WOLCOTT, WALECOTT, or WOOLCOT, GEORGE, Windsor 1610, s. of the first Henry, brot. by his f. rem. a. 1650 to Wethersfield, adm. freem. 1657, but d. at W. 1662, or, as is said, 12 Feb. 1664, having by w. Eliz. had Eliz. b. 1651; George, 1653; John, 1656; and Mercy, 1659. Very slight acco. is seen of any of this fam. Perhaps George and John may be discern. sometimes at Wethersfield. Mary was infirm, and under guardians; and Eliz. m. 1686, Gabriel Cornish. *HENRY, Dorchester 1639, was b. a. 1578, in the S. part of Somerset sh. at or near Wellington, not far from the edge of Devonsh. and thus, prob. gain. sympathy with the puritans of the W. who project. the voyage of the Mary and John in Mar. of that yr. He was honor. with a commiss. from the crown, as a justice bef. leave. home, as tradit. tells, and had good landed est. as perhaps may be infer. from a very valua. letter of his br. John, 15 Apr. 1639, print. in General Reg. II. 373. He desir. adm. as freem. 19 Oct. 1630, and was sw. 1 Apr. 1634. His w. Eliz. He is the first officer nam. in the rec. of Conn. p. 1, chos. 26 Apr. 1636, constable, and in Apr. 1643 Assist. till his d. was hugely engag. in business, and d. 30 May 1655. No will is preserv. His wid. d. 7 or 17 July foll. aged 73. Ann m. Matthew Griswold; and Mary m. 21 June 1646, Job Drake. Of Christopher notice is never seen, but that he d. 7 Sept. 1662. *HENRY, Windsor, eldest s. of the preced. b. in Eng. at Tolland near Wixelcombe, Co. Somerset, m. 8 Nov. 1640, Sarah, d. of that Thomas Newberry or Kneburey, wh. was engag. in the migrat. from Dorchester, but prevent. by d. had Henry, b. 6, bapt. 8 Jan. 1643; John, b. 28 Feb. 1646; Samuel, 8 Oct. 1647, prob. d. young; Sarah, 5 July 1649; Mary, 8 Dec. 1651; Hannah, 8 Mar. 1654; Samuel, 16 Apr. 1656; and Josiah, 21 July 1659; was rep. 1655, 6, and 61, Assist. 1662, bef. the com. of the royal chart. of that yr. in wh. Gov. Winthrop had caus. the insert. of his name, and was contin. in the office of Assist. as far as our publish. rec. runs, was of the coun. of war in 1675-6, and d. 12 July 1680. Sarah m. as fam. tradit. tells, Walter Price of Salem; but it should say his s. John; Mary m. James Russell of Charlestown; and Hannah d. at 29 yrs. for wh. tradit. found no h. His wid. d. 16 June 1681. The will of Henry, 21 Sept. 1670, provides for w. and the seven ch. to the ds. all then unma. £250. ea. to Henry, housing and hl. at Tolland Mill, to John, other tenement in Tolland, and notices his est. at Wellington. Other est. he had of large extent on our side of the water in Windsor and Wethersfield; and he was very dilig. in the cultivation. Great sales of fruit-trees thro. much of the region betw. Fairfield on the Sound and Springfield on the bank of the Conn. are spoken of; and Joselyn, wh. went home in the same ship when W. visit. his native hl. in 1671, relates, that W. inform. him that he made 500 hog-heads of cider from his orchard in a yr. What allowance for Joselyn's ciphers should be made may be guessed from his enumeration of the dwelling-houses in Boston, on his earlier visit, wh. Drake, in Hist. 241, fails to explain. HENRY, Windsor, eldest s. of the preced. m. 12 Oct. 1664, Abiah, youngest d. of Edward Goffe of Cambridge, whose wid. had two yrs. bef. m. John Witchfield of W. had Eliz. b. 27 Aug. 1665; Henry, 13 Apr. 1667, d. soon; Abiah, 1 May 1669; Sarah, 27 Mar. 1671, d. soon; Henry, again, 30 Jan. 1673, wh. d. at 24 yrs.; Sarah, again, 16 Apr. 1676; and Samuel, 26 Mar. 1679; was freem. 1667, and d. 15 Feb. 1710. His wid. whose name is so pervert. in General Reg. I. 252, and again V. 463, d. 18 June 1717, in her 72d yr. Neither Henry, nor Samuel, wh. d. 1712, had issue, and the male line of this branch ceased.

family in the old Windsor Church Record, we find: Abigail Moore Feb. 14, 1639. Then follows: Mindwell, dau. of John Moore, b. 10 July 1643. The original looks as if Abigail was interlined after Mindwell had been written. The record says nothing about marriage or wife and the Abigail here recorded was evidently the first child, b. 14 Feb. 1639-40. She was the first child born in Windsor.

d. May 30, 1655, aged 77.

By the decease of his elder brother, Christopher, in 1639, he inherited the family estate including the manor house Giddon Hall, but this occurred after his removal to America. The earlier part of his life was spent in the ordinary pursuits of a country gentleman, but becoming converted to Puritanism, he, like hundreds of others, sought refuge in America. Although past 52 years of age at the time and with a family of young children, he joined the party of Maverick and Warham,<sup>1</sup> which emigrated in 1639. It is said he had visited New England two years earlier and returned for his family. He took with him his wife and three sons, leaving behind two daughters and the youngest son, aged 5. On October 19th of this same year, his name appears in a list of those desiring to be made Freemen of Boston and he was sworn May 14, 1634. May 14, 1634, the General Court of Massachusetts granted him and two others liberty "to look out for themselves," etc. He first settled at Dorchester, but in 1636 left that place with Warham's party to found Windsor. In February, 1637-8, he was appointed Collector of the Rates for Windsor and April 11, 1639, he was one of the so-called Committee of the General Court. At the Court of Election held April 13, 1643, he became a magistrate or Assistant, to which office he was annually chosen until his death. After the pastor, he was the most important citizen of Windsor. He is one of the twelve whom Trumbull calls the civil and religious Fathers of Connecticut. It has been said that he inherited a considerable estate in England, but these accounts have doubtless been exaggerated. At his death, his property was inventoried at £764-8-10. In the ancient "Family Chronologic," it is recorded of him and his wife, "These both dyed in hope and by buried under one Tomb in Windsor." (N. E. Reg., 9, p. 338; Ibid., 5, pp. 463-4; Stiles' Ancient Windsor, 2, p. 720; N. E. Reg., 1, p. 251; Address by the Rev. Peter Clark Wolcott, Aug. 1911, before the Society of the Descendants of Henry Wolcott.)

He was one of the richest men among the colonists and a merchant; he had an excellent education and was engaged in legal study in London during several terms of the Court of Chancery. (Chancery Proceedings, series 2, 342-63.) In 1629, he occupied an estate called "Coweleyes" in Marshwood, co. Dorset. He turned Puritan when a young man and sailed for New England in April, 1634. His first appearance on the records of New England is as a grantee of lands in Dorchester, Mass., Sept. 1, 1634; he subsequently received several other large grants of land there. His name invariably appears on the records with the prefix "Mr." for he was of the highest social standing. He joined the church in Dorchester soon after his arrival and on Sept. 2, 1634, was admitted a Freeman of Mass., and immediately became prominent in public affairs, being chosen Selectman Oct. 28, 1634, when it was "agreed that their shall be Tenn men chosen to order all the affayres of the Plantation, to continue for one yeare & to meete monthly according to the order Oct. 8, 1633." On Mar. 4, 1634-5 and May 6, 1635, he was Deputy for Dorchester to the General Court. On May 6, he was "chosen overseer of the worke att Castle Island, in the roome of Roger Ludlowe, Esq." etc. At the session of July 8, he was appointed one of a committee of two "to sett out the bounds betwixe Wessagusset & Barecove." He was an active leader in the project for the settling of Windsor but died before its accomplishment; he had, however, visited the site of the new town and his widow and children went there after his death. He had married a second wife named Jane. After his death, this wife, Jane (by whom he had Rebecca, who m. Rev. John Russell as his second wife; Hannah, who m. Rev. Thomas Hamford, and a dau. b. about 1635, who d. y.), became the wife of Rev. John Warham.<sup>2</sup>

WOLCOTT. Henry Wolcott was the first of the Wolcott family who settled in New England. He owned considerable landed property in his native country, which he held in capite, part of which he sold about the time he left England; the rest of the estate was sold at sundry times by himself and his descendants; the last remains were sold since the Declaration of Independence, by Henry Allen, Esq. of Windsor, who claimed it by female descent. From circumstances it seems probable that the family are of Saxon origin. Mr. Wolcott to avoid the ecclesiastical hierarchy of the English Church, was induced to come into this country. He first settled at Dorchester where he continued till 1636, when he came with the first settlers to the town of Windsor, and with four other gentlemen, namely, Mr. Ludlow, Mr. Newberry, Mr. Stoughton and Major Mason, undertook the settlement of that town, to which they gave the name of Dorchester. The towns of Hartford and Wethersfield were settled the same year, though the town which is now called Windsor was, upon the first emigration, by far the most considerable. Previous to this settlement on Connecticut River, one had been made at Springfield, under the patronage of Mr. Pynchon; and an earlier settlement, with considerable commercial views, had been made at Saybrook by Mr. Fenwick, agent to Lords Saye and Sele, and Brooke. Those who settled on Connecticut River in 1636, were united with the people of Massachusetts in religious and civil polity, and seem to have been much under their influence till 1639, when they adopted a civil constitution for themselves, and Mr. Ludlow was chosen their first Deputy Governor, and Mr. Wolcott a Magistrate, then called an Assistant, to which office he was annually chosen until his death in 1655. His eldest son, Henry was one of the Patentees whose name was inserted in the Charter, granted by Charles II. (N. E. Reg., 1, p. 254; Ibid., 9, p. 328; Ibid., 5, pp. 463-4; Sill's Ancient Windsor, 2, p. 799.)

