Inkwell Publications

1661 Lauranceae Way

Riverdale, GA 30296

This book is the first volume of Campbell County, Georgia, cemeteries. It is my intention to publish at least one and possibly two more volumes of Campbell's cemeteries. The extent of publication will depend upon the number of cemeteries located and surveyed. Hopefully, this volume will encourage people to search for local cemeteries and contact me.

Most of the cemeteries in this book were surveyed by me and by my daughter, Kim, in 1980. Several were surveyed by other persons and originally printed in The Georgia Armchair Researcher. Permission to reprint these in this volume was granted by Joel Dixon Wells, editor of the above quarterly. I would like to thank Mrs. T. D. Wilson for contributing the survey of the Reeves Family Cemetery, and for her continued efforts to locate other cemeteries in her locale. I appreciate the many persons who have notified me of locations of cemeteries, particularly Mrs. Bobbie Embry from Lubbock, Texas, who spent quite some time in locating her ancestors' graves and graciously shared this information with me. I also wish to thank my friend and fellow-genealogist, Joel Dixon Wells, for the help he has given me in locating cemeteries and for his willingness to chauffeur me to the cemeteries when my car decided to take a rest.

Many of Campbell's cemeteries are in relatively good condition, but some have suffered from vandalism or neglect. Some, such as the Peters Family Cemetery, can never be restored because of the almost total destruction caused by vandals. Some are being destroyed by falling trees, erosion, and lack of care. It is important that the information in all of our cemeteries be recorded now, so future generations may have access to this data.

It is interesting to note certain traditions within some of the cemeteries, as well as the unusual information found on some of the tombstones. In Enon Baptist Church Cemetery, many of the tombstones bear the marriage dates of couples, and, quite a few are adorned with photographs of the deceased. Though marriage dates and photographs are not common to Campbell's cemeteries, these are often found on fairly recent markers in church cemeteries. A few large tombstones, such as Ossanda Hattaway's marker in Friendship Cemetery, list the deceased's children by name. Many markers also include the name of the person who erected the marker. Hugh McClure's stone in Mount Vernon Cemetery tells of a "Fox Hunters Association" which was organized in 1941.

Though I did not indicate separate military markers in this publication, many graves have two markers - one placed by relatives or friends and a second issued by the government indicating service in a military unit. A few graves are marked with a bronze marker placed by the United Daughters of the Confederacy in recognition of Confederate military service. No DAR markers were found in these surveyed cemeteries. Quite a number of markers were adorned with a Masonic emblem; and, one grave indicated membership in the Ku Klux Klan.

Cemeteries are our greatest links to the past. Their tombstones and cemetery ivy are visual proof of our ancestor's existence, and, they should be a point of pride for all residents in each community. They are the sacred and final resting places of those who have gone before us - the hallowed ground where we will one day be interred.

"GEORGIA"

Claire Latham

I want to go back where I was born
Down midst the cotton and the corn
Way down in Georgia

Don't want to roam no more
I'm getting tired of all this show
Want to go back to my tumbled down shack
Way down in Georgia

There the nightingales sing the whole night through
The whippowill, the owl and the mocking bird, too
Way down in Georgia

Don't want to work no more
I'm getting a little slow
Want to go back to my own back door
Way down in Georgia

There the Chattahoochee lifts its happy song
Softly singing as to the sea it rolls along
Way down in Georgia

Don't want to no more run around
I'm getting tired of this noisy town
Want to go back before the sun goes down
Way down in Georgia

When this life is through and there's no more work to do
When my little race is run
I pray that I may have won
A home above as fair as Georgia.

The poem, GEORGIA, is beautifully carved on the tombstone which covers the entire grave of Claire Latham in the Campbellton Methodist Church Cemetery. I was told she was living in New York City at her death, but this poem vividly expresses her love for the Chattahoochee River and for Georgia.

There are more than 100 rock marked graves in Bethel Cemetery. Many have the year date hand-carved on the rock, but no name. Most of these seem to have died about 1837 to 1839.

At one time, Bethel Baptist Church was located across the road from the cemetery. Though the church is no longer there, the cemetery is well kept.

FOREWORD —

Campbell County, created by the Georgia Legislature in December of 1828, actually began operating as a governing body in 1829. The Court of Ordinary, or Inferior Court as it was called in the years prior to the Reconstruction Era, ordered the first will recorded at their March Term in 1829. The first few wills probated by this court were never recorded, but were stuck in the back of Will Book C for safe keeping. When Will Books A, B and C were microfilmed, these loose wills were microfilmed at the end of Book C. I have included them as a separate section of these abstracts.

Hopefully, there are no errors, either in the abstracts or in the typesetting. Many of the early wills were difficult to read, either because of the handwriting or the microfilming, and names could have been abstracted incorrectly. Most of the wills in Will Book C were typewritten and easier to read. All names were abstracted as spelled by the clerk of the court and, I have no doubt, were sometimes incorrectly spelled by the clerk.

Many other wills brought before the court were set aside or declared "null and void." These records may be found in the several volumes of Minutes of Inferior Court of Campbell County which are on microfilm at the Georgia Archives. Photocopies of microfilmed records may be purchased from the Georgia Department of Archives & History, 330 Capitol Avenue, Atlanta, Georgia 30334.

It has been a joy to abstract and place in print the wills of Campbell County. Having already abstracted and printed the first two marriage books of the county, as well as the census records of 1830 and 1840 and many Campbell cemetery records, reading these wills was like a visit with old friends. I hope you will enjoy meeting my many friends.
