilers of this book feel obliged to publish it before having discovered our English progenitor. We have spent several hundred dollars endeavoring to establish the parentage of Peter Spicer, and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Senior, has contributed eight hundred dollars to this search. The genealogist to whom we intrusted our latest research in England informed us that he had succeeded in locating our ancestor, the father of Peter, and in establishing a most illustrious line back to 1300, but all we have to show of his work is the will of Elizabeth Spicer. He promised a finished narrative the latter part of 1908, and we have waited until November, 1910, for the fulfillment of his promise. It is impossible to wait longer. If an article comes from him before the printing is finished, which after verification proves reliable, it will be inserted at the back of the book. If it comes after the printing is finished will be issued separately.

It is our opinion that Peter Spicer was a son of Edward Spicer, who came to Virginia in 1635, and that he belonged to the Exeter family to whom the coat of arms pertain, but this may be an entirely erroneous opinion.

For the record of the Spicers in England taken from "The Bruces and Cumyns" we are indebted to Mr. William Spicer of Providence, Rhode Island, who kindly sent a printed pamphlet, which has been verified from the copy of the book found at the New England Historical Society Rooms. We thank Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Miss Sarah Spicer, Mr. A. B. Roberts, Mr. M. Arlington Spicer and Mrs. H. A. Baldwin for their contributions towards English research.

To which coat of arms we are entitled, if any, we are not able to state. but have chosen for our frontispiece the one which pleased us most because of the motto.

THE SPICER GENEALOGY

THE SPICERS IN ENGLAND.

The following record of the Spicers in England is from a volume entitled "The Bruces and the Cumyns," published in Edinburgh and London, 1870, a copy of which is in possession of Mr. F. M. Ballou, of Providence, R. I.:

The above are the Ancient Spicer Family Arms, as they appear in a window of old painted glass in the Exeter Town Hall.

"Some account of the ancient family of the Spicers, taken from an original manuscript extracted from a chorographical description of the County of Devon, written by Tristram Risdon, Gent., of Winscot, Devon, A.D. 1714. [Page 650, Appendix U.]

"Three brothers of this name (Spicer), who were of an honourable family in Normandy, came over as gentlemen volunteers with William the Conqueror. The first settled in Devonshire, the second in Warwickshire, and the third in Kent. The two former still remain in the said counties. Of the state of which family an abstract is here given from an original MS. written in the thirty-sixth year of Queen Elizabeth's reign (1594), which gives an account of them, from their first being officers and magistrates of the honourable City of Exeter, beginning with the first year of King Edward I, and continued down in the same family to the seventh of Queen Anne, which, to the present year, 1714, is 441 years, of which time there have been twelve mayors of the City of Exeter, of this name, and the particular time of each is hereafter mentioned. 'Tis observable that few families can show such a precedent of the office of mayor of so ancient and honourable a city, continuing for so long a course of years, their estate being also equivalent to their antiquity — they having also bestowed a considerable one on the chamber of Exeter, to uphold its grandeur. Arms, Partie per pale, Mars et Saturn; in bende, three turrets of the sonne cotyzed, and a border grayley ermyn."

"Abstracts from the manuscript of 1594, as given by Tristram Ridsen, A.D. 1714. — "In the reign of King Edward III, John Spicer was sundry times Mayor of the City of Exeter, and in the third year of his mayoralty, being the thirty-first of the said King's reign, Anno 1357, he received private letters from the King, and also a commission under the great seal of England, dated the 25th of March, and directed thus: 'To our loving, the Mayor of our honourable City of Exeter, for three ships, to be provided and sent unto him, and to be well and thoroughly appointed, to the wars and for the defense of the realm against the French King, who had then a great fleet and navy on the seas of men of war, which thing the Mayor with all celerity performed; and in the year then following, he also being Mayor, the Prince, called the Black Prince, came from out of France, and brought with him prisoner, King John of France, whom he had taken a little while before at Poitiers. He landed at Plymouth, and came to this city, whom the Mayor received, and the King, his prisoner, with all the honour he could; and entertained them most bountifully, and after the best manner he might. which the Prince did not only thankfully receive, but he made also his father acquainted with the same, who sendest back his commendations unto the said Mayor."