Letter of Mrs. Elizabeth Appleton, wife of Hon. John Appleton of Ipswich, Mass., grandson of Mr. Samuel Appleton.

"Dear Peggy,

My love and affections urge and oblige me to write to you, tho' ever so poorly, to wish you and y<sup>e</sup> consort a blessing in the new state of life you are entered into, that you may have the presence of a good God always with you, acknowledge him in all y<sup>e</sup> ways and he will direct y<sup>e</sup> steps.

I hear y<sup>e</sup> have got a good Husband and plenty of the good things of this life, remember y<sup>e</sup> father's copy (set not your heart upon them), I am sorry I did not send my little silver can to remember me, by y<sup>e</sup> uncle Appleton but I hope to have an opportunity.

I hope you have got the chairs I lent of dear mother and some other good things she had and her work the coat of armes. Give my parentall love and regards to y<sup>e</sup> dear spouse. I hope he will be a kind husband to you my dear child, and that you may prove a virtuous wife to him, that living in a way of duty y<sup>e</sup> may expect a blessing.

Dear child God has given you a good understanding I hope He will give you

At the same time there was built and presented to the pastor, the Reverend John Warham, a corn mill, which is supposed to have been the first grist mill built in Connecticut. For many years it served all the settlements in the river valley, as far south as Middletown.

All over America today live the descendants of the fathers and mothers of the "Mary and John." Their sons and daughters have written their names on the pages of American History. They have filled the pulpits of famous churches; they have sat on judges' benches, and in the seats of Congress; they have occupied Governors' Mansions, and even the White House. Some fought at Lexington, and wintered with Washington at Valley Forge. They joined in the trek to the West, and one followed Brigham Young into Utah. One marched with Sherman as he burned and pillaged his way through Georgia, and perhaps one fought on the other side with Lee. One is called the "Hero of Manila Bay," and one was hanged! They learned strange names like Saint-Michel, Chateau-Thierry, the Argonne Forest and Sedan. Perhaps one lies in Flanders Field.

And even as this manuscript is being written, our boys are going again into strange lands: to Iceland, to Africa, and to Australia! One of our own correspondents wrote from Schofield Barracks in Hawaii.

An effort has been made to show through the ancestry of people living today, or through famous men of history, how this little group lived together, married and intermarried, even beyond the third and fourth generations. The names of descendants of the men and women who came to America on the "Mary and John" are found in every state of the Union.

THE PASSENGERS

REVEREND JOHN MAVERICK was a native of Devon, son of Peter and Dorothy (Tueke) Maverick. He was baptized Dec. 28, 1578, at Awlescombe, and married at Ilington, Devon, Oct. 28, 1600, Mary Gye, who was living with her son Samuel Oct. 9, 1668. Reverend Maverick matriculated at Exeter College, Oxford; took holy orders by 1603, and later became a Puritan. He was made a freeman with the first group at Dorchester, May 18, 1631, and had expected to remove to Connecticut, but died at Dorchester, Feb. 3, 1636, aged about sixty years. Governor Winthrop in his "Journal" makes several references to Reverend Maverick and also to his son Samuel, who was in America as early as 1623, and was an early settler at Noddle's Island. Winthrop says of Rev. Maverick: "He was a man of very humble spirit, and faithful in furthering the work of the Lord."

Charles Edward Banks says that when Reverend Maverick and his wife came to America in the "Mary and John," they brought with them "their children, Elias, Mary, Moses, Aaron, Abigail, Antipas, and Margaret."

The New England Historical and Genealogical Register in the issue of 1942, states that Elias was at Chelsea, Mass., in 1630, where he had his home near his brother Samuel. Aaron was alive in 1622, but is believed to have died young. Moses was given land at Dorchester in 1633, but moved to Salem by 1634. There also appears to have been a son John, and Margaret is not mentioned.

Samuel Maverick settled first at Winnesimmet, now Chelsea, where in 1630 he entertained Governor Winthrop. In 1633, he and his wife cared for the Indians dying of smallpox, burying as many as thirty a day. In 1634 he moved to Noddle's Island, which had been granted to him. It is an interesting fact that a line of descendants of Reverend Maverick went to the West Indies and later settled in Texas. A Samuel Maverick in the last century who did not make a practice of branding his cattle is said to have been the originator of the word "maverick" as applied to unbranded cattle.

Aaron, which leads one to believe that Aaron was brother of Henry, the father, rather than the son.

Henry Way, who was referred to as Mister, carried on a fishing business at Dorchester. His boat saved three shipwrecked men off the coast July 26, 1631; two other boats of his were attacked by Indians in 1632, five men being killed and two drowned. A son of Henry Way is said to have drowned in the winter passage of the Ship "Lion," chartered by the Government to go to Bristol, England, for food for the colonists in 1631.

Richard Way was a cooper by trade, a Lieutenant of the Dorchester Company, freeman in 1657, and moved to Boston. It is said that although he had four wives, he died without descendants.

Thus the known children of Henry Way are as follows:

1. Samuel.
2. Henry.
3. Richard, 1624-1697; m. Esther, dau. of Thomas Jones.
4. Elizabeth.

ROGER WILLIAMS was one of the first group to be made freemen, Oct. 19, 1630. He went to Windsor about 1635; was a juror in 1642, 1643, and 1644; a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1647. His first wife, Frances, died in 1645. After her death, he returned to Dorchester, and married about 1649 Lydia Bates, the daughter of James Bates. This Roger Williams is not to be confused with Roger Williams, founder of Rhode Island.

Children: First Wife:

1. Nathaniel, bapt. Feb. 6, 1640.

Second Wife:

2. Ebenezer, b. Jan. 1649/50.
3. Elizabeth, b. 1650.

HENRY WOLCOTT, 1678-1655, inherited a comfortable estate from his father in Tolland, co. Somerset, where the family had been living as early as 1525. They were of the Gentleman class. His father, John Wolcott, in his will dated 1623, mentions three sons, Christopher, Henry and John. Up to the time that Henry Wolcott was past 52 years of age, he lived the life of a country gentleman. He had however identified himself with the Puritan Party in the religious and political life in England, and came to America to obtain freedom from oppression. He married, January 31, 1606, Elizabeth Saunders, 1584-July 5, 1655, the daughter of Thomas Saunders. His wife and three sons came with him, leaving the two daughters and the younger son in England. It would appear that Henry, George and Christopher were the sons who came with their father. John is said to have died in England, and we have no record that he ever came to New England. Anna is said to have come between 1631 and 1641, probably with Mary and Simon.

The first wife of Simon Wolcott, Joanna Cook, died during the first year of her marriage. Of Martha Pitkin, his second wife, Stiles writes: "she was the sister of William Pitkin of East Hartford, Attorney General and Treasurer of the colony. This girl put the Colony in a commotion. If possible she must be detained: the stock was too valuable to be parted with." It was a matter of consultation what young man would be good enough for her. Her brother favored Simon Wolcott, whom she married, and as her second husband she married Daniel Clark.

Children (Henry Wolcott):

1. John, b. 1607; d. in England.
2. Henry, Jan. 21, 1610-July 12, 1680; m. Nov. 18, 1641, Sarah, 1622-July 16, 1684, the dau. of Thomas Newberry, 1594-1636.

Children: Henry, b. 1642; John, b. 1644; Samuel, b. 1647; Sarah, b. 1649; Mary, b. 1651; Hannah, b. 1653; Samuel, b. 1656; Josiah, b. 1658.

FROM THE

FIRST SETTLEMENT OF THE COLONY TO THE ADOPTION OF THE PRESENT CONSTITUTION.

BY G. H. HOLLISTER.

In Two Volumes:

VOL. I.

"I wish [this task] had fallen into some better hands, that might have performed it to the life. I shall only draw the curtain and open my little casement, that so others of larger hands and abilities may let in a bigger light; that so at least some small glimmering may be left to posterity what difficulties and obstructions their forefathers met with in first settling these desert parts of America."—Mason's History of the Pequot War.

army was in the Narragansett country, Ninigret had his mouth in the dust." If Willard acted under private instructions from Massachusetts, as governor Hutchinson would seem to intimate, that colony departed for once from her usual frank and open manner, to do what was wholly unworthy of her.

The attempt on the part of Connecticut to defend the Long Island Indians, was honorable and necessary to the preservation of her faith. Besides, it was both impolitic and unjust, irrespective of the existing treaty, to allow Ninigret, upon false pretexts, to wage a war with those defenseless Indians. The fact that he had drawn over to his interests the Wampanoags, was of itself, as Massachusetts learned to her cost at a later day, no inconsiderable cause for alarm. But it is quite time that this old quarrel was forgotten, and I feel no disposition to revive any discussion in relation to it.

The refugee Pequots begged so earnestly to be taken under the protection of the English, that their prayer was at last granted, and they had lands assigned them on the Pawcatuck and Mistick rivers. They were allowed the privilege of hunting on that tract of wild forest land lying west of the Mistick, and were placed under the direction of an Indian governor, who ruled them according to a code specially provided for them.

Ninigret was now more haughty than ever, and kept the whole eastern portion of Long Island in commotion by his boisterous manner of prosecuting the war against the Montaukets. The inhabitants of East Hampton and South Hampton especially complained to the Congress of his reckless behavior towards them. The Rev. Mr. James, minister of the former place, and Captain Tapping of the latter, both wrote urgent letters, calling for interference. In obedience to this call, an armed vessel, under the command of Captain John Youngs, was stationed in the road between Neanticut and Long Island to watch the movements of Ninigret.* Youngs was authorized to draft men from Saybrook and New London, if he needed them. Should Ninigret attempt to cross the Sound, Youngs was ordered to stare in his canoes, and to kill him, and as many of his warriors as he could. The most thorough measures were taken at the same time to protect both the Indians and the English upon Long Island.

