1.1:Cemeteries of Walton Co., GA

Thanks to Mr. Fred Eakin and Mr. William "Billy" C. Hudson III, 1270 Green Cir., Loganville, GA 30052-4539, for sending copies of these cemeteries they have copied in Walton Co., GA. According to them these cemeteries haven't appeared in published form, i.e. "In Remembrance, Cemetery Readings of Walton County, Georgia" by the Historical Society of Walton Co., Inc., 1981. The following was included with the transcriptions:

"Most of the inscriptions are family burial grounds, of Walton County's early citizens. Some of the burial grounds contain hundreds of graves with common stones as markers, of those who died in Walton County when money was a scarce commodity and death from diseases were wide spread. Under Georgia's cemetery laws the care afforded to graveyards is left up to local authorities. Georgia's County Governments through planning, development, and land use plans do not recognize the importance of our graveyards. Under Georgia's current laws, County's can not be held responsible for the destruction of cemeteries even though the care afforded cemeteries is left up local government. As proven by four grand juries of Walton County Georgia 1996-1999. No preliminary investigation by the D.A. Office was ever initiated. Even though Walton County Planning and Development required an archeologists report on the Reed Family Graveyard in 1993. Then dropped this requirement from 1993-1999 resulting in the destruction of the Lyles, Echols, Atkinson Road, and other cemeteries during this period. Georgia's Tax Assessors knowingly and willingly tax graveyards throughout this state. Even though graveyards are not taxable property under law, these same people tax machinery, that is over one hundred years old, lawfully with forms sent to those who own these old machines. And yet there has never been any form for recognizing Georgia's graveyards. There are many more of these old graveyards in Walton Co., GA."

»»» Robert M. Echols Family Cemetery «««

Located at Land Lot 104, Nunnally Forest Subdivision, Robert M.

ORANGE COUNTY CALIFORNIA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Echols stone was moved to Rest Haven Cemetery in Monroe. His body was not removed. There were other family members buried in this graveyard. This family history was written by Milner Echols, Robert M. Echols father, after Robert's death. This family history gives lists of names of those buried in this graveyard, which includes some of Robert M. Echols' children. Before Walton County Grand Jury 1999 (no investigation).

The Echols slave graveyard was also located on the Robert M. Echols property land lot 104 with 30 or more graves marked with common stone.

Mrs. W.H. Nunnally was responsible for locating and placing the grave stone on Robert M. Echols grave through the D.A.R. - U.D.C. Monroe Chapter. Mr. & Mrs. W.H. Nunnally owned the land at the location of the Robert M. Echols graveyard. Those buried are Jonathon Milner Echols (age 17), Dorrell Sampson Echols (Infant), Jonathon M. Echols son (age 5 years), Richard Echols, Martha Echols Woodall, Robert M. Echols Sr.

"A Mighty Fine Think To Do

The Cemetery With Two Extra Headstones

Dateline Georgia By Bob Harrell

GRATIS - W.G. Adams has done a mighty fine thing on his farm up there in Walton County. He has preserved the memory of two people. Bill has accomplished this out there, under the cedar trees in a little family cemetery where there were five burials and seven headstones - which, I suppose, will take some explaining.