"The Arms of the family you will find recorded in a very ancient Roll in the office of the Heraultes (if it be not lost), of a visitation taken by the Herault in the time of King Edward III, which I have seen. For, about twenty-nine or thirty years ago, Mr. Wm. Hervey, then claremicux and king-at-arms, made his visitation in this city, and among other things he showed me this Roll, and the said Arms. In the same manner I have likewise seen them in the collections of various gentlemen, who have a great delight to collect and to keep a book of all gentlemen's Arms."

"The family of the Spicers, in the times of Edward I, II, and III, were principal officers and magistrates of this city, and were then considered for their many and gentlemanlike qualities and vertues; for in those days such men, for their wisdom and not for their wealth, were magistrates and governors of this city, and in all places of trust."

KENT.

The Spicers have for many years been located in Kent, where in the earlier days they were farmers. The first family is thought to have located at Lodendon. There were three if not more branches; Lodendon & Staplehurst, Staplehurst & Marden, Smar-

STEPHEN SPICER.

Sometime prior to March 14, 1663, Stephen Spicer came from Topsham, Devonshire, England, and settled in Barbados. He was evidently a merchant. He died June 10, 1665, and left no direct heirs. (See Appendix for his will). Ralph Hooker of Barbados in 1663 mentions him in his will. (Gen. and Hist. Register, Vol. 16, p. 329; Vol. 38, p. 323).

PETER SPICER.

Peter Spicer is found in New London, Connecticut, in 1666.

ARTHUR SPICER.

In 1688 Arthur Spicer was a member of the House of Burgesses for Rappahannock County, Virginia, and also March 2, 1692-3 ("Eng. Calendar of State Paper's Col.") (Journal).

His name appears frequently in the county records as a lawyer.

He had the following land grants: (Northern Neck Grants). Granted March 22, 1691-2, to Mr. Arthur Spicer, 1174 acres in Rappahannock County on the north neck of the river, 495 acres, part thereof, formerly granted to Job Weise, Feb. 20, 1662. The residue, 679 acres, was contained in a patent formerly granted to John Payne, June 2, 1673, beginning at the "Miles End of other dividends of land belonging to John Payne"; some of the boundaries named are "Island Swamp," an "Old Field," "Charles his beaver dam," & crossing all the swamps tract standing by Rappahannock Road Side.

A grant of land was made to him of 2250 acres in the freshes of Rappahannock in Rappahannock County on the south side of the river, near about two miles up a creek called Powmans End, the boundary line crossing over several paths that go to Nanyatico, adjoining the land of William White & Mr. Robert Payne, near the main run of Portesbaco Creek; said land was formerly patented by Alexander Fleming, but was deserted by him (his patent dated April 17, 1667), and is now granted April 29, 1693, to Arthur Spicer for the importation of 55 persons into the colony. (Rappahannock County now comprises Richmond and Essex counties.)

His will, dated Sept. 18, 1669, proved in Richmond County, April 3, 1700, bequeaths to son John Spicer, to Lidia, eldest daughter, and Elizabeth, youngest daughter of brother John Spicer, deceased, of London, and Francis Robinson (wife of William Robinson of Richmond County), daughter of Samuel Bloomfield. He directs that his son John be sent to England to be educated, preferably at the Charter House, London. Inventory included considerable number of books in Greek and Latin, "Macbeth," Bunyan's "Holy War," "Religious History of the World," 12 pieces of silver plate, 12 silver spoons, etc.

CHILD.

2. JOHN² SPICER (Arthur¹) was probably born in Virginia; he died prior to June 4, 1737, on which date Mary Spicer was summoned to attend the orphan's court and settle the estate of John Spicer, gentleman, deceased. He was one of the first justices of King George County, in 1721.

FAMILY TRADITIONS OF EARLY AMERICAN SPICERS AND THEIR NATIONALITY.

One correspondent has stated that it was said two brothers and a cousin came to America; two settled in New York and one in Ohio.

Another writes three brothers came; one settled in Canada, one in New England, and the other in the South.

Some say that Peter Spicer came from Wales, also Thomas Spicer of Long Island. Others, the majority, give them English ancestry, and one says that his Spicer ancestors came from Ireland.

Research into the family history has shown that it is not always possible to accept family tradition as authentic history.

FIRST GENERATION.