This sanguinary order resulted in no harm to Ninigret, except that he was obliged to stay at home, and abide his time for falling upon his enemies. This he did not soon find an opportunity to do, as Connecticut and New Haven at their own expense continued to keep the armed vessel for still another year cruising along his coast. It was a very unpleasant constraint upon his movements and power to do mischief, but he was obliged to submit with as good grace as he could.

It is a very trite observation, and has been found true in human experience, with nations as with individuals, that calamities journey not alone; but by some subtle law of affinity, are grouped together, and sustain each to the other a mournful yet instructive relationship. So was it with Connecticut during this interesting period of her history.

Scarcely had she brushed from her cheek the tear-drops that betokened her sorrow at the death of Haynes, when again her eye was dimmed with the signs of a new bereavement. In the 78th year of his age, but with a judgment unclouded, and his usefulness unimpaired, the venerable Henry Wolcott, one of the principal magistrates and advisers of the colony, quickly followed his friend and comrade to the grave. I cannot help making a brief mention of him, and yet were I to speak at any considerable length of all the bright examples of patriotism and exalted worth that have borne the name of Wolcott in Connecticut, I should find this work extending itself beyond the limits that I had marked out for it.

Henry Wolcott, Esquire, the ancestor of all the Wolcotts of this state, was of a very ancient family, and the owner of a large estate in Somersetshire.* He was born in Tolland on the 6th of December 1578, and was the son and heir of John Wolcott of Golden Manor. The manor-house is still standing, and is of very great antiquity and extent. It was originally a splendid mansion, designed, as well for the purposes of defense against the excesses of a lawless age, as for a permanent family residence. It is still richly ornamented with carved-work, and it left to itself unassailed by the hand of violence, it will stand for ages. The familiar motto of the family arms, borrowed from the Roman poet, is still to be seen upon the walls of the manor-house, its bold words informing us that the family who have adopted it as their text of life were "accustomed to swear in the words of

* Through the researches of Mr. Somerby, of Boston, in the herald's office, among the subsidy rolls, wills, and parish records of England, the genealogy of Henry Wolcott, Esquire, (the emigrant,) has been traced, through fifteen generations, back to Sir John Wolcott, knight, as follows:

1. Jerni Wolcott, (son of Sir John,) of Wolcott, who married Anna, daughter of John Myddle, of Shropshire.
2. Roger Wolcott, of Wolcott, who married Edith, daughter of Sir Wm. Donnes, knight.
3. Sir Philip Wolcott, of Wolcott, knight, who married Julian, daughter of John Herle.
4. John Wolcott, of Wolcott, who married Alice, daughter of David Lloyd, Esq.
5. Sir John Wolcott, of Wolcott, knight, A.D. 1582.
6. Thomas Wolcott.
7. John Wolcott.
8. John Wolcott, of Wolcott, who married Matilda, daughter of Sir Richard Cornwall, of Hereford, knight.
9. Roger Wolcott, of Wolcott, Esq., who married Margaret, daughter of David Lloyd, Esq.
10. William Wolcott, settled in Tolland, Somersetshire.
11. William Wolcott, who married Elizabeth. His will is dated A.D. 1590.
12. Thomas Wolcott, who was living in Tolland in 1552.
13. Thomas Wolcott, who married Alice. Will dated Nov. 4, 1572.
14. John Wolcott, of Golden Manor, in Tolland. Will proved, Nov. 10, 1623.

no master."* It is alike in keeping with the independent spirit of an English gentleman of the middle ages, and with that of a Puritan of the 17th century who spurned the dictation of ecclesiastical domination.

In his early life Henry Wolcott lived after the manner of the landed gentry, at an era when the term "country squire" was synonymous with whatever was bold, athletic, and hardy in the steeple-chasing, hospitable days of "merry England." But as years stole on, and the principles of the Reformation, making little progress at first, began to invade not only the wrestling-ring of the yeoman, and the counting-room of the merchant, but the hall of the country gentleman, Wolcott, among others, was led to direct his thoughts to more serious topics, than the pastimes that had engrossed his earlier manhood. While meditations respecting a future state of being occupied his mind, a religious teacher, Mr. Edward Elton, became his guide, and led him to that clear understanding of the doctrines of Christianity, and those firm convictions of its truth that remained with him to the day of his death. Of an ardent temperament and lively sensibilities, and seeing much that needed to be reformed in the severities practiced upon so many of the best subjects of the realm, he soon became identified with the Puritan party, sold a large estate in lands, including the manor-house, for which he received about eight thousand pounds sterling, probably much less than its value, and made preparations to spend the remainder of his days in America. In 1628 he visited New England to examine the country, and returned.

* "Nullius in verba jurare in magistri." In relation to the Wolcott coat of arms, the following anecdote may not be without interest to such as are curious in matters of heraldry. John Wolcott, of Wolcott, who lived in the reign of Henry the Fifth, and who married Matilda, daughter of Sir Richard Cornwall, of Hereford, knight, assumed for his arms, the three chess rooks, instead of the crow, with the "fleur de lis," borne by his ancestors. It is recorded of him in the old family pedigree, that "playing at the chess with Henry the Fifth, king of England, he gave him (the king) the cheeke matie with the rourke; whereupon the king changed his coat of arms, which was the crowe and fleur de leues, and gave him the rourke for a remembrance."

His sympathetic nature could not fail to attach itself inseparably to the self-accusing though charitable and delicate Wareham, and he sailed with him for the new world in the same ship, and arrived in Massachusetts in May, 1630. Roger Ludlow was of the same party. Wolcott remained in Dorchester until 1636, when he removed to Windsor upon the Connecticut river. He was, as most of our best early inhabitants were, a planter, and was the principal one in Windsor. He was a member of the General Court of Connecticut in 1639.

In 1643 he was chosen into the magistracy, and continued to be one of its most safe and immovable pillars till his death in 1655.* His monument of imperishable sandstone, built by the same hands that fashioned the one that stands over the Fenwick tomb at Saybrook, has been always a shrine to tempt towards it the feet of his numerous descendants, who have piously guarded it, and lovingly adorned it, for two hundred years. Time has spared, and the gray moss has not obliterated, the quaint and simple epitaph, whose plain lettering tells us that it is the resting place of "Henry Wolcott, some time a magistrate of this jurisdiction."

The colony of New Haven was regarded by Cromwell with singular favor. The Protector had brought Jamaica within the power of the British government, and entertained the hope that he should be able to people it with the inhabitants of New England, who, he thought, might be induced to leave a sterile region in exchange for the prodigal fruits and genial atmosphere of a more tropical clime. With this view, in 1636, he wrote letters to his friends in New Haven, wherein he adroitly appealed to their sense of religious duty, telling them, in the phraseology of the day, that they had "as clear a call" to remove to that island, as they formerly had for leaving their native land for New England. These letters were laid before the Court by Governor Eaton, and their contents made the subject of earnest debates. After a careful discussion, the court resolved that, much as they regarded the love that his highness bore them, "yet for divers reasons they could not conclude that God called them at present to remove thither."†

This year, from representations previously made at New Haven, that the people of Greenwich lived in a disorderly and riotous way, sold intoxicating liquors to the Indians, received and harbored servants who had fled from their masters, and joined persons unlawfully in marriage, the General Court of that colony resolved to assert their jurisdiction over the town and bring its citizens to a more orderly manner of demeaning themselves. In May, the General Court sent a letter, calling upon those living at Greenwich to submit to its authority. They returned an answer couched in very spirited language, declaring that New Haven had no right to set up such a claim, and that they never would submit to it unless compelled to do so by parliament. But when the spirit of such men as Eaton and Davenport pervades a legislative body, it is not easily driven from any position that has been deliberately taken. The General Court passed a resolve, that unless the recusants should appear in open court, and make a formal submission by the 25th of June, Richard Crabbe and some others who were most stubborn in their opposition, should be arrested and punished according to law. This had the effect intended; Crabbe and others, who were not ready for martyrdom, yielded with as good grace as they could.†

The Indians in Connecticut, who had been kept in check for some time, now found it impossible any longer to restrain their bad passions. With the exception of an occasional outbreak of malice, and the constant flow of falsehood and subtlety that could hardly be expected to rest even during the hours of sleep, Uncas had been very exemplary in his conduct for a long time. But as one extreme is said to lead to another, he suddenly made amends for his good behavior by an outrageous and unprovoked attack upon the Podunk Indians at Hartford. He embroiled the whole Indian popuanother of his pedigree, from those families who helped to frame the British constitution, who elaborated by slow degrees the common law, who advocated the doctrines of both with their tongues and their pens, or defended them with their swords.

But it may not be clear to every mind how it happened that the early planters, if they were of such good descent, should have submitted to the most menial labors in an age when the gentry were, much more than now, a non-producing class. I reply that they were driven to it by the sternest necessity. They were poor; many of them had made great sacrifices to remove their families and their friends to America. Laborers were few, and they had no money to transport them in such numbers as were needed in a new country, to subdue the lands and render them habitable. Most of all, they were in want of mechanics. They needed houses to screen them from the weather, they must be provided with cloth, which they could not import, and that cloth must be made into garments. Their horses could not go afield, or from town to town unshod; nor could their sons and daughters live without shoes. From these stern necessities they learned the dignity of labor. If they could not procure carpenters, blacksmiths, shoemakers, weavers, and clothiers, in any other manner, it was evident that they must learn these several employments themselves, and teach them to their children. They found themselves obliged to fell the trees and till the grounds, that they might have bread. The best planters, therefore, could find nothing degrading in the use of the ax or the plow. Besides, their religion and habits of mind taught them to look with reverence rather than with scorn upon all the useful occupations of life, as tending to help forward the human soul upon a journey, at the close of which it was to be invested with a robe of white and adorned with a crown of gold.

Some of them had anticipated this, and had learned to practise some useful art or mystery, either before leaving England, or while in Holland or Germany. Hence, Henry Wolcott * whose ancestors could be traced back as far as the reign of William the Conqueror, does not appear to have withheld his daughter's hand from Mathew Griswold, because he was a stone-cutter and made monuments for the few who chose to retain a custom that Welles, Leete, and the whole Wyllys family appear to have despised. Roger Wolcott, too, a grandson of the emigrant, and himself the first of the line of governors bearing that name, a man of letters and elevated views, was proud to labor in the field as a husbandman, and on rainy days and in the long winter evenings, to fill up the intervals of study in plying the shuttle that his bright-eyed sons and rosy-checked daughters might be warmly clad. Governor Webster, and Governor Wells, if they did not labor with their own hands, taught their sons to toil. Governor Leete, at the very time that he discharged the duties of chief magistrate of the colony, and while he was secreting the regicides at his house, kept a country store for the accommodation of his neighbors, and for many years earned a livelihood by keeping the records of Guilford. His sons were, it is believed, all taught to work in the field. Governor Treat was as well skilled in the mysteries of plowing a corn-field, or mowing a hay-field, as in fighting the battles of the colony, or defending her charter. His father, Richard Treat, a patentee named in the charter, and one of the first gentlemen in the colony, daily crossed the Connecticut river in a boat, and lent his strong muscles to the task of breaking up the fallow land of Glastenbury. Winthrop submitted to the severest hardships in removing from Boston to Pequot (now New London,) in going from place to place to exercise the functions of a magistrate, in acting as mediator between contending parties, in procuring land titles and defending them for himself and for others, in purchasing mines, in performing the office of physician, to say nothing of the burdens of public life. For these services he did not scruple to receive a fair compensation. If he did not labor with his hands, we may presume from what we know of his character, that it was from no fear of soiling them, but merely because his

Mr. Edward Hopkins,.....	1638	Mr. Edward Hopkins,.....	1640
Mr. Thomas Ford,.....	1638	Mr. Rositer,.....	1640

* These names are gathered mainly from J. Hammond Trumbull's "Colonial Records." It will be observed that many eminent names in our Colonial history, are not found in the roll here given. The reasons are obvious. The period covers only the first thirty years of our existence as a colony. Many gentlemen who were in Connecticut during that time, afterwards became prominent; others did not arrive from England until a later date. I have not been able to obtain anything like a complete list of those who bore this title in New Haven Colony. A very few only of the names here given, belonged to other jurisdictions.

FORM

FROM THE
FIRST SETTLEMENT OF THE COLONY TO THE ADOPTION OF THE PRESENT CONSTITUTION.

BY G. H. HOLLISTER.

In Two Volumes:

VOL. II

"I wish [this task] had fallen into some better hands, that might have performed it to the life. I shall only draw the curtain and open my little easement, that to others of larger hearts and abilities may let in a bigger light; that so at least some small glimmering may be left to posterity what difficulties and obstructions their forefathers met with in first settling these desert parts of America."—Masson's History of the Pequot War.

NEW HAVEN:
DURRIE AND PECK.

serve the cause, for which they were ready to give up their own lives, as well as those of their sons, their husbands, and fathers. It was indeed madness to attempt to subdue a people that had been nurtured and trained by women, who would not only deprive themselves of the most ordinary household comforts, and raise with their own hands the grain that they afterwards made into bread, but who would, also, mould the bullets and shape the cartridges that were needed to emancipate their country.*

* In another part of this work, I have brought down the genealogy of the Wolcott family, from a period of remote antiquity, to Henry Wolcott, Esq., a Pioneer. From him it is continued as follows:

1. Simon Wolcott, (son of Henry,) was born in 1695; married Martha Pitkin, sister of William Pitkin, the ancestor of the Pitkin family of Connecticut. He was admitted a freeman of Connecticut colony in May, 1654; and died in 1719. Martha, his widow, died in 1719.

2. Roger Wolcott, (son of Simon,) was born in Windsor, Jan. 4, 1679. He took part in the expedition against Canada, in 1711, he was a commissary of the Connecticut forces; and at the capture of Louisbourg, in 1743, he bore the command of a major-general. He was successively a member of the assembly and of the council, judge of the county court, deputy governor, chief judge of the superior court, and from 1751 to 1754, governor. His wife was Sarah Davis, who died in 1747. He departed this life, May 17, 1767, aged eighty-eight years.

3. Oliver Wolcott, LL.D., (son of Roger,) was born in 1726; graduated at Yale College, in 1747; married Laura Collins, who died in 1794. He studied medicine, and settled in Goshen, in the practice of his profession. Of the organization of the county of Litchfield, in 1751, he was appointed high sheriff, and soon after removed to Litchfield. He was a brigadier-general in the revolution, member of the Continental Congress, signer of the Declaration of Independence, lieutenant-governor, and governor. He died December 1, 1797, aged seventy-one. His brother, Eustus Wolcott, was a brigadier-general in the revolution, a member of Congress, and judge of the superior court. He died the 14, 1793.

4. Oliver Wolcott, LL.D., (son of the preceding Oliver,) was born in Litchfield. He was comptroller of the state of Connecticut, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States under President Washington, and governor of Connecticut for ten years. He died in New York in 1833, leaving two sons, Col. Oliver S., and Dr. John S. Dr. Oliver Wolcott, now of San Francisco, California, is a son of the former.

5. Frederick Wolcott, (also a son of the first Oliver, and brother of the second,) was in public life for more than forty years. He was a gentleman of stately manners, courteous, benevolent, and hospitable. He died in 1817.

During this year, there were five sessions of the General Assembly, three of which were specially called. At the regular session in May, the governor was, by a special act, made the chief naval officer of the colony, and was authorized to appoint subordinate officers at each of the ports of New Haven, New London, Middletown, and Norwich. A maritime jurisdiction was also given to the county courts. By another act, all the troops of horse in the colony were formed into five regiments of light-horse. Large detachments of militia were ordered to hold themselves in readiness to march at the shortest notice, for the defense of the colony. One regiment was directed to be raised for the continental service, and another to be stationed about New London. Sixty thousand pounds in Bills of Credit were issued, and a tax of eight-pence on a pound was laid.

Andrew Ward was appointed colonel, Obadiah Johnson, lieutenant-colonel, and William Douglas, major, of the regiment to be raised to serve in the continental army.* Of the regiment to be stationed at or near New London, David Waterbury, Jr., was appointed colonel; Comfort Sage, lieutenant-colonel; and Oliver Smith, major. Benjamin Hinman, Philip Burr Bradley, and David Dimon, were appointed to the corresponding offices in the regiment to be raised for the defense of the colony.†

At the special session in June, an act was passed to raise two regiments by enlistment to reinforce the continental army in the northern department. David Waterbury, Jr., was appointed brigadier-general, and Samuel Mott and Heman Swift were appointed colonels of this detachment. Seven regiments, including the one raised in May, were ordered to march immediately and join the continental

this was so common an occurrence that it did not excite much alarm. The citizens sought their beds at about the same hour as usual, and probably most of them slept as soundly as they were in the habit of doing. When it was dark, Arnold advanced toward the Connecticut coast, which he reached about ten o'clock. The wind now shifted suddenly, and blew so strongly from the north, that the large ships were forced to stand out to sea and the smaller ones to seek the protection of the shore. The morning twilight revealed to the garrison at Fort Griswold the spreading sails of thirty-two British ships standing in toward the doomed town.

At ten o'clock seventeen hundred troops were landed from twenty-four transports, at a distance of about three miles from New London. They were sent ashore in two divisions—eight hundred on the Groton side of the Thames, and nine hundred on the western or New London side. The eastern division consisted of the fortieth and fifty-fourth regiments, the third battalion of New Jersey volunteers, and a detachment of Yagers and artillery, all under the command of Lieut-Col. Eyre. The western division was made up of the thirty-eighth regiment, the loyal Americans, the American Legion, some refugees, and sixty Yagers, all under the command of Arnold. The troops immediately began to move forward.

From the earliest morning twilight, Colonel William Ledyard, to whom the guardianship of the two forts and the towns in which they were situated, had been committed, had exerted himself to the utmost to alarm the neighboring towns, and to put the coast in a state of defense. Captain Adam Shapley commanded at Fort Trumbull and the Town Hill Battery, and Captain William Latham at Fort Griswold. The established signals that had long been used at Stonington and at the two forts, were three guns for good news and two for an alarm, fired at stated intervals. These signals were as well known to the Tories as to the patriots, and were probably familiar to Arnold before he sailed from New York.

As soon as the usual warning sounded from Fort Griswold, a third gun from one of the British ships was discharged, thus changing the signal of distress into one of jubilee. From the difference in the size of the guns, or in the elevation of them, this false addition did not probably deceive the most wary of the militia officers; but it served to confuse and keep back those who were less critically observant of the sound. Other alarms followed; the inhabitants were panic-stricken at the sudden gathering of the storm, that was evidently about to burst upon their heads. Starting from their beds, and groping about with trembling hands to find their garments, they gathered together their families and moveable effects, and sent them into the woods and fields on the remote and difficult hill-sides where the enemy would find it impracticable to follow them.

An effort was made to secure the shipping, by sending it far up the Thames; but the wind and tide were both adverse. At noon, however, there sprung up a lively breeze from the south that favored the attempt, and a number of valuable vessels were saved.

After Colonel Ledyard had made such arrangements as his scanty means could allow, at Fort Trumbull, and had dispatched messengers to Lebanon to inform the governor of his condition, he hastened to repair to Fort Griswold, where he determined to make his last stand against the enemy. When he went down to cross the ferry, his friends gathered around him to wish him success and give him a farewell pressure of the hand. His noble features wore an expression of resolve which those who saw him remembered long after. His step was elastic as he leapt into the boat, and his voice had the triumphant tone of prophecy, as he said to them: "If I must lose to-day honor or life, you who know me, can tell which it will be!"

