FIRST BARSTOW HIGH SCHOOL CLASS

Establishment of the first high school was initiated in August of 1915 with the arrival of Professor Harry B. Thomas, a math teacher from Chino, Calif. He met with Miss Abby Waterman, a daughter of Robert Waterman who owned the first local silver mine and later governor of California, and Oswald Wilson, the editor of The Barstow Printer. They agreed that a high school would open in September. The school house, rented from Jesse Flint, was a two-story residence located west of First and William Streets where the El Rancho Motel now stands. Partitions were removed to provide two class rooms, and desks and books were ordered.

The school opened September 20th, but without books, desks or other equipment. Tables were used for desks and folding chairs for seats. Professor Thomas was the principal and also taught. The other teacher was Leona S. Paxton. Twenty-six students enrolled and of these there were fourteen boys and twelve girls. The first graduate was Miss Muriel Hindle. Other members of the 1915 class were:
