THE SEARCH FOR A. J. LASTINGER

By
Robert A. Whitecar

I had a surname plus initials for the given name, to complete the data on the individual .... actually it was my g-g-grandfather. I thought I had searched everywhere. The census records for the period of his life only referred to him as A. J. LASTINGER. He was born before birth registration was required, so that avenue was out.

How about his marriage license then? As you might suspect the marriage record in the Hillsborough County Courthouse was made out to Sarah Catherine BOZEMAN and.... you guessed it ... A. J. LASTINGER. Where next?

Well, he died in Florida so, write for his death certificate. The proper forms were filled out and then mailed. I waited and waited for Jacksonville Vital Statistics to answer. Finally the letter arrived; impatiently I quickly opened the envelope.

"Dear Mr. Whitecar, ... We have made a careful search of the records but regret we were unable to find any record for the death of A. J. LASTINGER.." Another dead end.

Next the bright light came on and another trip was made to the cemetery .... Right again; the tombstone was engraved A. J. LASTINGER. One more grave-site possibility – their daughter, my g-grandmother. Eagerly I hunted the grave and what did I find? "Irma E. LASTINGER, dau. of A. J. and S.C. LASTINGER."

Noting the time period for which I was working, as can be expected, I had a hunch that A. J. was Andrew Jackson. A common concept of that time was naming a child after a famous person of the era. But I still did not have proof.

To recap, I had tried census, death, birth, and marriage records, plus property sales and purchases. A.J. was very careful to always use the initials rather than his full name.

Among the data that I had so carefully amassed on this family were city directory notes. One day while writing a cousin about this branch, I quoted the directory entries. 1903 Sallie C , - widow of A. Jackson; 1905 Sallie C. - widow . A. Jackson; 1906 Sallie C. - widow Andrew J.; 1907 LASTINGER, Sarah C. - widow Andrew J.; 1908 no indication of marital status; 1909 Sarah C. - widow A. Jackson; 1912 Sarah C. - widow A. Jackson; 1913 LASTINGER, Sarah C. - widow A. Jackson, etc...

Now the reader probably did as I did and read right through these entries to get to the addresses and other information a city directory will give the determined fact-finder. I have had these xeroxed pages for several years and had never really read them. This time I did!

Did the reader notice that in 1903 Sallie was the widow of A. Jackson, that at least gave me the middle name and reinforced the theory that I was looking for Andrew Jackson LASTINGER, but I still had nothing solid to base my theory on. Then I saw it for the first time... 1907 LASTINGER, Sarah C. widow of Andrew J. I finally had the name I had hunted for such a long time! ANDREW JACKSON LASTINGER.... my theory had been right but now I had the desperately needed proof.

I've written this little lesson to show that sometimes when reading a document, we can overlook the obvious by trying too hard. ALWAYS CAREFULLY AND THOROUGHLY READ YOUR CITATIONS!