Meanwhile Arnold, who had landed his forces near the light-house, marched rapidly forward, as nearly in a right line as the nature of the ground would allow, and soon came into the Town Hill road. He arrived at the cross road that leads to the fort at about eleven o'clock. Here he detached Captain Millett of the thirty-eighth regiment with four companies, to go down to the shore and attack the garrison. At the foot of this road, Millett was joined by a company of refugees under Captain Frink, who had followed the shore more closely in marching from the landing-place than the main body of the army had done.

Fort Trumbull was not then what it is now, a well-appointed fortification, with solid masonry on all sides, for the magazines, and all the furnishings of a fortress designed to resist aggressive attempts as well by land as by water; but an area, with three sides inclosed, and mounted with a few guns that were designed to protect the harbor from the approach of ships. The rear of the fort was open, not having even the advantage of a temporary breastwork to cover the garrison, which numbered at the time of the invasion only twenty-three men. Colonel Ledyard was of course aware how idle it would be to resist the advance of the enemy with a mere nominal garrison, and had instructed Captain Shapley to retreat, should he be attacked, to Fort Griswold. In obedience to this order Shapley fired a single well-aimed volley at the approaching detachment, spiked the guns upon his batteries, and withdrawing his men in good order, embarked them in whale-boats almost under the very shadows of the British ships that were so near that the men from the decks could reach them with musket shot. Thus exposed seven of his men were wounded, and one of the boats was captured. It need hardly be said that Captain Millett immediately took possession of the deserted fort.

Arnold, goaded to madness as he always was when he found himself in the atmosphere of human strife, rushed forward toward the devoted town, to execute upon it the fierceness of his wrath. It is difficult to imagine a situation more likely to quicken the long stifled admonitions of a guilty conscience, than that of this bold bad man. He was now within a few miles of his birth-place. As he ascended the hill upon his nefarious errand, that most beautiful of our coast spots lay spread out like a map in all its bewildering charms of pleasant inlets, seamed rocks fretted by the ebbing and flowing of the tides, strips of sandy beach sparkling with their shining decorations of shells, hills covered with cedars, and in the distance, islands crowned with groves, lying like sisters side by side in the feathery foam of the waves. At his feet the fairest harbor of the Atlantic, with its never failing river coming down from the sharp ledges, where in his childhood its waters, young and restless as he, had typified the future career, as they mirrored the features of the fickle, ambitious boy; a fine old town, associated with the early settlement of the continent, and inhabited by his old schoolmates and acquaintances; ships with the names of their owners upon them, huddling together like a flock of frightened sea-fowl in their attempt to escape the torch that he himself had brought to apply to them; all these objects spread out before him, and, smiling in the light of a September sun, must have touched, one would think, even the heart of a traitor. But they do not appear to have made any impression upon Arnold. When he had reached the top of the hill, and had driven from the slight battery that had been hastily thrown up there, the few brave men who had dared to point its six small guns at an invading foe, he saw the owners of the ships trying to avail themselves of the breeze that had sprung up from the south, to get this most perishable of all property out of harm's way, and immediately sent a messenger to Lieutenant-Colonel Eyre with orders to press forward and attack Fort Griswold as speedily as possible, so that he might possess himself of the guns and turn them against the fugitive vessels.

In addition to the cannon at this fort, (if it could be called a fort,) there was on the common upon Manwaring's hill still another gun, a four or six pounder, that had been kept there for use upon muster days, and to give the customary signals of distress or good tidings to town and country. As the enemy were descending Towa Hill, three or four men levelled this little piece and fired it at them several times.

WOLCOTT. This genealogy, as it appeared in our first edition, was compiled by us from W. Rec., a Wolcott Gen. pub. in the N. Eng. Gen. Register, and an article entitled "Henry Wolcott and His Children," pub. in the Congl. Quarterly. The present revision has been largely enriched from the pages of The Wolcott Memorial, compiled by the late Rev. Dr. SAMUEL WOLCOTT and privately printed (1881), in an edition limited to 300 copies. This great work is especially rich in Wolcott correspondence, etc., and also gives some branches of the family which do not come within the limits of a Windsor history; and while we have not followed out some of these lines (notably the Wethersfield line), we have been able to render some of the more distinctively Windsor lines more perfect. In this connection we desire to acknowledge the kindly interest of Hon. HENRY R. WOLCOTT of Denver, Col., and of HENRY WOLCOTT, Esq., of Boston, Mass., by whose courtesy this genealogy is so fully illustrated with the beautiful engravings made for the Family Memorial Volume. We are fully assured that many of our readers will appreciate their liberality in this matter as sincerely as we do. — H. R. S.

The name in Somersetshire is spelled Wol; in Shropshire, Lincolnshire, and elsewhere, Wal. The ancestral seat in England of the family which came to Windsor was at Tolland, Co. Somerset, though its branches reside in adjacent parishes. "Tolland," says H. G. SOMERSET, Esq., in a letter to the family, "is one of the most secluded, quiet, and picturesque villages in England. The Galdon Manor, which I sketched, and which is now occupied as a farm-house, must at one time have been very extensive, and the principal room very splendid for the period. It is still richly ornamented with carved work, etc. I visited the old Mill, which belonged to the Family at least 300 years ago. The house connected with it, now somewhat dilapidated, is the same which was then standing, and is a curious specimen of architecture, both internally and externally. The mill is also the original one, with a modern addition to one end; I made a sketch of the house and mill. The manor-house, which is still standing, is said to be of very great antiquity and extent. It was originally a splendid mansion, designed, as well for the purposes of defense against the excesses of a lawless age, as for the purposes of a permanent family residence. It is still richly ornamented with carved work, and if left to itself unassailed by the hand of violence, it will stand for ages. The familiar motto of the family arms, borrowed from the Roman poet, is still to be seen upon the walls of the manor-house, its bold words informing us that the family who have adopted it as their text of life were "accustomed to swear in the words of no master" (Nullius addictus jurare in verba magistri). It is alike in keeping with the independent spirit of an English gentleman of the middle ages and with that of a Puritan of the 17th Century, who spurned the dictation of ecclesiastical domination.

In relation to the Wolcott coat-of-arms, the following is of interest to those who are curious in matters of heraldry. John Wolcott of Wolcott, who lived in the time of Henry V, and who m. Matilda (dau. of Sir Richard) Cornwell of Beresford, Kent, assumed for his arms the three chess rooks instead of the crow with the fleur-de-lis borne by his ancestors. It is recorded in the old family pedigree, that, "playinge at y<sup>e</sup> cheesse with Henry y<sup>e</sup> Fyffe, Kinge of Englande, he gave hym y<sup>e</sup> checke matie with y<sup>e</sup> rouke, whereupone y<sup>e</sup> Kinge changed his coate of-armes, which was y<sup>e</sup> crosse with flower de luces, and gave him y<sup>e</sup> rouke for a remembrance. . . . It seemes these Chess Rooks were first called Rooks for being in defence of all y<sup>e</sup> rest; and therefore they stande in y<sup>e</sup> uttermost corners of y<sup>e</sup> Chess board as Frontier Castles. Kinge Wm. y<sup>e</sup> Conqueror lost greates Lordships at this playe. And it might well become a Kinge, for therein are comprised all y<sup>e</sup> Stratagemes of Warr, or plots of Civill State."—Herault's Visitation.

The register of the parish of Idliard St. Lawrence, adjoining that of Tolland, contains the following: "HENRY, y<sup>e</sup> sonne of John Wolcott, was baptized the VI of December, 1578"; and "HENRY Wolcott & Elizabeth Saunders [of Lydiard St. Laurence, b. 1584], were married 19 January, 1606."

Henry Wolcott, whose m. and bp. are thus recorded, was the emigrant to Windsor, Conn. As the second son of John Wolcott, of Galdon Manor, Tolland, Co. Somerset, Eng., he held a fair position among the landed gentry, and an estate which placed him in affluent circumstances. By the decease of his elder bro. Christopher, intestate, 1639, the family estate, including the manor-house, mill, etc., also came into his possession after his removal to America. The earlier portion of his life was passed in the quiet pursuit of a country squire's duties and responsibilities; but, becoming converted under the teaching of the Rev. John Elton, he soon found himself closely identified with the Puritan party in the religious and political revolution which then convulsed England. America presented to him, as to hundreds of others like-minded, the only asylum where civil and religious freedom could be found; and, though then past 52 years of age, and with children of an age when they most needed the social and educational advantages afforded in their native land,—to emigrate to a new home beyond the ocean. Taking their three sons, and leaving behind them for a time two daughters and their youngest son (p. 5), they joined the Warham and Maverick emigration of 1630, on the 19th of October in which yr.

Hfd.; Attorney-General and Treas. of the Colony. Tradition says: "This girl put the Colony in a commotion. If poss. she must be detained; the stock was too valuable to be parted with. It was a matter of general consultation what young man was good enough to be presented to Miss Pitkin. Simon Wolcott of Windsor was fixed upon; and, beyond expectation, succeeded in winning her hand; her brother favored the proposal, and the results showed that they had judged worthily." He purchased the house-lot of Goodman Whitehead, opp. the residence of his father, on the meadow road to Hartford. (Secp. 171, Vol. I.) In Apl., 1761, he sold this place to the Saunders Brothers and rem. to Sims., where he had received a grant in 1667, and was one of a committee app. by the General Court to promote the settlement of that town; where he was permitted by the Gen. Sam<sup>l</sup> Wolcott grad. Harv. Coll. 1698, first of the name to complete a college course in America. On day of his graduation was employed by the selectmen of W. to "keep a reading and writing and cyphering and grammar school for one full year," to be taught 3 mo. on the east and 9 on the west side of the Great River, the latter half on north and half on south side of the Rivalet. In 1704 he took his Master's deg. at Harv., his theme being an affirmation of the question, "An Prædeterminatione publicæ dæmonis, ac prædicationis selectæ?" In 1705 he was app. Capt. of Hfd. Co. Troop; in 1708 rep. W. in Gen'l Asscm.; he d. 25 June, 1709. With him died the expectations of his father that through him, as the only surviving son and the eldest heir in the male line, the original English real estate would remain in the family; for, on the death of his father (Henry<sup>1</sup>) without male issue surviving, it naturally reverted to the heirs of his two daus., Mrs. Allyn and Mrs. Chauncey, whose claim was contested by the heirs in the male line. The suit attracted much interest in the Colony, as it was supposed to involve the question within the Eng. law of primogeniture and entail should be recognized in this country. The Wolcott claim was disallowed, and the ppy. div. bet. the Allyns and Chauncys—a decision wh. caused some unpleasantness in the fam., and Benjamin, s. of John W., proceeded to Eng. and took personal possession of the ppy., wh. caused difficulty there. The Wolcott demands, whether legal or not, were subsequently purchased by Col. Allyn; and so much of the estate as remained in poss. of his heirs in 1767 was disposed of at that time by Henry Allyn, Esq., for £250 sterling.

