Kivett and Lambdin Feud in Waco in 1897

Abstracted from the Hillsboro (Texas) Reporter of 4 August 1897

Newspaper report submitted by Roy C. Bessire

In Waco, McLennan County, Texas on 29 July 1897, Ben F. Kivett, a house and sign painter, and his brother, Will W. Kivett, a bricklayer, both young men, rushed into the broker and commission office of C. E. TRICE & Co. in the Pacific Hotel and attacked William McK. Lambdin, a Western Union Telegraph operator. Lambdin defended himself with a double barrel shotgun. His first shot passed through the screen door of the broker's office, killed Ben Kivett, and ended up in the woodwork of the dining room of the hotel where customers were dining. The second shot wounded Will Kivett and lodged in the dining room door. Will rushed at Lambdin and shot at his head, but Lambdin pushed the revolver out of the way. Lambdin put down the shotgun, drew his pistol, and took one fatal shot at Will. Lambdin's wounds were a scraped finger, from holding the muzzle of Will's revolver to avoid being shot, and inflammation of the eyes from powder burns. Lambdin was arrested. He was freed shortly. While recuperating from his wounds, he was at his father's residence on Austin Avenue, visiting his many friends who came to congratulate him upon his narrow escape from death.

The animosity began three years ago when Sam JONES, a well known Methodist preacher, was conducting a revival in Waco. The disagreement was a matter of common gossip in Waco, although the details were not known to the public. It was patched up, then broke out again, then was resolved again, and there was said to be a recent final settlement, as the Kivett brothers intended to leave Waco. Instead, they broke the truce. Before they attacked, they told some friends that they knew Lambdin was a trained marksman and, by double teaming, they hoped to take his life at the expense of, they hoped, only one of theirs.

Among the survivors were the widow and children of Ben Kivett, of DeLeon, and the surviving brother, Walter R. Kivett, a business man of Waco. Will Kivett was a bachelor. Walter had tried, unsuccessfully, to be a peacemaker.

The bodies were kept on ice and were viewed by the public through a plate of glass in a chapel for an hour or two before their funeral, then they were taken to Oakwood Cemetery in two hearses and buried in the same grave.

The 4th Annual Genealogy Lock-in, October 17, 2003, was by all indications a success. We had 150 participants from as far as San Marcos to Fort Worth and over 30 hereditary societies represented. Committee planning really seemed to pay off. The classes offered included a variety of Beginners Classes, Family History Library product demos and in-depth instruction on HeritageQuest and AncestryPlus databases. Attendance at the beginners and database averaged 28.5 participants per class which is slightly above last years average.

The gentleman who attended from Fort Worth comments seems to sum up the feelings of many who participated. "Please accept my compliments and congratulations on a splendid lock-in last Friday night. I gained some genealogy knowledge, enjoyed more than a little conversation with others, was richened for having attended Barbara Frank's class on Heritage Quest, and partook of the fine refreshments offered.

It was obvious that more than a little planning went into the event, and the execution certainly left little for this Fort Worth resident to miss. ALL seemed to be smiling and enjoying themselves, and I'd wish to offer my accolades for a JOB WELL DONE to both the library and staff, and the CTGS!"

The Society continued its efforts and support of binding the genealogy periodicals within the collection. In fiscal 2002-2003, 125 volumes were sent to Waco Bindery. Bobbie Baldree, and Jean and Bill Cox deserve special thanks for their efforts in ensuring the completeness and continuation of this project. The genealogy periodicals procured through the Society's exchange program are and will continue to be a very strong asset to the genealogy collection.

The McLennan County Cemetery Interest Group continues its work identifying and inventorying McLennan County cemeteries with the support of Society members and the Projects Committee. The Committee is inventorying one cemetery per month on average at this time with a focus on black cemeteries. I want to thank all Committee members for your support and commitment to saving a part of McLennan County history for the next generation.

I would like to thank president Nana Cornwell for her dedication and commitment to the Society and to the Division. I look forward to working with all the Society's new officers this coming year.

Again, I would like to thank the Central Texas Genealogical Society for its continuing and unflinching support of the Waco-McLennan County Library Genealogy Division, staff and patrons.

Sincerely,

William D. Buckner

Waco-McLennan County Library

November 24, 2003

Dear Central Texas Genealogical Society:

On behalf of the Waco McLennan County Library System, I would like to thank you for your invaluable and continuing support of the Genealogy Division. The physical as well as financial support to the Division is greatly appreciated especially during this economic downturn. While the Division did not lose any staff the Library and the City of Waco had hard decisions to make during the budget process this past year. Your presence and relationship with the Genealogy Division and the Library helped us to maintain current levels of service.

Your willingness to step in and volunteer makes a lasting impact both in the quality and quantity of service we provide to our patrons. The volunteers contributed a total of 1,265.75 hours valued at $20,691.82 to the Genealogy Division, answering over 2,571 reference questions. Thank you to all who volunteered your time, knowledge, and talents. Special thanks and recognition go to Peggy Duty, our Saturday volunteer. On November 13th Ms. Duty was recognized as an outstanding volunteer at the Central Texas Philanthropy Day celebration, sponsored by Central Texas Chapter of the Association of Fundraising Professionals.

The CTGS continued to strive towards its mission of education as it worked in conjunction with the Genealogy Division in sponsoring the very popular Genealogy Beginner's classes. The Beginners' classes were held four times, including during the annual lock-in, this year and drew an average per class of 32 participants. The success of these classes is based in part to the contribution of all the individuals that taught portions of the class agenda and gave every segment that special touch. A special thank-you also goes to Andrea Baker who helped get the word out.

The volunteer training program held in conjunction with the beginners' classes continued to draw interest. We had ten individuals come for advance training and an orientation. It is my hope that as Society members become more comfortable with their own knowledge and research skills they will be willing to share what they know with others.

The Society's contributions to the Division included $100 towards expenses for the February 2003 "Black History program" and Central Texas Library System/Waco-McLennan County Library Genealogy Day in which author Franklin Smith and librarian, Margaret Harris were primary speakers; $928.98 was donated for books and other materials to be designated by the CTGS Acquisition Committee; and $250 was given to supplement expenses incurred during the Genealogy Lock-in in October. Again, let me thank you for your continued direct financial support and donation of genealogy books and other materials.
