This is a "Plat" which shows the location and types of buildings and dwellings on the WEST side of the 200 and 300 block of South Main St. in 1907.

By this time; the Post Office, the Searles Building, the Colwell Building and the old Brown-Lynch-Scott Building were already built.

A number of smaller businesses were located on the South side of West 1st. Ave.; a plumbing & tin shop, chinese laundry, blacksmith shop, wagon shop and a paint & wallpaper store. Whether they were wood or brick construction I do not know. They would soon be razed to make room for the Illinois Bankers Life Bldg., the Colwell Annex had not yet been built.

What really caught my eye, was that a skating rink was operated downtown-- soon to become the BIJOU Theater; yes it started on the west side; only later to become the Princess theater in 1915, and the BIJOU was moved to the east side of the street.

Another feature was the grand home of J. H. Pattee; on South Main and West 2nd. Ave., of course he was the founder of the Pattee Plow Company and a Capitalist in many financial ventures.

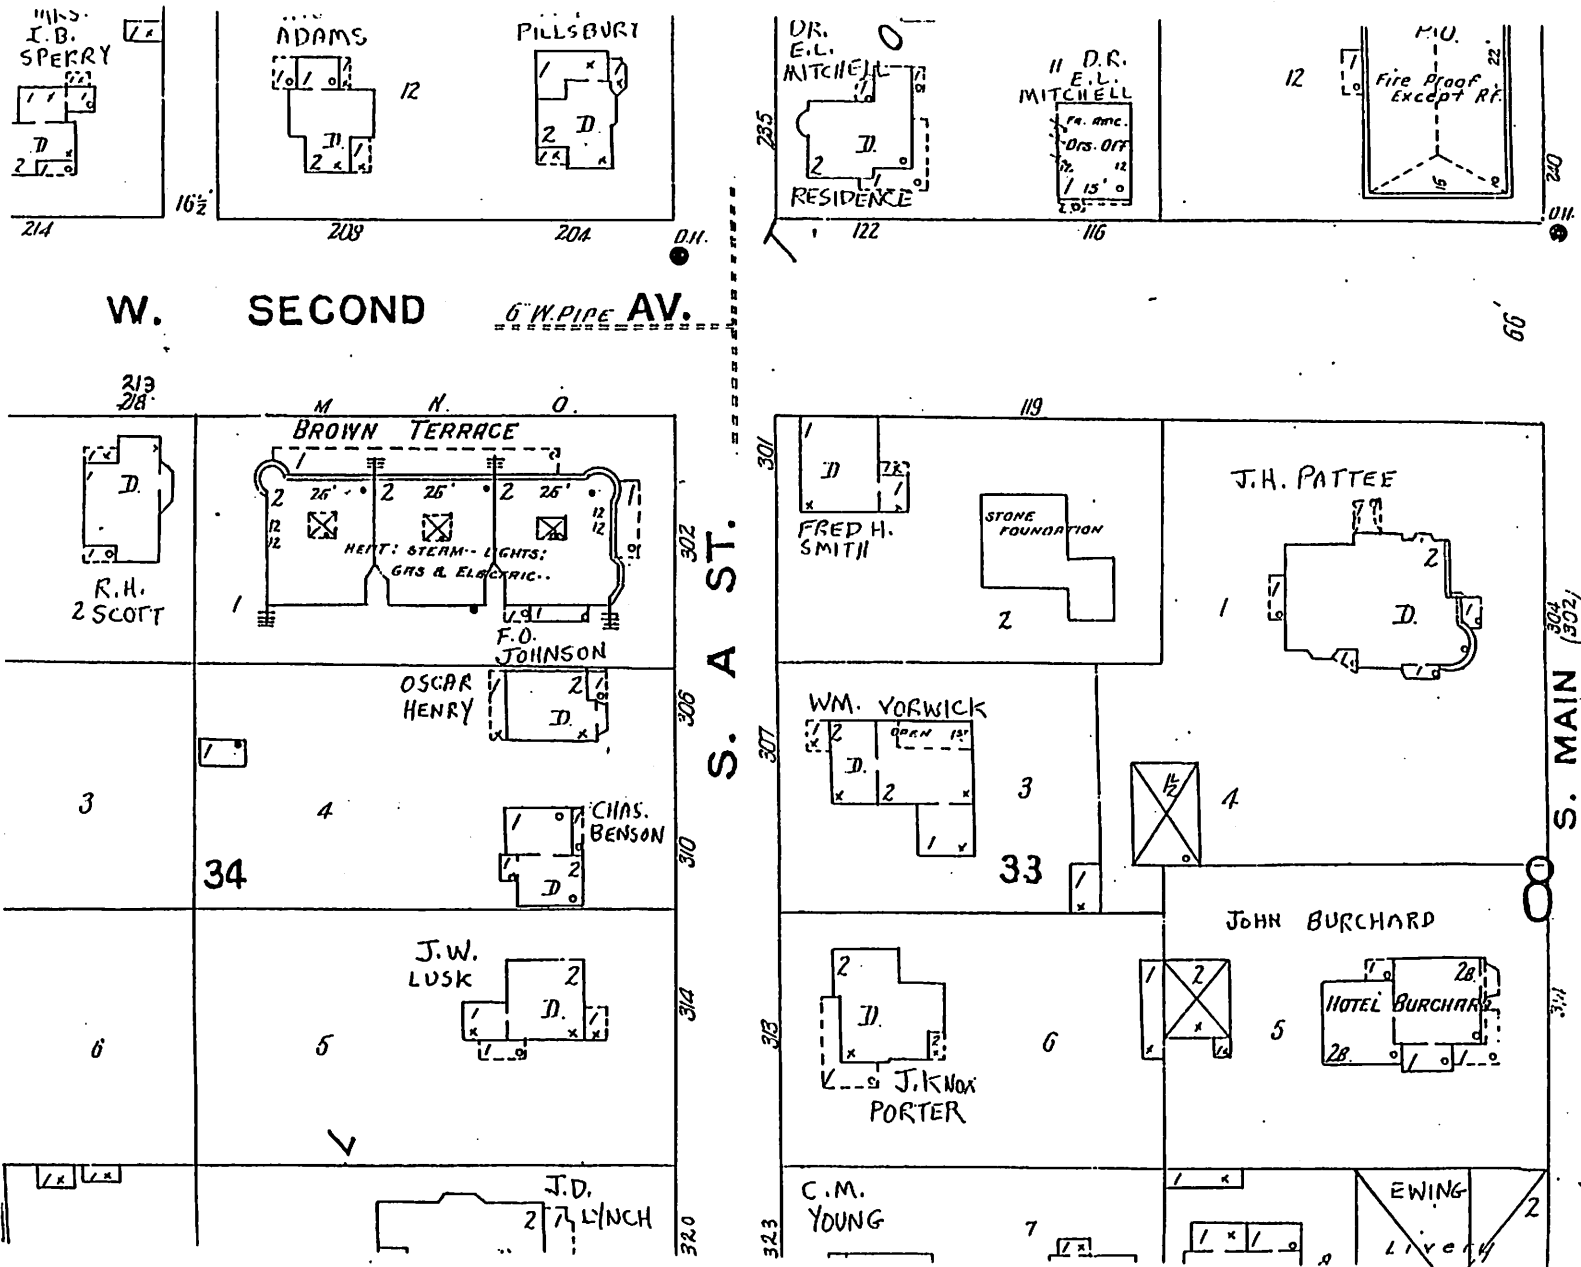

One last subject to note is the BROWN TERRACE (Brown Apartment Bldg.) on West 2nd Ave. Built in 1906, it shows three large apartments later to be remodeled into six apartments by 1913.

John S. Brown, lived right next door at 213 W. 2nd moving to 620 East Broadway in a stately home that was later razed to build the Kingstowne Apartments. He was a former Mayor of Monmouth and president of the Plow Company.

Abingdon histories her specialty

By AMY AHRENS
of The Register-Mail

ABINGDON — Former or current Abingdon residents might be surprised to know that a Galesburg woman may know more about their own family history than they do themselves.

There is a high-tech historian hiding out who maintains a genealogical database of thousands of obituaries, family trees, and at least as many newspapers on microfilm as the local library.

Nellie Landon, a former resident of Abingdon and one of 16 children, found herself curiously researching her own family tree back in 1993.

That budding curiosity has transformed into a hugely time-consuming hobby the self-effacing researcher pursues quietly from her home in Galesburg.

"I just love it," the member of four area genealogical societies said. "It's like a big crossword puzzle to put all these people together."