FAM. 6. John<sup>2</sup> (Henry<sup>2</sup> Henry<sup>1</sup>), sett. at Wethersfield, Conn., where he was townsman, 1679; rem. to W., and was dep. to Gen. Ct. in 1698 and afterwards. He m.

Addenda.—The very remarkable study of heredity, ability, and talents displayed in public and professional life by the descendants of Ursula (dau. Gov. Roger) Wolcott and her husband, Matthew Griswold, which was promised (p. 350) as an Appendix to this Genealogy, cannot well be given here, on account of the size to which this work has already grown. It will be found, however, in the Mag. of American History, for March, 1884, pp. 234-237, and is from the pen of Mrs. EDWARD E. SALISBURY, herself a descendant. The list comprises no less than twelve governors, thirty-six high judges (most of them distinct from the governors), and a galaxy of men eminent in other professions.

As we are reading the proof of this page we learn that the gubernatorial prestige of the family of Wolcott has been maintained in this year of grace, 1892, by the election of ROGER WOLCOTT, Esq., of Boston, as Lieutenant-Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. This gentleman, who has manifested a most lively interest in this Windsor History (see p. 198), is the son of Joshua Huntington, a. of Frederick W., a. Gov. Oliver, a. Gov. Roger, a. Simon, a. Mr. Henry Wolcott, the emigrant. He is a grad. of Harv. Univ., is a member of the Mass. Bar, and m. a gd.-dau. of Wm. H. Prescott, the historian, their children being thus connected with the Frothingham, Huntington, Peabody, Pickering, Prescott, Putnam, and other leading New England families.

WOODWARD. "Sept. 8, 1741, Sr. John W. of Windsor, was drowned in Conn. River the day before Commencement at Yale College, as he was going to attend."

The following inscriptions are from monuments in the burying-ground back of the first Congregational church, the first of which is believed to be the oldest inscription on any monument in this state.

HERE LYETH EPHRAIM HUIT, SOMETIMES TEACHER TO YE CHURCH OF WINDSOR, WHO DYED SEPTEMBER 4TH, 1644.

WHO WHEN HEE LIVED WEE DREW OVR VITALL BREATH, WHO WHEN HEE DYED HIS DYING WAS OVR DEATH,
WHO WAS YE STAY OF STATE, YE CHURCHES STAY, ALAS, THE TIMES FORGE AN EPITAPH.

HERE LYETH THE BODY OF HENRY WOLCOT, SOMETIMES A MAJESTATE OF THIS COMMONWEALTH, WHO DYED YE 30TH DAY OF MAY, Anno { Salutis 1635, { Aetatis 77.

The above is a representation of the monument of the first Henry Wolcott, and a copy of the inscription on its side. The monument was made by his son-in-law, Matthew Griswold, ancestor of the Griswold family in Lyme. He was a stone-cutter by trade, previous to his leaving England.*

Here lyeth the body of the Hon. Roger Wolcott, Esq., of Windsor, who for several years was Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, died May 17th, Anno { Aetatis 89, { Salutis 1767.

Earth's highest station ends in "Here he lies,"
And "dust to dust" concludes her noblest song.

To the memory of Oliver Ellsworth, LL. D., an assistant in the Council, and a judge of the Superior Court of the State of Connecticut. A member of the Convention which formed, and of the State Convention of Connecticut which adopted, the Constitution of the United States.—Senator and Chief Justice of the United States; one of the Envoys extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary, who made the convention of 1800, between the United States and the French Republic. Amiable and exemplary in all the relations of the domestic, social and christian character. Pre-eminently useful in all the offices he sustained, whose great talents under the guidance of inflexible integrity, consummate wisdom, and enlightened zeal, placed him among the first of the illustrious statesmen who achieved the independence, and established the independence of the American Republic.—Born at Windsor April 29th, 1745, and died Nov. 26, 1807.

Charles A., January, 1853, lives in Charlestown, Massachusetts; represents the National Cash Register Company; married Ida Van Houton, of New York; has two children: Edward and Edith. 5. John, born June, 1835, died unmarried September, 1898.

(VII) William C., son of Chauncey French, was born in Hinsdale, New Hampshire, May 11, 1841. He was educated in the public schools. He was gifted with mechanical ability and when a boy learned the trade of machinist and stationary engineer. He worked in various machine shops in Springfield and in 1875 took charge of the stationary engine on the Hunnewell estate in Boston, and continued in charge of the mechanical plant there until he resigned in 1899. From the time of the experimental use of electricity for lighting purposes, Mr. French has been a student of electricity and an expert electrician. As early as 1878 the inventor, C. F. Brush, introduced his mechanism for electric lighting, and under his supervision Mr. French learned to run the dynamo. The demonstration was successful and the Brush system was developed successfully on commercial lines. While Mr. French was engineer in charge of the Continental Clothing House, corner of Howard and Washington streets, Boston, an arc light machine constructed by C. F. Brush was installed in its engine room. In 1899 Mr. French was placed in charge of the electric lighting plant of the Masonic Temple of Boston and superintended its installation. He has held the position of chief engineer of this plant to the present time.

For many years Mr. French has been interested in Freemasonry and is a member of Blue Lodge; Royal Arch Masons; Boston Council, Royal and Select Masters; De Molay Commandery, Knights Templar; Lodge of Perfection; Princes of Jerusalem; Mount Olivet Chapter, Rose Croix; the Massachusetts Consistory; and Aleppo Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine. In politics he is a Republican. In 1861, on the first call of President Lincoln for troops in the civil war, he enlisted in the Charleston Artillery Company of the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment. He took part in both battles of Bull Run and in several skirmishes, and served for three months, the period of his enlistment. He was a member of John A. Andrew Post, No. 15, Grand Army of the Republic.

He married (first) July 30, 1862, Henrietta Chadwick, born 1839, died December 12, 1879. He married (second) June 8, 1884, Louise M. (Malcolm) Anderson, born in New York City in 1851, widow of Frederick Anderson, who died in 1881. By her first marriage she had one child, William G. Anderson, who married Harriet Rouchfuss, of Boston, and has one child, William C. William G. was married under the name of William G. French, the name he has been known by for twenty-five years. Mr. French has no children. He resides at No. 3 Alveston street, Jamaica Plain, Boston.

The surname Wolcott is identical with Walcott; as shown by the use of the same coat-of-arms, but both in England and America the two forms of spelling have survived for several centuries. The coat-of-arms, which was engraved on the silver of Governor Roger Wolcott, of Connecticut, mentioned below: Argent a chevron between three chess rooks ermine. Crest: A bull's head erased argent or duely gorged lined and ringed of the last. The family motto: Nullius addictus jurare verba magistri—accustomed to swear in the words of no Master; or, taking nothing on trust. The English ancestry of the American immigrant has been traced for several generations, as follows:

(1) John Wolcott lived and died in Tolland, Somersetshire, England. His will, dated February 9, 1571, proved April 11, 1572, bequeathed to children John, Alice, Mary; wife Agnes, and also to John Howe, Agnes Meyer, and appointing his brothers Henry and Roger Wolcott overseers. Children of John and Agnes: John, mentioned below; Alice; Mary.

(II) John (2), son of John (1) Wolcott, lived at Tolland, and died there March 2, 1618, according to his gravestone. Various branches of the families lived in that and adjacent parishes. William and Thomas Wolcott were in Tolland as early as 1525, but the records are wanting, so the relationship is not known. John married Joan ———, who died April 5, 1637. He owned mills and other property at Tolland. His will, dated November 10, 1623, proved January 16, following, bequeathed to John Wolcott, son of his son John, and Agnes and Mary, daughters of son John; to children of son Henry; to kinsman Symon Wolcott; servant Giles More; also to Richard Locke, Alexander Thatloke, John Sealy and Alexander Engrave; witnessed by sons of the testators, Christopher and Henry Wolcott. Children, baptized in Lidiard, a parish adjoining Tolland: 1. Henry, mentioned below. 2. Christopher, died March 25, 1639. 3. John, died February 17, 1652.

(III) Henry Wolcott, immigrant ancestor, was son of John Wolcott, of Tolland, and was baptized at Lydiard, or Lidiard, England, December 6, 1578. He came with the first company to Dorchester, Massachusetts. Although it is said that he came first in 1628, he came with part of his family in the ship "Mary and John," of four hundred tons, Captain Squeb, landing at Nantasket, May 30, 1630. He was one of the original settlers and proprietors of Dorchester, and was on the first list of freemen, dated October 19, 1630. He was one of the leading citizens, held the office of selectman, and other positions of trust. He removed with many of his neighbors to Windsor, Connecticut, in 1646-57, and was a member of the first general assembly of Connecticut in 1637. He was one of the undertakers (stockholders or owners) of the ship "Hopewell" in 1640, when he made a visit to England, and in that year his name stands first on the list of inhabitants. He was elected to the house of magistrates of Connecticut in 1643, and served during the rest of his life. He was one of the most prominent immigrants to New England. He was possessor of wealth and influence. He owned a good estate in Somersetshire. We are told that he spent his youth in gaiety and the usual country pastimes of the normal English youth, but afterwards, under the instruction of Rev. Edward Elton, "his mind was entirely changed and turned to the sincere love and practice of religion." He became an austere Puritan. As the Puritans were then treated with great severity in England, he sold an estate worth eight thousand pounds and prepared to remove to America. At his death, he still owned a considerable estate in England, rented for sixty pounds per annum, and afterwards sold by his heirs. His home in Windsor was at the south end of the town, south of the Farmington river, on a tract of land called the Island. He was called by contemporaries a "man of fine estate and superior abilities." He died May 30, 1655. He married, January 19, 1606, in England, Elizabeth Saunders, baptized December 20, 1584, died at Windsor, July 5, 1655, daughter of Thomas Saunders.