THE DESCENDANTS OF PETER SPICER OF NEW LONDON, CONNECTICUT.

In the early colonial days the township of New London embraced a large area both east and west of the Thames River, so that prior to 1705 the settlers east of the river are listed as inhabitants of New London; during that year a separation was made and that territory, measuring fourteen miles north and south and an average of over six miles east and west, became the town of Groton; its boundaries being the Preston or town of Norwich line on the north, the Mystic River and its Lantern Hill tributaries, which separated it from the town of Stonington, on the east, Fishers Island on the south, and the Thames River on the west. In 1836 the town of Groton was divided and the larger portion, including all the North Parish, was called the town of Ledyard. This tract of land is mostly fertile and quite picturesque, being comprised of hills and valleys and having several small water-courses. Part of the peaceful village of Poquetanuck now lies on its northern border, the remainder being within the limits of Preston. About two miles south of this village is located the first tract of land granted to Peter Spicer. It is not known when this grant was

The Probate Records of New London, Connecticut, furnish additional data. "Aug. 10, 1714. Mary Spicer widow and relict of Peter Spicer late of New London deceased and administratrix of his Estate appeared at this Court and made an addition to the inventory of the said Estate of a lott of land in the plantation given the Volunteers and the other inventoried Estate having been already distributed this Court distributes the said lott as followeth viz: one third part thereof to the widow during her natural life, to the Eldest son a double portion thereof and to the other nine children & ye representatives of one that is deceased equal portions.

"Sept. 13, 1715 Mary Spicer widow of Peter Spicer late of New London deceased having put the Estate into the hands of her eldest son Edward to pay his brothers and sisters as they come of age said Edward has this day presented in Court Receipts under the hands of his s'd brothers and sisters for their portion to full satisfaction the Court does thereupon order a quietus off to the s'd administrator."

The marriage of Peter Spicer and Mary, daughter of Peter and Mary (—)Busecot, is recorded in Warwick, Rhode Island, as follows: "Peter Spicer of Mohegan or now Norridge in the Collony of Conticott and Mary Busecot of the town of Warwick in ye Collony of Rhode Island were married Dec. 15, 1670." Eleven children were born to them, whose names are recorded in a Bible formerly owned by Abel^s Spicer. The birth dates were not given and can only be conjectured from the dates of marriages known.

SECOND GENERATION.

2. EDWARD² SPICER (Peter¹) was born probably about 1674 in New London, Connecticut. His date of death is not known, but his name ceases to appear on record after 1731. He married his cousin Katherine, daughter of Hugh and Abigail (Busecot) Stone. She was born Aug. 22, 1674. He is mentioned in Groton Town Records as a freeman and landholder in 1708; in 1711 he was

Samuel Whipple, Joshua Bill, Nicholas Street, Nehemiah Smith, committee.

He deeded in 1719 his homestead farm of twenty acres to his son John. (See Appendix.) Dec. 10, 1723, he sells to John Spicer for three pounds and five shillings, four acres more or less, and Jan. 12, 1724-5, for the sum of five pounds sells him part of his woodlot; witnesses, Jacob Park Jr., Richard Christopher, Jr. May 13, 1727, he sold to Isaac Geer for nine pounds and ten shillings his "second and all after division in the common or undivided land in Groton, 'excepting my right in the land that was laid out to the Pequot Indians to improve on the east side of the road that goes from the head of Mystic to Norwich.'" Witnesses, Jonathan Wickwere and Nathaniel Brown. Jan. 15, 1729, for fifteen pounds he sold to son John Spicer, husbandman, from ten to twelve acres; witnesses, Henry Pelton and Peter Tift.

Feb. 5, 1730-1, for five pounds he sold to Humphrey Avery all "my Right and Title in or Challenge unto the sequestered corner or Indian land at Mashantucksitt to the East or Northeast of the road that leads from the head of Mystick to Poquetannuck Cove or Norwich that is to say to all that sequestered corner or undivided land which the Indians improve or pretend to improve in township of Groton aforesaid;" witnesses, James Morgan and Ann Morgan. In the deed he is styled farmer and husbandman. He had seven children recorded in Groton.

THIRD GENERATION.

