Sample Mędrzechów Record

Much of what has been said of the BIRTH database can be said for the MARRIAGE database. In this database under house number. the scribes did not start listing the bride's house number until 1847, therefore where there are double entries on the same line for house number it is the groom's then the bride's. The same holds true under the field AGE. The first age is that of the groom and then the bride. In the field named OTHER, I included information on the couple's previous marital status, if it was given. Any other pertinent information that was included on the church record I would list under OTHER, for example. I would list cause of death, if the child was illegitimate or if the person indicated on the record was from nobility. Quite often in the later years the scribes would also indicate on the birth record the marriage date., sometimes where married and to whom and where. Initially in extracting I noticed what I thought was a plus sign following the child's given name. It finally dawned on me that the scribe was indicating that the child died shortly after birth by making the sign of the cross. Children who died in childbirth were not given names but listed as puer or puella non viva I discovered a number of twins born but only one set of triplets.

It was interesting to note my ability to read the records. At first it was very difficult because of the script and the handwriting. In some cases the handwriting was beautiful and resembled artistic qualities, a pleasure to read. Others required careful study to determine the names. In a short time I was able to use the process whereby children learn to read and that is by word recognition. I may not always have been able to read letter by letter a name but by word recognition I knew what name was intended.

In extracting the names of all these individuals, it was interesting to see the emergence of a new surname usually when the groom sought out a bride from a neighboring village. Conversely surnames disappeared due to illnesses that took so many. The other factor resulting in certain surnames disappearing was the large number of people immigrating to other parts of the world, usually the US, but also to South America, South Africa and other countries in Europe. From what I have read in other publications the famine, poverty and possibility of forced military service were the primary reasons for departing their homeland.

Again I must stress that the accuracy of this extraction cannot be guaranteed. I worked to accomplish this work to the best of my ability and many errors can be attributed to the church record keepers themselves. It is my hope that this work will be valuable to many, because the effort expended was massive.