Nellie Landon keeps track of more than 25,000 former or current residents of Abingdon.

She not only maintains her own family tree on computer but also in a binder nearly 10 inches deep, but she also keeps track of the genealogical history of more than 25,000 former or current residents of Abingdon. And she is adding more each day.

She proudly boasts that 99 percent of her own family is from Abingdon and that she has traced her family tree as far back as 1775 on her father's side and as far back as 1400 on her mother's side.

However, compiling and maintaining the paper trail of her own genealogy and that of thousands of other Abingdon residents became frustrating for Landon due to lack of space and time in relocating a certain person or file.

Now, the technology she uses to research and maintain her hobby includes a microfilm printer/reader, a scanner, two home-based PCs, two portable photocopiers, and a laptop computer that is available for her to quickly access or log information anywhere, anytime.

"It is costly sometimes to continue to do this, but I've never thought of charging people," she said quietly. "It's just a fascinating game."

And even as inconspicuous as this high-tech historian tries to remain, Landon said she receives 10 to 20 e-mail messages or several phone calls a day from all over the country from individuals seeking genealogical information about a former or current resident of Abingdon.

"I'm not sure how they find me or get my e-mail address," she laughed. "But I get a lot of requests for information on people who are from Abingdon or have Abingdon ties."

Landon graciously accepts the numerous requests she receives on a daily basis and often ventures out of her in-home research center on a request from a friend or acquaintance with a genealogical query.

"I went to the library on Monday with 150 different names to research," she said modestly. "I only found three in a few hours."

Landon, however, continues to persist in maintaining and researching the lives of the past and present with a little help from modern technology and requests from the curious seeking a glimpse of Abingdon's historic past.

People continually ask her why she is pouring the money and time into researching past and present families of Abingdon, Landon said. Her reply: "I just love it. ... It would be a shame to lose our history forever."