8. JOHN³ SPICER (Edward², Peter¹) was born Jan. 1, 1698, in New London, Connecticut. He died, Aug. 28, 1753, in North Groton, on the same farm on which he was born. He married first, Oct. 22, 1720, in Groton, Connecticut, Mary, a daughter of Robert and Martha (Tyler) Geer. She was born May 14, 1701, in North Groton, Connecticut. Her date of death has not been ascertained, but she was living in 1744. He married second, date of marriage not ascertained, Patience ———. (It was probably his widow, Patience Spicer, who died in North Groton, May, 1788. aged 80 years.)

It is possible that his father was not in good health in 1719, for he deeded that year the homestead farm to his son John, subject to life lease of himself and wife. (See Appendix.) Jan. 24, 1721-2, a woodlot was laid out to him by the town. He purchased four acres of land from his father for three pounds five shillings, Dec. 10, 1723, and Jan. 12, 1724, five acres of his father's woodlot, for five pounds. Sept. 2, 1727, he exchanged fourteen acres for seven acres with Isaac Geer, "beginning at a mear stone the North-west corner of John Spicer's twenty acre lot thence Westerly on John Spicer's land ninety rods to a white oak tree which stands in the head of a swamp thence Southwesterly on the highway forty four rods to a white oak tree; thence abutting Easterly partly on Isaac Geer's Land and partly on the common ninety rods to the first bound mark." The seven acres "beginning at a white oak tree the Southwest corner of Edward Spicer, his land, and is bounded Northerly with ye said Spicer his land, to a mear stone and thence running Southerly to a craked rock near a great rock & so running to the bounds first mentioned"; witnesses, James Morgan and Sarah Park ^{her} X. Jan. 15, 1729-30, he obtained from his father ^{mark} for fifteen pounds ten or twelve acres "beginning at a mear stone near a brook, running Westerly twenty eight rods to a flat rock with stones on it and thence Southerly five rods to a mear stone and from thence Easterly to a white oak tree, thence to first bound, and is encompassed around with John Spicer's own land"; witnesses, Henry Pelton and Peter Tift. Feb. 11, 1730-1, he had laid out to him by the town his second division of undivided land, which he sold April 1, 1734, to Christopher Avery for ten pounds. He married second, 1829, in Akron, Ohio, his sister-in-law, Hannah (Allyn) Williams. She died March, 1856, in Akron, Ohio. He learned the carpenter's trade of his brother John. He was contractor and builder in Groton until 1810, when he and his cousin, Amos Spicer, went on horseback to Ohio and purchased a tract of three hundred acres of land on the Western Reserve in Portage County, now Summit County. They then returned home. In the early spring of 1811 he, Capt. Youngs Morgan, and others, started West with their families in ox teams. They lived in their wagons; cooked by the roadside, adding to their provisions by picking berries and killing game. After six months of hard travel they reached their destination. He built a log cabin, in which they lived eight years, in a wilderness among the Indians and wild beasts, enduring the hardships of pioneer life. About fifty-five years ago there was printed in "The Hartford Times" a little story relative to this particular pioneer which may be of interest to his descendants.

