Florida Passenger Lists – 1840

From the Florida Herald and Southern Democrat

St. Augustine, Florida

Contributed by Pam Cooper

In the early newspapers of Florida, ships and passengers that arrived in our coastal ports were often printed. However, not every passenger was named. It usually was the first class or upper class of people as well as military personnel. Listed below are examples of what was printed on the dates noted along with the name of the ship and the passenger's names.