His tombstone of brown stone stands at the rear of the First Congregational Church, surrounded by the gravestones of descendants. His wife was buried at his side, and Prince's Chronology says: "These both dyed in hope and ly buried under one Tomb in Windsor." The stone and inscriptions are perfectly preserved.

Children: 1. John, baptized at Lydiard; died in England. 2. Anna, married, October 16, 1646, Mathew Griswold, of Windsor. 3. Henry, baptized January 21, 1610-11. 4. George, married Elizabeth ———; died at Wethersfield, Connecticut, February 12, 1662. 5. Christopher, died September 7, 1662; had his father's homestead at Windsor. 6. Mary, married June 25, 1646, Job Drake; both died September 16, 1689. 7. Simon, mentioned below.

(IV) Simon, son of Henry Wolcott, was born in 1624-25, in England. He was five years old when his father came to America, and he came with other children later. He lived opposite his father's homestead in Windsor, on land that he bought of Goodman Whitehead, on the road to Hartford. He had a grant of land at Simsbury in 1667. He was prominent in public life. In 1668 he was on a committee of the general court to further planting. He removed to Simsbury in 1671 and was captain of the trainband there, August 11, 1673; selectman 1674. He and other settlers were driven from their homes during King Philip's war, and it said that he buried a brass kettle containing the family silver, sinking it in the mud of the swamp, and that it has never been recovered. He had a grant of two hundred acres from the general court in 1680, and was one of six in the colony honored with the title "Mr." He married (first) March 19, 1657, Joanna Cook, born August 5, 1638, died April 27, 1657, aged only eighteen years. He married (second) October 17, 1661, Martha Pitkins, who came from England with her brother, William Pitkins, attorney general and treasurer of the colony. Wolcott died September 11, 1687, and two years later his widow married (second) Daniel Clark. She died October 13, 1719, aged Wolcott, wrote of her: "She was a gentle-eighty years. Her son, Governor Roger woman of bright and natural parts which were well improved by her education in the city of London. She came to New England in 1661, and the same year was married to my father. The rest of her useful life she spent in the wilderness in doing good and setting an example of piety and prudence, charity and patience." Children: 1. Elizabeth, born August 19, 1662; married, December 10, 1680, Daniel Cooley, of Longmeadow, Massachusetts. 2. Martha, born May 17, 1664; married, January 6, 1686, Thomas Allyn, of Windsor. 3. Simon, born June 24, 1666. 4. Joanna, born June 30, 1668; married September 2, 1690, John Colton, of Longmeadow. 5. Henry, born May 20, 1670. 6. Christopher, born July 4, 1672; died April 3, 1693. 7. Mary, born 1674; died 1676. 8. William, born November 6, 1676. 9. Governor Roger, mentioned below.

(V) Governor Roger Wolcott, son of Simon Wolcott, was born January 4, 1679, at Simsbury, Connecticut. He became the foremost man of his day in the colony, and from him are descended many distinguished American statesmen, among whom may be mentioned Governor and United States Senator Edward O. Wolcott, of Colorado, and Governor Roger Wolcott, of our own generation in Massachusetts. From the private journal of Governor Wolcott we gain an excellent account of his life. In 1680, when he was an infant, the family settled on the east side of the river at Windsor, at some distance from any school, and he never attended a school. He was instructed by his parents. There was no church in the vicinity. His father died, leaving his buildings unfinished, his land to be cleared, and in debt, but the widow and her six children managed, and as the governor says, "we never wanted." After his mother married Daniel Clark, he went to live with her in her new home on the west side of the river. In 1690 he learned to write and read; in 1694 he was apprenticed to a clothier or fuller to learn the trade, and January 2, 1699, he engaged in business as a clothier on his own account and became very successful. He was elected selectman of Windsor in 1707; deputy to the general assembly in 1710. He took part in the expedition against Canada in 1711 as commissary of Connecticut stores. He was elected councillor in 1714; judge of the county court in 1721; of the superior court, 1732; deputy governor and chief judge of the superior court in 1741. He was commissioned major general of the colonial army by Governor Shirley, of Massachusetts, and Governor Law, of Connecticut, and led the Connecticut troops in the expedition against Cape Breton in 1745. He was then sixty-seven years old, the oldest man in the service except

Rev. Mr. Moody. Gov. Wolcott said: "It was a tough business. Divine Providence appeared wonderfully in our favor and should forever be remembered with thankfulness." Louisburg surrendered and the expedition was successful. In 1750 he was elected governor of Connecticut. In November, 1752, some Spanish merchant vessels took refuge in New London harbor, and through the neglect and delay of the owner suffered much loss while in port. Governor Wolcott was accused of oppression and held responsible in the popular mind of the Spaniard's misfortunes. For this reason he was retired from governorship in 1754. But when the case reached the King's council, Governor Wolcott was absolved entirely from blame, and in a measure the public confidence in him returned. In 1755 he lacked but two hundred votes of re-election. After his retirement from public life "he divided his time between devotion, reading, agriculture, and the enjoyment of his friends. His body was strong and well proportioned, his countenance and deportment peculiarly adapted to command reverence and esteem. His wit was ready and uncommonly bright, his method of reasoning (free from sophistry) was clear and manly, as became a generous inquirer after truth and not a noisy wrangler for victory. He was a sincere unflinching friend to every industrious, virtuous, honest man, what ever his walk in life. He was a wise legislature and able statesman. While he was a judge he held the balance of justice with a steady unwavering hand, and being far superior to venality or the influence of personal, family or party connections, he pronounced the law impartially on all the causes brought before him. As a governor he appeared to advantage. This was his proper element, for he seemed originally formed to govern. He was a kind and provident husband and parent. His moral character was unblemished, his religion and piety unaffected and he died as he had lived a member of the Second Church of Windsor." And one who knew the late governor of Massachusetts, his descendant and namesake, must be reminded by this contemporary eulogy of the physique, bearing and character of the late Roger Wolcott, of Massachusetts.

Governor Wolcott's mansion house was built in 1704, and stood until a recent date. Some of the panels on which the paintings illustrated the Indian attack on Deerfield have been preserved. His will was proved July 18, 1761. He published three books: "Poetical

* This second list of possible passengers on the Mary & John was compiled by reader Burton W. Spear. He reports: "These are people that various sources claim were on the Mary & John. There are doubts about those listed with an * (asterisk)." Burton believes there must be many more descendants of Mary & John passengers than there are descendants of the famed Mayflower passengers. Could be!

1428, his bones were disinterred pursuant to a decree passed at the council of Constance, and publicly burnt, and the ashes thrown into the river. His portrait is preserved in the church, as well as the chair in which he died, also the purple velvet communion cloth used by him; and a handsome monument was recently erected to him. The late Dr. Ryder, Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, who was rector from 1801 to 1814, appropriated a library for the use of the parishioners, to be deposited in the church, where is a tablet to his memory. There are places of worship for Independents and Wesleyans. A free school and almshouses were founded and endowed by means of a bequest of £200 from the Rev. Edward Sherrier; a school for girls is endowed with £12 per annum, by the late bishop; another, called "Mr. Pool's," is partly supported by endowment; and there is a national school. Richard Elkington, of Shawell, by will dated May 29th, 1607, devised the sum of £50, vested some years since in land, which on sale produced £1000, now lent, in sums of £50, to tradesmen. The poor law union of Lutterworth comprises 36 parishes or places, 30 of which are in the county of Leicester, 5 in that of Warwick, and 1 in that of Northampton; the whole containing a population of 16,039. In the reign of John, an hospital for a master and brethren, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, was founded and endowed by Roise de Verdon, and Nicholas, her son; at the Dissolution it was valued at £26. 9. 5. per annum.

LUTTLEY, a hamlet, in the parish of HALES-OWEN, union of STOURBRIDGE, Lower division of the hundred of HALFESHIRE, Stourbridge and E. divisions of the county of WORCESTER,  $1\frac{1}{2}$  mile (W.) from Hales-Owen; containing 137 inhabitants, and comprising 427 a. 1 r. 39 p., of a fertile soil.

LUTTON, or LUDDINGTON-IN-THE-WOLD (St. Peter), a parish, in the union of OUNDE, partly in the hundred of NORMAN-CROSS, county of HUNTINGDON, and partly in that of WILLYBROOK, N. division of the county of NORTHAMPTON,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  miles (E.) from Oundle; containing 187 inhabitants. The parish comprises 1479 acres, of which 93 are common or waste. The living is a rectory, with that of Washingley united, valued in the king's books at £21. 11. 5 $\frac{1}{2}$ , and in the patronage of the Earl Fitzwilliam: the tithes of Lutton have been commuted for £220. 2. There is a place of worship for Wesleyans; and a school is partly supported by the rector and curate.

LUTTON, EAST and WEST, a township, in the parish of WEAVERTHORPE, union of DRIFFIELD, wapentake of BUCKROSE, E. riding of YORK, 3 miles (N.) from Sledmere; containing 405 inhabitants. These places, called also Luttons Ambo, comprise together about 2130 acres: the villages, which are pleasantly situated, are distant from each other about a mile. At West Lutton is a chapel of ease; also a place of worship for Wesleyans. The tithes were commuted for land in 1801.

LUXBOROUGH (St. Mary), a parish, in the union of WILMTON, hundred of CARRHAMPTON, W. division of SOMERSET, 5 miles (S. S. W.) from Dunster; containing 485 inhabitants. It comprises 3500 acres, of which 910 are common or waste. There are several quarries, the produce of which is converted into lime for agricultural purposes, and also applied to the repair of the roads. Iron-ore is found at Brendon hill, where mining operations have been recently commenced by Sir Thomas Lethbridge. The living is annexed to the vicarage of Cutcombe: the impropriate tithes have been commuted for £141, and the vicarial for £115. A parochial school is supported by Sir Thomas. Within the parish are many tumuli, containing numerous urns, human bones, and ashes.

LUXULYON (St. SYRICUS AND JULIETA), a parish, in the union of BODMIN, E. division of the hundred of POWDER and of the county of CORNWALL, 7 miles (N. E. by N.) from St. Austell; containing 1512 inhabitants. The parish comprises by admeasurement 535 $\frac{1}{2}$  acres, of which 555 are common or waste; the higher grounds command extensive views of the Channel and St. Blassey bay. Granite is extensively quarried, large quantities of which were conveyed from this place for completing the breakwater at Plymouth, and for the construction of Cardiff pier. Fairs are held in June and October. The living is a vicarage, valued in the king's books at £10; patron and impropriator, Sir J. C. Rashleigh, Bart. The great tithes have been commuted for £120, and the vicarial for £230; the glebe contains about 5 acres, to which there is a good house, built by the Rev. R. Gervays Grylls, who, in conjunction with the patron, supports a parochial school. Here is a place of worship for Wesleyans. The stannary records were deposited in the turret of the church tower during the parliamentary war. At Rideaux is a Roman encampment.

LYDBURY, NORTH (St. MICHAEL), a parish, in the union of CLUN, hundred of POWSLOW, S. division of SALOP, 3 miles (S. E.) from Bishop's-Castle; containing 908 inhabitants. It comprises by computation 9000 acres, and is intersected by the road from Ludlow to Bishop's-Castle; the soil is rich, the scenery picturesque, and the surface undulated. Good stone is quarried for building. The living is a vicarage, with that of Norbury annexed, valued in the king's books at £13. 6. 8.; net income, £551; patron and incumbent, Rev. J. Bright Bright; impropriator, E. Plowden, Esq.; the glebe contains 45 acres, principally situated at Norbury, and there is a glebe-house. The church is a very ancient structure. A school is conducted on the national system. In Lower Down are the remains of a strong encampment, of which the trenches are still very perfect; and a castle anciently stood here, belonging to the bishops of Hereford, one of whom was presented by a jury, in the reign of Henry III., for suffering the escape of a prisoner thence. Plowden, a distinguished lawyer, and author of the Commentaries, resided at Plowden Hall, in the parish.

LYDD (All Saints), a decayed market-town, and a parish, in the union of ROMNEY-MARSH, hundred of LONGPORT, lathe of SHERWAY, E. division of KENT,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  miles (S. S. W.) from New Romney; containing 1509 inhabitants. The town is situated at the extremity of the county, near the point of land which forms the bay of Dengeness. The market was on Thursday; a fair for pedlery is held on the last Monday in July. It is a corporation by prescription, rably fertile land, including 50 acres of wood: good red gritstone is quarried for building. From a hill called Gospel Hill, extensive views are obtained, embracing seven churches and fourteen hamlets. Todwick Grange, the seat of George Colton Fox, Esq., is a handsome residence. The living is a rectory, valued in the king's books at £6. 14. 7.; net income, £160; patron, Mr. Fox. The tithes for the manor were commuted for land and a money payment in 1767: there is a parsonage-house, with 68 acres of land. The church is a small neat edifice, with a square tower.

TOFT (St. Andrew), a parish, in the union of CANTON and ARNINGTON, hundred of LONGSTOW, county of CAMBRIDGE, 5 miles (E. by S.) from Canton; containing 338 inhabitants. The living is a rectory, with the vicarage of Caldecote annexed, valued in the king's books at £6. 16. 10½.; net income, £287; patrons, the Master and Fellows of Christ's College, Cambridge. A national school has been endowed by the Rev. John Preston with the interest of £560.

TOFT, a township, in the parish of KNUTSFORD, union of ATTERBURGH, hundred of BUCKLOW, N. division of the county of CHESTER, 1½ mile (S.) from Nether Knutsford; containing 226 inhabitants.

TOFT, with LOVNA, a township, in the parish of WITBAM-ON-THE-HILL, union of BOURNE, wapentake of BELTISOV, parts of KESTIVEN, county of LINCOLN, 3 miles (S. W.) from Bourne; containing 225 inhabitants, of whom 167 are in Toffbrook.

TOFT, MONKS (St. James), a parish, in the union of LODDON and CLAVERING, hundred of CLAVERING, E. division of NORFOLK, 2½ miles (N.) from Beccles; containing 349 inhabitants. The parish is situated on the road from Beccles to Yarmouth, and comprises 2203a. 1r. 21p., of which about 1402 acres are arable, 164 pasture, 76 woods, 552 marsh, and 10 waste. The Hall, which is moated, is supposed to have been part of an alien priory, a cell to the abbey of St. Peter and St. Paul, at Preaux, in Normandy, founded here in the time of Henry I., and the revenue of which, on its suppression, was annexed by Henry V. to the Carthusian monastery at Witham, by Henry VI. to Eton College, and by Edward IV. to King's College, Cambridge. The living is a discharged rectory, united to that of Haddiscoe, and valued in the king's books at £8: a tithe rent-charge of £316. 13. is paid to King's College, which also has a glebe of 13 acres; a rent-charge of £153. 16. 8. belongs to the rector of this parish, and one of £26 to the incumbent of Gillingham. The inhabitants, by a charter, are exempt from serving on juries.

TOFT-NEXT-NEWTON (St. Peter and St. Paul), a parish, in the union of CANTON, N. division of the wapentake of WALSHCROFT, parts of LINDSEY, county of LINCOLN, 4½ miles (W.) from Market-Rasen; containing 71 inhabitants, and comprising 1230 acres. The living is a rectory, valued in the king's books at £9. 10. 10., and in the patronage of the Crown: the tithes have been commuted for £230; there is a parsonage-house, and the glebe contains 43½ acres.

TOFT, WEST (St. Mary), a parish, in the union of TUNSTON, hundred of GRIMSBOE, W. division of NORFOLK, 5 miles (N. E.) from Brandon; containing 182 inhabitants. It is situated on the road from Thetford to Watton, and comprises about 2700 acres, of which 500 are woodland in the demesne of the Hall. The living is a discharged rectory, valued in the king's books at £8. 6.; net income, £110; patron, Sir R. Sutton, Bart. The church is an ancient building of flint and stone, with a large square tower erected early in the reign of Edward IV., and coped and embattled with freestone. In 1720, an oaken coffin was discovered, containing, among other relics, human bones, the representation of a face cut in jet, a blue cypher, and several beads.

TOFTREES (All Saints), a parish, in the union of WALSHINGHAM, hundred of GALLOW, W. division of NORFOLK, 2½ miles (S. W.) from Fakenham; containing 84 inhabitants. It comprises 1184a. 2r. 4p., of which 774 acres are arable, 286 meadow and pasture, and 93 woodland. The living is a discharged vicarage, valued in the king's books at £7. 18. 6., and in the gift of the improprators, the family of Townshend: the great tithes have been commuted for £155, and the vicarial for £157. 12., and the glebe contains 9 acres. The church is chiefly in the early English style, with a square tower; the font is Norman, and there are some other details of that character.

TOGSTON, a township, in the parish of WARKWORTH, union of ALNWICK, E. division of COQUETDALE ward, N. division of NORTHUMBERLAND, 10 miles (S. E. by S.) from Alnwick; containing 151 inhabitants. It is bounded on the east by the sea, and comprises 1031 acres, of which two-thirds are arable land, of a good strong soil: 634 acres are the property of Thomas George Smith, Esq., of Togston House, 117 that of James Dand, jun., Esq., of Togston Hall, and the remainder belong to the Countess of Newburgh. In 1830, a colliery was opened by Mr. Smith, and another is also in operation, both for the supply of the district. The appropriate tithes have been commuted for £157. 13., and the vicarial for £32. 12. 2. The Winston Dyke passes through the township.

TOLLAND (St. John the Baptist), a parish, in the union of TAUNTON, hundred of TAUNTON and TAUNTON-DEAN, W. division of SOMERSET, 3½ miles (N. N. E.) from Wiveliscombe; containing 124 inhabitants. The parish comprises 825 acres by admeasurement, and the road from Wiveliscombe to Dunster and Minehead runs through it on the south-west, and the old road to the same places on the north-east. Lime is quarried for agricultural use. The living is a rectory, valued in the king's books at £7, and in the patronage of the Crown: the tithes have been commuted for £140; there is a parsonage-house, and the glebe comprises 40 acres. The church is a very small ancient edifice.

TOLLARD-ROYAL (St. Peter), a parish, in the union of TISBURY, partly in the hundred of CRANBORNE, Shaston division of Dorset, but chiefly in the hundred of CHALK, Hindon and S. divisions of WILTS, 6½ miles (S. E. by E.) from Shaftesbury; containing, with the tything of Farnham-Tollard, 548 inhabitants. The parish comprises 2807 acres, of which 416 are common or waste. The living is a rectory, valued in the king's books at £16, and in the gift of J. Austin, Esq.: the impropriate tithes have been commuted for £10, and the rectorial for £560; there is a parsonage-house, and the glebe comprises 55 acres. In the parish is an old farmhouse called King John's hunting-seat, thought to be the remains of an ancient royal residence for hunting in Crauborne Chase.