"Miner Spicer and his wife Cynthia lived alone in a little log cabin in the wilds of New York. There was no highway near their dwelling, but a bridle path by their door led through the almost unbroken forest. One night they were aroused by the sound of a horse's footsteps stopping at their door. Mr. Spicer went to the door and in the dim light saw a solitary Indian on horseback who by sounds and gestures made it understood that he wished shelter for the night. The Indian was completely armed, and carried upon his horse the carcass of a deer. Mr. Spicer, not wishing to offend a self-invited but unwelcome guest, allowed the Indian to dismount, fasten his horse for the night, and enter the cabin. The venison was carried into the house and by signs the Indian made Mrs. Spicer understand that he was hungry and wished some of the meat prepared for his supper. In much trepidation of spirit the venison was cooked and placed on the table with other food. The Indian ate but little, and to the anxious observers appeared to be displeased. Nothing, however, was said, and the silent guest soon rolled himself in his blanket, lay down on the rude hearthstone before the fire, and to all appearances was soon wrapped in deer ^{5/10} ~~5/10~~ ^{10/10} ~~10/10~~. Mr. and Mrs. Spicer uneasily retired to their sleeping room, which adjoined the room where their swarthy guest was ~~reposing~~ ^{reposing}. Through a wide aperture in the wall they could see the recumbent figure of the Indian, and anxious and ~~less~~ ^{less} their eyes watched for any movement. Sometime during the night they discovered that the figure was alert and moving with exceeding caution. The Indian sat upright, glanced quickly toward the bedroom door, reached carefully for his long and murderous-looking hunting knife which he had been careful to place within reach ere he lay down by the fire, ran his finger lightly along the edge to test its sharpness, softly whetted the weapon, and tested it again, gave a low grunt of satisfaction, still keeping a close watch of the door of the adjoining room. Mr. Spicer fully believing that his life and that of his wife was in danger, grasped firmly his loaded gun, which stood near his bedside, and prepared to take deadly aim and shoot his treacherous guest as he crossed the threshold. The Indian stealthily arose from the hearth, grasped his long sharp knife and glided swiftly and noiselessly across the floor toward the bedroom door. It was a supreme moment. Mr. Spicer held the gun with his finger on the trigger. Mrs. Spicer, a little behind her husband, watched with fascinated eyes, but with a wildly beating heart, the swift approach of the desperate red man. On he came with, if possible, a more wary tread, paused an instant to listen at the door, then glided past, crossed over to a corner of the living room where the carcass of the deer had been placed, cut a generous slice of the meat, carried it cautiously to the fireplace, raked open the coals, laid it thereon, noiselessly attended its cooking, and in due time feasted upon it with evident relish, wrapped again his blanket about him, covered the coals, and silently laid down in quiet slumber. Early in the morning he quietly stole away, leaving a generous portion of the venison for his pale-faced entertainers."

Mr. Spicer received a commission as Major in the War of 1812, from the Governor of Ohio, and was in the engagement at the time of Perry's victory on Lake Erie. In 1819 he built a model New England house, where he lived and saw the wilderness grow into the manufacturing city of Akron, with forty thousand inhabitants. Bucktel College stood near the center of his homestead farm on land he gave the town for a public cemetery. The house in which he lived and died is situated on the southwest corner of Spicer and Carroll streets. Fourteen years after his death the bodies interred in the Spicer cemetery were removed to Glendale cemetery preparatory to erecting Bucktel College on the site of the former. The lid of the metallic burial case in which his body was inclosed was removed from over the face, which was found to be in a perfect state of preservation, the features both in form and color being as at the time of his decease.

He was for sixteen years Justice of the Peace.

He was a cabinet maker, carpenter, and farmer. For some years he made coffins, and is said to have been the first to engage in this business in southern New London County; later there was an establishment in the city of New London. When the homestead farm was divided between him and his brother Cyrus he had the westerly portion. He served in the War of the Revolution as corporal, in 1775, in Capt. Abel Spicer's company, Col. S. H. Parson's regiment. He took part in the battle of Bunker Hill and the siege of Boston. In 1776 he served as sergeant in Colonel Smith's regiment, Capt. 154. CAPT. AMOS⁵ SPICER (Oliver⁴, John³, Edward², Peter¹) was born Feb. 20, 1762, in North Groton, Connecticut. He died Sept. 6, 1830, near Akron, Ohio.

