Preface

Campbell County, Georgia was organized December 20, 1828 from parts of Coweta, Carroll, DeKalb and Fayette Counties. In 1832 the county was enlarged by the addition of a part of Cherokee County. In 1932 Campbell County merged with Fulton County and all Campbell County records are now housed in the Fulton County Court House in Atlanta, Georgia. The first county seat was Campbellton and later changed to Fairburn.

Campbell County, Georgia, Marriage Records, Volume C, 1865-1872, was the first volume to record the marriages of both white and black people. The black people were noted as colored or freeman. To help the researchers using this book I placed (c) after those recorded as colored people. There are a few marriages recorded in this book before 1865 and one in 1873.

No spellings have been changed and when in doubt , a ? mark was placed after the letter in question.

This volume also contains those living in the area now known as Douglas County, being created Oct. 17, 1870 from the western half of Campbell County.