He married Eunice ——. She died Oct. 14, 1822, near Akron, Ohio. From the "Land Records" of Groton it is learned that Nov. 3, 1802, he leased land from Susannah Charles and her son, Josiah Charles, for a term of four years. April 9, 1807, he bought all his brother Oliver's right and title to his father's estate; witnesses, Martha Spicer and Amos Geer. In 1808 he was surveyor of highways; in 1810 selectman. April 6, 1811, he sold to Asa Bellows for $2045, four lots of land together with all his rights and property in and to the dwelling house and other buildings late his "Honored father's Capt. Oliver Spicer late of Groton dec'd." The first lot "beginning at the North-east corner bound of Daniel Thomas' land." The second lot was an orchard "beginning at the road Southeast of the dwelling house." The third lot "beginning at a maple tree a corner of Thos. Halsey's land, . . . containing about four acres." The fourth lot was a certain tract of land known as the "Tyler and Robins Lot," about thirty-five acres; "bounded Westerly on the Preston Road so called, Southerly on land of Peter Williams, Easterly on lands of Jonas Latham and Northerly on lands of same . . . and it is further understood that I by these presents transfer and make over to said Bellows all my Rights and Privileges given to me as an Heir of my Father's Estate mentioned in the distribution as passing and repassing in the lane from the road to the house from thence to the barn and other Lanes and avenues about the house and barn, and in the spaceway around the house, shop and cornhouse together with the doorways and entry ways stair ways and avenues within the house so far as may be necessary or convenient for due of his Right or Property there about"; witnesses, Moses Kimball and Martha Spicer. July 8, 1811, he gave Capt. Phillip Gray power of attorney to act for him in Groton. March 31, 1817, he, then of Portage County, Ohio, sold a debt of thirty dollars to Thomas Bellows; witnesses, Jared and Polly Gallup. April 3, 1817, he sold land to Thomas Bellows for five hundred and forty-four dollars. During the year 1810 he made a trip on horseback to Ohio and bought land on the Western Reserve in Portage County, now Summit County. He returned home, and in 1811, in company with his cousin, Miner Spicer, and others traveled west with his family in ox carts. In the War of 1812 he was appointed captain in Major Miner Spicer's regiment, and was in the engagement on Lake Erie at the time of Perry's victory. He probably returned to Connecticut after his mother's death, as we find him there in 1817 selling land; after that date his name ceases to appear on record. Unfortunately the exact record of his family has not been ascertained. What data are given have been obtained from his mother's will and from recollections of descendants and friends. The census of 1790 makes him head of a family of four females.

✓ 156. CAPT. OLIVER⁵ SPICER (Oliver⁴, John³, Edward², Peter¹) was born Nov. 20, 1766, in North Groton, Connecticut. He died Nov. 22, 1839, in Preston, Connecticut. He married, Dec. 31, 1789, in Preston, Connecticut, Eunice, daughter of Deacon Joseph and Lucy (Utley) Tyler. She was born Sept. 20, 1768, in Preston. She died Feb. 16, 1849, in Preston. He sold his share in his father's estate to his brother Amos, and located in Preston City. He was a carpenter and farmer. It is told of him that as a boy he was remarkable for courage, endurance, ingenuity, and good humor, and the following anecdotes have been remembered which may possibly interest his descendants and others.

One evening he ingeniously fastened some turkey wings to his shoulders and mounted the gable of the barn to show his boyish companions how to fly. He slipped and fell to the ground, badly bruising himself and cutting his face, but he sprang up with a joke, and although he must have suffered greatly he kept about and did his daily duties as if nothing had happened. At another time he promised to show the boys how to sweep a chimney. A new house was being erected in the neighborhood and was nearly completed. The boys selected Fast Day, when no work was being done, for the exploit. He mounted the top of the chimney, sang a song which ended with the words "Sweep, oh sweep," and plunged down into the chimney. The boys crept into the house and looked to see him emerge from the fireplace; but he remained invisible. A faint voice was heard to say, "Boys I'm stuck." In vain his friends tried to aid him. He could move in no direction. The builders of the house were called to the relief of the prisoner. The huge jamb was pried off and Oliver was released, rather the worse for his escapade, but still joyous. In manhood he met with a serious accident in the shipyard in New London. He was struck on the head by a heavy piece of timber which the ship carpenters were swinging into place. He was taken up lifeless, as was supposed, but after a time he was found to be living, and his injuries received careful dressing. His jaw was badly fractured. and after being bandaged he was told not to attempt to speak lest his bones should be displaced. It was not expected that he would survive his injuries. Two friends went to inquire after the wounded man. They were invited to enter the sick room, which they did with very solemn faces. He hailed them with a joke and began to talk, notwithstanding they besought him to be silent. He would not allow them to retire and continued to converse, occasionally putting his hand to his face and, with a grimace, slipping the displaced bones into position. They were obliged to laugh in spite of themselves, and when they were permitted to withdraw from the room one of them remarked, "Mr. Spicer will live." And he did for many years.

He received his commission as captain during the War of 1812. He was a member of the First Congregational Church in Preston City, and an influential and much esteemed citizen of the town. It is to be regretted that he left no sons to perpetuate in his line the Spicer name. His daughters were honored women in the towns in which they lived, and their children highly respected and influential.
